I hope to have the first prototype of a remotely tunable and steerable amplified loop antenna working and get someone to put it up for me in the next couple months. I don't have a working outdoor antenna system at the moment. The hurricanes last year took down a bunch of trees, so I have to start over. The state is doing survey work in protected land that abuts the rear and side of my property and I want them to be done and gone before I have the antennas put back up. It really stinks not to be able to climb a ladder or tree anymore to hang antennas. :(

The DX-375 portable is ok for general listening, but it is keypad programmable and doesn't have a tuning knob so I really don't like to use it unless I want a specific frequency. Its kind of funny, because I have been on a local talk radio station more than I have been able to listen to shortwave lately. It is a one hour program for and about local veterans, and I have a standing offer to show up any time I feel well enough to be there at 9:00 on Thursday mornings.

I bought the DX-375 for my survival gear for bad weather, and it got a lot of use for a couple months last year. Its not like having a nice rig with a good antenna system, but when you have to spend a couple weeks in a hurricane shelter its better than nothing. I also picked up a 4" TV set to take to the shelter this year, just in case. Last year was the first time since 1987 I had to go to a shelter, and I wouldn't have left if it wasn't mandatory.

MAT,
Northern Troops have been in the Southern States for about 135 Years.
USA Troops are still in Germany and Japan ever since 1945 (60 Years).
US Combat Troops have been ready for action in Korea since 1950. (55

US Forces are today still working in the former Yugoslavia.
{Thanks to Bill Clinton}

So when the US pulls all of its troops out of Germany, Japan, Korea and pulling it's troops out of Irag and Afghanistan.

We need to be fighting the real enemies of America today in Irag and

I wasn't stating a view either way, I just thought I would give the zealots here something else to argue about for a while. I haven't had the time to look through the references yet but I do get some interesting news from the http://www.military.com mailing list.

You can get pretty good performance with a small loop near ground. Just putting it up about 10 feet should work well. This would make it easy to take down quickly in the event of bad weather. A tunable amplified loop should be a pretty hot performer.

Dear Mike,

I should have made it more clear that I have never actually tried a Wellbrook ALA 1530 antenna myself. My comment was based on what I read in PASSPORT and what Andy Ikin told me personally when he suggested that I buy the ALA 330S as opposed to the '1530. I'm sorry for any confusion my comment caused. I'll try to write more clearly in the future. Thanks for the nice comment.

I was not aware of an update to the '1530. I would assume (and ONLY assume) that the loop would be the same size as that of the '330S, which is slightly smaller than the original '330. My loop is about 3 feet in diameter so I would guess that the new '1530S would use the same size loop.

We'll have to wait for the reviews to come in regarding this update. I presume that Andy is loking to design an "all-purpose" loop antenna, one that would perform equally well on LW, MW, and SW. So fat, this has eluded him, but if anyone can fashion such an antenna, Andy is the one.

In the meantime, at least for SW listening (as far as I'm concerned), the Wellbrook ALA 330S is unparalleled. It is also quite good on MW, though I personally do not do a lot of MW DXing, It'll be interesting to follow Andy and his antennas. I hope that his updated '1530S keeps all of the '1530's good attributes and minimizes or eliminates its negative (realtively speaking) ones.

Best,

Joe

I'm not worried about anything specific, but I know the manufacturers go to great lengths to pass an rfi test, and yet it seems they are solving a non-problem.

I do occasionally run PCs with the covers off, but I seldom have a radio or TV on, so if I were causing any interference anywhere (eg in the apartment nextdoor) I wouldn't notice it. I've heard urban legends about early microcomputers causing interference, were they noisier or were old TVs more sensitive to it?

I would have no problem spending money on a commercially made case, if I could find one I liked. IMHO, they all suck. Flashy plastic and poor access even with all the covers off (I didn't consider rackmount cases because I'd like it to be semi-portable).

I do have one "beige box" here, but I seldom open that one, so I don't care how awkward it is to mount stuff in it. The other one I frequently swap out components and I want one that gives me better access with the covers off. I'm considering a "semi-monocoque" design with no frame.

I wouldn't expect it to have a meaningful impact on his membership. It might even help him. One of his problems is his influence is declining as his base gets older. The current members have been watching him for years, and this isn't the first time he's taken a strong stand.

It's probably years since he's gotten this much free publicity.

I dont care much for push button radios either.Well,the old vacuum tube car radios (of which I own at least seven or eight of them) have push buttons and some of my old vacuum tube AM and AM/FM table model radios and my old vacuum tube Grundig/Telefunken AM/FM/Shortwave/Phonograph wooden cabinet floor model radio and my big old vacuum tube Telefunken AM/FM/Shortwave wooden cabinet table model radios have some push buttons on them,but that's ok.Speaking of speakers though,last week at the Goodwill store,for two dollars,I bought a very nice Realistic (Radio Shack) model SOLO-2 wooden cabinet speaker.It measures about 9 5/8 high by 5 7/8 wide by 6 5/8 front to back.It has a very nice solid wood cabinet and a sort of a gold weave looking "fabric" grill that is almost as large as the front of the cabinet and brass color metal strips around the grill.It has considerable weight too,I wouldn't want to accidentley drop it on my toe.I wish there had been more than one Realistic SOLO-2 speaker at the Goodwill store,I certainly would have bought them too.I have seen those Tivoli radios advertized before.I was wondering if they are any good?

Let me explain it so that even a simple mind like yours can understand. I said that 99 percent of the garbage you post is just that...garbage. If you actually used a decent newsreader, you too could scan posts to see what you actually posted. A quick scan netted one post. A simple post about a bottom line vacuum tube radio. What does it matter if it had lousy performance? You were to cheap to risk 20 dollars. You risked 100 dollars on a cheap piece of crap Tec sun.
Why not gamble 20 dollars? You should have went ahead and spent the money. It would have given you something to do other than sit here and respond to Cuhulin's every post with nonsense of your own. Maybe if you would get off of usenet for a few minutes you would have time to go out and get a job. Then you might ba able to afford a real radio. I don't always agree with Dxace's decision to call someone a tard, but in your case it is a perfect fit.

I'm reading about this receiver at Universal-Radio. My first question is, whats the difference between a wide band receiver from a shortwave receiver? Does a wide band receiver offers more bands including CW?

I notice that Universal-Radio is not carrying much of Drake and JRC shortwave radio like they use to. I can not seem to find any sites that sells them.

I do not care for portables. I like desk top or base radios.

If I decide to purchase the Satellit 800 Millennium, I may want to find another shortwave (or wide band receiver) that will have features that the Satellite 800 Millennium may not have. This way I could cover more.

I like to stack up on radios. I believe they should all be squared off. With all buttons and headphone hole in the front. I do not have a lot of tolerance for odd shapes although the shape of the AOR AR3000AB does not look too bad.

cuhulin: I think their good, but that depends on ones need. Their is no shortwave in Model 2. But it does give a nice deep tone & sterio sound in AM & FM mode. In fact it sounds nicer then my Sony ICF 2010.

I also like the old fashion look to it.

Basically, for a small desk top, it has a good sound.

A wideband covers more RF real estate than an SW receiver. SW is, by definition in the radio world limited to HF, 30Mhz and below. Down to about the top of the AM band. A wideband receiver will cover frequencies up through VHF, and often above. Usually continuously. Widebands will offer multiple modes of reception, including AM, FM and often both CW and SSB.

So, you can definitely apply a single receiver for many more purposes using a wideband than a receiver limited to SW, but there are compromises in performance.

The IF's in a wideband have to be pretty wide to accomodate some of the services found on VHF. VHF channels can be wider than the SW broadcast bands, so filtration in the IF has to work a lot harder to produce adequate selectivity for SW listening where the widest broadcast channel is less than 10khz wide. Most widebands don't do that well on HF and below for that reason. Those that do are considerably more expensive than a dedicated SW receiver.

Still, there are some decent widebands for the casual HF user.
Someone for whom SW is not a primary consideration.

Drake appears to be exiting the shortwave market. As have a number of receiver manufacturers. JRC, likewise, has limited offerings in HF only radios. For a solid performance oriented HF radio, you'd likely have to move to R-75, by Icom, AR-7030+ by AOR, or products by Ten-Tec, Yeasu, Palstar, which often receive high praise. Or one of the newer, and less well known rigs, like Elad.

Or you could go to the Used market for some of the classics.

I'm with you there. As are many here. Although I do have a number of portables.

Satellit 800 has been a topic of hot discussion here, triggering imperatives across the bandwidth. My own recommendation is to avoid that one. Much has been said about QC on this rig. Then, again, some users swear by them. You can usually buy much more radio for the money, if performance is what you seek. If you like large radios, with big sound, capable of housing a family of 12, you might like Sat 800.

It's not a bad performing radio, either. Just not something that I'd use for HF, at night, on a crowded band.

Oh, Paris is lovely. It could, of course, just be that I just know Paris better, but I found NY a bit... well, quiet. I'm not one for nightlife (I don't drink alcohol, for one thing), but in Paris (or any European town, including London etc) you can't avoid the nightlife; every street has a pub/bar/cafe and in the evenings the entire city centre is heaving with people. In New York everything outside Times Square seemed dead after 8pm. I'm not complaining, since I actually enjoyed being able to walk around without lots of drunk people hassling me, but it was so very different from the European experience. For instance, in my nearby town of Cheltenham (which has a reputation for being "posh") I just wouldn't walk around in town after 10pm because of all the drunk people.

For instance, in NY after spending an entire week walking around the city I can only remember noticing ONE bar/pub. In any European town it would be amazing if you found one street without one bar/pub! Maybe NY bars blend in to the background? Or maybe there are specific nightlife districts such as Times Square - maybe it's just planned better compared to the historical higgledy-piggledy nature of European towns?

What I found similar between NY and Paris was the architecture and the landmark monuments. Paris and NY both have a large number of modern-era landmarks such as the Eiffel Tower and the Statue of Liberty, or the Grand Arch of the Defence and the Empire State Building. London is a lot older, the landmark buildings are things like the Tower of London (a medium sized medieval castle).

>> Peak which was breathtaking. Was also nice to chat to people who, like >> me, were country folk. Mind you, they do like their Christianity >> there, don't they?
>Ehhh... something like that.

What I found really odd everywhere I've been in the USA (Huston, NY, Boston and California) is that there is virtually no pagan/wiccan culture.

In the UK there is this underlying understanding that Christianity is a "new" religion introduced only two thousand years ago and which only really got going about a thousand years ago. For instance, the church in the village where I grew up is only nine hundred years old. Whereas there are pagan standing stones which are three or four thousand years old, and the local government council in my parent's village recently gave a grant to rebuild the pagan meeting place in the forest (really nicely done, with seven tree stumps encircling a wooden stage platform, and six rows of benches up along the hillside- can be used for all kinds of outdoor performances, but essentially it's a coven ground).

What this means is that in the UK you get a lot of shops selling pagan trinkets, such as pentacle jewellery, wickerwork, crystals, alternative medicene, incense, that kind of thing. These shops are not at all difficult to find, they tend to be busy giftshops in prime tourist areas. Additionally in older towns you get dedicated witchcraft shops, selling books, ingredients, and a larger range of trinkets.

The only places in the UK you'll find selling Christian artifacts (crucifixes, rosaries, scrolls with passages from the Bible etc) are shops right next to, or inside, cathedrals, or dedicated Christian bookshops, maybe only one per large town.

Now I've never found ONE shop in the USA selling pagan gifts. Whereas lots of tourist shops seem to sell crucifix jewellery or small statues of the virgin Mary or Jesus, for instance. Also my wife is really into pagan crystals, and I could only find one shop in the whole week I was driving through California which sold crystals, and that was a geology shop, not a witchcraft shop.

It was just kind of spooky to see that the USA seemed to take Christianity so seriously, even in tourist areas, even in modern cities such as New York.

Maybe this is the Catholic influence? But there are lots of European countries which are predominantly Catholic too, such as France, and they don't have this huge imbalance between paganism and new religions.

No, Iceland has maritime temperate climate, with winters similar to Boston´s but 10% of the land surface is covered with glaciers so there is plenty of ice to go around.

The few that I've head are exactly what they sounded like - lessons in simple English for those to whom it's a second language. Several countries do it. Somewhat related are the broadcasts that the VOA does
- or used to do - in what they call "slow English", and that's exactly what it is - you'd recognize it immediately if you heard it.

However, the station you heard could be something other than that, yeah, (a type of code, etc.)

I remember Art Bell hawking Y2K survival merchandise. The commercials were as funny as the guests. Sadly, my local radio station cuts Coast to Coast ads and bumper music now.

On weekends I can sometimes tune to 1110 KFAB Nebraska from southern Manitoba to hear the show uncut.

The Tivoli ''Model'' series (and the PAL, I think) has an excellent FM discrete component front-end. That is their strong point. They pick-up FM as well as any receiver made.

But since FM is not shortwave, expect flames.

However, when I stumbled on the lesson it lasted for almost 10 minutes - no pauses, no stopping to mention a supposed text they were following, no page numbers - 5 minutes of stupid, boring sentences, I could not stick around and wait for them to say anything else. (You'd expect someone to come on and say in a different voice "And now we are turning to page Five", "Yesterday we read...") What aroused my suspicion was one word that was not beginner's English material, it sounded like something like "astize" pronounced semi-emphatically in a sentence "Johnny has a cube, a ball and astize." I don't think I misheard ASTIZE for some object from a child's world.

I have 40 feet of tower I want to put up on a hinged base, but I plan on welding a track up two legs so I can crank a trolley up to the top with the antenna already mounted. If I have to, I will crank the antenna down and remove the trolley and antenna for storage. Then I will be able to crank the tower down to the ground if there is a hurricane. Not only will the preamp be tunable, but I want to add remote gain control so a strong signal doesn't overload it. I may add a whip and adjustable phasing to improve the directivity in a later version.

Early PCs had a lower frequency system clock so there were more harmonics to beat against other signals to cause interference. The original IBM PC had a 4.77 MHz system clock that caused all kinds of problems. There wasn't' a TV channel that didn't have at least one harmonic, and some had two. The interference dropped off as the frequency went up, but some early computers could wipe out the upper UHF TV channels.

You conveniently left off "possibility".

"The Army is planning for the possibility of keeping the current number of soldiers in Iraq -- well over 100,000 -- for four more years, the Army's top general said Saturday"

Official Space Weather Advisory issued by NOAA Space Environment Center
Boulder, Colorado, USA

SPACE WEATHER ADVISORY BULLETIN #05- 6
2005 August 24 at 10:52 a.m. MDT (2005 August 24 1652 UTC)

* EXTREME GEOMAGNETIC STORM ****

Forecasters at the NOAA's Space Environment Center (SEC) in Boulder, Colo., observed an extreme (G5) geomagnetic storm, beginning on August 24 at 2:12 a.m. EDT. Solar flares on August 22 produced minor to moderate radio blackouts (R1 and R2) and a moderated radiation storm (S2). Also, two large Earth-directed coronal mass ejections occurred on August 22, which resulted in today's extreme geomagnetic storming.
The most intense period of geomagnetic storming occurred between 4:00 a.m. and 7:00 a.m. EDT today. The storm is currently subsiding;
however, further, less intense geomagnetic storming is expected through tomorrow.

This solar activity originated from a complex sunspot cluster known as NOAA Region 798. Minor to moderated radio blackouts are still possible today. The radiation storm currently in progress is expected to subside by August 25. This active region is currently rotating around the west limb of the Sun and will no longer be visible from Earth after today.

Agencies impacted by space weather storms may experience disruptions through August 25. These include spacecraft operations, electric power systems, HF communications, and navigations systems.

Data used to provide space weather services are contributed by NOAA, USAF, NASA, NSF, USGS, the International Space Environment Services and other observatories, universities, and institutions. More information is available at SEC's Web site
http://sec.noaa.gov

I own a Tivoli Model One and a Model Two; I saw no need to have a subwoofer with the latter because the sound is bassy and there is no way to adjust it (no tone controls -- I have actually written to Tivoli about the need to incorporate at least a single control).
AM performance is decent with an AM loop (the radio is deaf without it). I use the Model One as an external speaker with my Lowe 225 and since the radio has a tone control, the combination works perfectly for me.

I suggest that you determine what frequency this station is on, what time you are hearing it, and perhaps you might tune in a bit early and stay late to possibly figure out what station it might be.

Can't help you out to much unless you first take steps to help yourself!

I just got one without a manual and need some help. I've figured out how to store and recall, and kind of scan but don't know how the other functions work. The 2.8 filter doesn't work, but red the LED when 2.8 KHz is selected. Other than locking up once in a while, and that might be me, the radio seems to work. Anyone got a manual/copy they want to sell? How about the page on working the keypad functions?

Why?

You sure talk funny.

If the kids want to have a party why not let them? Why the jackbooted thugs with machine guns? Seems silly in the context of a nation at war to be wasting resources on a goddamn boondocker.

With very few exceptions Christians are not to be trusted. The escape clause causes them to be able to justify any kind of heinous act.

If I had a religion, there would be no mercy. No forgiveness. (But very few rules, either. You could covet all day long, for example, and cuss to your heart's content. Kick a dog and you go straight to Hell.)

4175. New PCR-1000 arrived yesterday

Newsgroup: rec.radio.shortwave

From: Michael <md1966@optonline.net> Message-ID: <Cx6Pe.4687$_7.3250@fe08.lga>

Hiya...

My new PCR-1000 arrived yesterday. My initial impressions are quite good. I hooked it up to the PC yesterday night, installed the ICOM software and started to tinker. The PC controlled interface is great to use. I can see getting to like it better then using a standard receiver.

At first, I used the built in speaker on the PCR-1000, but quickly decided to run it through my sound card after I heard how weak it was. I had to open up the cover on the PCR-1000 to set it to use the line-out. Once it was into the sound card, it sounded good. It comes with a basic telescopic antenna and I'm currently using that. I was able to hear a lot of the local municipal stuff. I was also able to hear com from near by Teterboro airport. Though, I didn't test yet to see if I could hear any of the NOAA low orbiting satellites yet. I'll do that tonight. I have winorbit software to track the satellites and a list of the active satellites and what frequency to tune to.

I gave a try using it for some short wave too. Although it wasn't bad, it is not even close to being as good as my OR-75 is. It seems to be a very good UHF/VHF receiver, but for shortwave, it is just an "afterthought" to have it on there. It will do just fine for strong signals, but it cant do much with weak and messy signals.

As of right now, I know very little about what and where to listen for good scanner transmit. I'm not even sure where to use FM and where to use AM or SSB. I've got a lot to learn. Also.... I have to find out what software to get in order to use it like an actual UHF/VHF scanner. It has great potential,but I'm gonna have to figure out how to get what I can out of it.

On the down side, it came with some free Bonito software; RadioComm 4.5. It has a satellite tacking program, Sitor, PSK, Weather Fax software and a bunch of other stuff. I was really looking forward to taking advantage of using it, as I love utility. The problem is, I cant get the program to work. Every time I launch it, I get a com port error. The ICOM software works just fine on that serial port. No port problems, but the Bonito software that I was looking forward to using wont work. I'm not sure if it is a windows XP issue, problems with my serial port, sound card issue or what. I was thinking of trying to get a serial to USB adaptor and giving it a try through my PC's USB port instead of the serial port.

Other then that, I can see I'm going to have a tremendous time with it. I'll need some software and a good antenna, though.

If anyone has any recommendations for software to use it with I'd greatly appreciate it.

Michael

My PCR-1000 is attached to a R.S. discone. It works just fine for me. Get some semblance of a "real" antenna hooked up and you might be surprised what you can pick up on shortwave. I can pick up anything with it that my R-75 picks up. It has the same DSP unit that's in my R75 and also has pass band tuning like the R75, although the R75 has a dual pass band adjustment and the 1000's isn't. As far as the Bonito software goes, in MY opinion it SUCKS. It has more bugs than a cheap trailer park. (No offense, I live in one myself) It is a resource hog if you even can get it running right. I use Talk PCR and love it. Other people swear by Rxplus, I believe it's called. I didn't care for it personally. When you get a real antenna, use good coax and keep it away from your monitor/computer. A good ground rod will help also. The 1hz resoloution of the 1000 is great for SSB and CW. I also have a BCB and FM trap filters on mine as the 1000 is VEFY sensitive and will overload easily without some way of taming it down. Enjoy your new toy...

As a Christian, let me just say that now I know how black people feel when they realize that Al Sharpton has appointed himself their spokesman.

Poor Lardass, he must've skipped over the part that says "Thou shall not bear false witness" and drinking on Sundays.....

"...Drunkenness...and the like...those who practice such things will not inherit the kingdom of God... And those who are Christ's have crucified the flesh with its passions and desires." (Galatians 5:21-24)

Only Lardass Davies claims to be this big xtain, turns out he's just a hypocrite who uses the Bible when it suits him. He lies and drinks all the time, especially on Sundays.

And he likes to quote that traitorous faggot Paul/Saul:
"...an overseer must be...not a drinker..." (1 Timothy 3:2-3)

But Lardass is so weak of mind he needs the Bible and the faggot Jesus.
Don't you hate it Lardass when your own Bible you hold so dear is used against you?

I must say we're mighty proud of Mr. Davies here. He's shown an incredible measure of restraint, in that "being reviled he reviled not in return" (or words to that effect.)

It's too late. You already made yourself look foolish by using the word "dficks" in your subject line. You can't take back your mistake with a second post, because everyone already knows that you have never (and never will) master an ordinary keyboard.

Buy a weed whacker. Cut your hair with it. Chill out. Make love to a dalek.

Since we've referred to WRN....and WRN on Sirius...
This is from Glenn Hauser's World of Radio
http://worldofradio.com:

 INTERNATIONAL VACUUM. On 29th September 2005 at 0730 UT there will be a minor change to the technical parameters of Intelsat 10-02, the satellite WRN uses to relay its English and multi-lingual services to Africa. The symbol-rate will change from 8.022 (eight point zero two two) to 5.000 (five point zero zero zero) and the FEC from ½ to ¾. Services will not be affected by these changes.

Also on the 29th September 2005, the WRN English network to North America relayed via Sirius Satellite Radio will move from channel number 115 to 140. Sirius inform us this is due to the introduction of new channels on Sirius Satellite Radio (such as the much publicized Howard Stern channel). Please ensure that all your publicity material (e.g. websites, brochures etc.) is updated in order to reflect this change. Kind regards, (Sophie Wilson, Client Services Assistant, WRN > TRANSMITTING SUCCESS, Aug 24, DX LISTENING DIGEST) > would have something like text messages - diplo traffic and similar?

Yes, for pagers. I understand its very surprising the things that get transmitted via POCSAG/FLEX.

To answer your second question, probably :)

An anecdote:
A friend worked at an Internet Service Provider, and had his scanner/decoder setup running constantly. One fine summer day, a tractor dug up a major fiber
cable that knocked out half of the Eastern US Seaboard. A regional pager service
sent out pages to that backbone providers engineers with the details.
Needless to say, when the ISP customers called in and said they couldnt reach hotmail, yahoo, and microsoft (at the time, remember this was -almost- 10 years ago), he had the answer for his customers hours before it was prominently featured on the news.

Also were transmitted via POCSAG were voice bridges for the technicians to work together to route around the problems. Searching the interceptions for similar 'capcodes' (individual pager unit identifiers) would clue the potential listener
for updates on the situation as they were made available to the engineers.

Another anecdote:
A friend, at the same ISP, witnessed a page about a certain famous CNN reporter, including personal cellphone information. ("Hey, call Mr. XXX at CNN, on his cell
at xxx-xxx-xxxx about the on-air thingy we are doing tomorrow at 5pm.")

Dont forget, as we move along in complicating life with gadgets in an attempt to make things easier, these devices become all-in-one. Text Messaging into stand-alone messaging devices is treated much like shorthand email.

Interesting? Yes. Diplomatic stuff? Eventually, I am sure. But it certainly sounds illegal to intercept, doesnt it? I am sure usernames and passwords have been transmitted via these protocols.

Searching a database of capcodes could provide an interesting history of usage.
Putting 2 and 2 together could cause a big problem for someone who isnt quite savvy on the weaknesses of this technology!

Hi Peter: I might get the Satellit 800 Millennium soon. I know it is not a top receiver. But, I am sure it will go down in shortwave history.

It's a lot of radio for that price and it is very attractive. I hope that Grundig comes to realize that people love big radios in the old fashion style, but with modern features.

In fact I have the Sony ICF 2010, but I do not like the shape of it that much and the LSB/USB does not work well.

Part of my rig set up, I like to operate a number of radios in a certain sequence. The radios have to fit all together on my table.

Do you have the ICOM R-75? That might be my next radio!

If I get the Satellit 800 Millennium, I'll let you know, maybe we could listen to a SW station at the same time and compare signals. I am in Queens New York. What state are you in?

(Sroll up and read my other post: Tivoli Audio Model 2)

Art Bell deserves some credit. I'll say this much for him, when the mainstream press had its head buried in the sand, he broke numerous chupacabra stories wide open. I bought the New York Times the day after several chupacabra were sighted in the Long Island area, and there was not a word about it. However, Art Bell was all over the story with eyewitness interviews, expert opinions, etc. When it comes to chupacabra, Art Bell always delivers.

Who are ''they''? Bin Laden read a statement in 1998.

We overthrew a popular government in Iran in 1953 for the benefit of

Dear "Paul"
One can learn a great deal about remotely tuned loop antennas by reading Sony's US patent 6,054,965.

It may well be that the Degen uses some of the same concepts as those found in the Sony patent.

That'll work fine except for two little things: the assumption that people can act logically and responsibly where addiction is concerned, and the assumption that everyone operates at the same level of reason and responsibility.

Vero Beach,Florida is the latest news I heard about Katrina this morning on my radio of where Katrina might hit,of course,that could change later on.I have heard two seperate times before on my radio of some folks think Katrina is a cool name for Tropical Storm Katrina.Sheesh,how crazy is that? I reckon some folks thought Camille was a cool name for Hurricane Camille too.Give the Devil his due.

Are these the small curly flourescents, about 13 watts sometimes selling in some dollar stores?
I'm using a few of these and they seem to have a range of about 10 feet, causing quite a bit of hum on the SW bands.

Gosh. All my antennas are outside. There's so much crap coming up the power lines from outside I wouldn't think of using an antenna that wasn't at least 10 feet from the house.

Let me go look at mine in my kitchen lamp/light.It has Lights Of America name brand on it and it has four seperate loops,(the bulb loops,sort of like if you was to bend a piece of coathanger wire to make a simple loop) Not counting the brass/copper/whatever it's made of screw in base part,the bulb measures about five inches tall.I once bought a flourescent screw in light bulb at a department store on Ellis Ave (W.T.Grant store,I think it was) that was going out of business back in the early 1970's.That flourescent light bulb lasted in my bathroom for over fourteen years.

As a wideband user, I'd like to comment on this...

I can't speak for the AOR since I don't have one, but I do have the late, great IC-R8500 from Icom, and its 10.7 IF out -- the first one shared by the whole range of the receiver -- exhibits vastly different behavior depending on which side of 30 MHz you are on.

Below 30 MHz, it is quite narrow, as in less than 20 kHz. Above 30 MHz, it is 6 MHz wide.

AOR's behavior might be different, but it is true that any wideband receiver will deal with issues not directly related to shortwave, and therefore MAY be not the best choice.

"SunLight Bulb" Saves the Planet and your Eyes and reduces Radio Noise generated by most CF Lights :o)
Try one of the newer Compact Fluoreescent (CF) Bulbs from Lights-of-America that uses FluoreX Technology.
These are be sold as "SunLight Bulb" (Sky Blue Label) and are rated at 135 Light Output 2000 Lumens with only a 30 Watt Energy Use and a 6000 Hour Life.
The Model No.2830 S with a Color Temperture or 6500K
(Cool White) . Claims are : Natural Spectrum Light; Provides Soothing Glare Free Light; Enjoy Natural DayLight Indoors; Natural DayLight has an overall positive effect on Health, Mood, and Appearance while reducing any Eye Strain. <www.lightsofamerica.com>

So these newer "CF" Bulbs seem to offer several Pluses over the older "CF" Bulbs and original Incandescent Bulbs:
+ More Rated Output (35%) then the original Bulb.
+ Less Power Used (30%) then the original Bulb.
+ Better Sun Light Color Rendition then the original Bulb.
+ Less RF Radio Noise then older CF Bulbs.

Looking at my doggys couch from the front (the front of doggys couch faces due West where the Sunlight comes through the two floor to ceiling tall windows in my living room,no stupid brit curtains on those windows,I have wooden venetian blinds on those two windows,all of my other windows have the same old style painted white metal venetian blinds that have been there since 1947) I sit on the right end (South end) of doggys couch because my computer and radio and a bunch of my other stuff is sitting on an end table by my end of the couch.Couch is about twelve feet from the two tall windows,I can see the whole wide World out there.

If you interact with people of all sorts, like in retail or in education, you see people at their best and at their worst. In my time spent in retail, for every well reasoned person you meet, there's an equal number of people who refuse to use their brains at all and simply act on emotion. And that's not even counting the people who are deliberately trying to trick or cheat you, brains used or not.
My time in retail taught me that maximum freedom sounds great in theory, but is a nightmare in execution. Throw in addiction and all it's compulsions into the mix and you've got a disaster brewing.

You're correct. There are a handful of wideband receivers which actually have HF adequate IF strips. Usually by dedicating separate strips to frequencies above and below 30MHz. R-8500 is one of them.
R-9000 is another. And AOR makes a couple, both desktops, both expensive, one mountainously so.

Of the widebands I've played with, AR-3000 (in two incarnations) being among them, I've only been impressed with AR-8600, IC-R8500 and IC-R-9000 below 30Mhz when compared to a dedicated HF receiver.

The rest were simply too wide for decent HF work.

I was not impressed.

No, I passed on that one. Went with Ten-Tec RX-350 and AR-7030+.

Also have SW-2, HF-150, BC-794 (Hammarlund Super Pro SP-200 variant), FRG-7, and a room full of Hallicrafters, Panasonics, Grundigs, Motorolas and General Electrics.

Now that most of the postings to this group are either political or wacko driven. Has someone found a "refuge" group where the topic is still shortwave radio with no politics or wackos?
Please, feel free to respond directly to my e-mail if you know of such place.
Thanks.

Lose the fucking [Shift] key, willya?

''The words "In God We Trust" were not consistently on all U.S. currency until 1956, during the McCarthy Hysteria.

The Treaty of Tripoli, passed by the U.S. Senate in 1797, read in part:

"The government of the United States is not in any sense founded on the Christian religion."

The treaty was written during the Washington administration, and sent to the Senate during the Adams administration. It was read aloud to the Senate, and each Senator received a printed copy. This was the 339th time that a recorded vote was required by the Senate, but only the third time a vote was unanimous (the next time was to honor George Washington). There is no record of any debate or dissension on the treaty. It was reprinted in full in three newspapers - two in Philadelphia, one in New York City. There is no record of public outcry or complaint in subsequent editions of the papers.''

Panasonic RF2900 portable SW receiver in very good condition with original manual. Antenna is slightly bent, otherwise in great condition. I just plugged it in for the first time in years and it sounds terrific. AM, FM, SW, BFO, RF Gain, Dual speed Digital tuning, lighted tuning meter, Bass, Treble, MPX Jack, Ext Spkr Jack, and Rec Out Jack. You can own it for $200 plus $20 shipping. If interested, contact pcjnk@pacbell.net.

He's nothing more than another psycho opportunist using religion to make a buck. Anyone who buys into tv evangelism is in poor shape. I feel sorry for all the old people that get sucked into that crap and send their money to those pricks. Every one of them shows their true colors sonner or latter just like old Pat just did.

Must be in very good condition, reasonably priced. Sold mine a year ago, regetted it ever since.

Have for possible trade:

Two (2) Yaesu FRG - 7. Rough, not working, possibly for parts only.

KLOSS Model ONE Table Radio. Like new

FANFARE FM-2G FM antenna works great with Model ONE radio to bring in hard to get FM stations

Sony ICF-SW100. Works intermittently

That is the weakest fucking excuse for turning the country over to psychotic ghost lovers I've ever seen.

Shit like ''year of our lord'' and the ''in god we trust'' on the money is repeated so often it has lost any intrinsic meaning.

If you had an open, inquisitive and rebellious mind you'd understand the way the founders thought a lot better. Read their writings. They were talking about freedom from dogma.

Being aware of it's "listener base" is not the same as once being a radio station with a recognized reputation for broadcasting good programs to a wide audience. I'm sure that Radio Posse Comitatus is also aware of it's "listener base".

Rulers who wish to subvert the public liberty may have found an Experience witnesseth that ecclesiastical establishments, instead of maintaining the purity and efficacy of religion, have had a contrary operation. During almost fifteen centuries has the legal establishment of Christianity been on trial. What has been its fruits? More or less, in all places, pride and indolence in the clergy; ignorance and servility in the laity; in both, superstition, bigotry and persecution. [James Madison, A Memorial and Remonstrance, addressed to

Yes, the matching National HRO-500 radio commands prices that seem equally silly to non-collectors like myself. But, who am I to argue

This .sig file will continue until Mister Fort posts a sincere apology to all cancer victims and their families. His refusal to do so says more about his attitude and upbringing than any of his thoughtless and hurtful postings in rec.radio.shortwave. He seems to be very proud of the fact that he can buy expensive radios using the refunded deposit money from his empty beer containers and has frequently posted the fact. It appears he is well on his way to purchasing his next radio. Anyone caring about his well-being should mention the good work of Alcoholics Anonymous to him.

just got my Sony 7600GR and ready to start listening.
So far unsuccessful in tuning to anything except for local AM and FM stations (of course it's a possibility that im not dialing in correctly; the guide is talking not only about the frequency but also about power of the station, that shouldnt matter though, right?) Just wondering which english speaking station in far away land is on right now.

PS: far away land is anything outside of Americas.

Just find a real news server so you can use kill filters. Take out a half dozen of the wackos and over half the posts disappear.

The search yields "astize" hits all in French, one hit relative to an Iranian Embassy. The French would pronounce the word "asteez." I heard astize, as in " has ties."

Maybe I misheard this, after all. The word can still be "the sties," the ties." But the announcer was speaking so crisply, I doubt the sounds ventured too far from "astize."

Has anyone heard this voice? I have never picked up anything close or so sexy, though it's still intriguing.

English language broadcasts all day http://www.primetimeshortwave.com look on the left for "SW schedules sorted by time"

All broadcasts
http://www.eibi.de.vu get the bc-a05.txt file

SW reception conditions have been less than favorable lately.
I had one good day in the last week. Keep trying. A good test might be any of the China Radio International broadcasts out of Canada targetted at parts of North America. Then you'll know the radio is functioning. Don't use the SSB switch unless you are trying for an SSB broadcast (i.e. AFRTS). Turn "up" the attenuator wheel, and adjust it the other way if you get a signal that overloads.
Generally speaking, night reception is better. Try at night. Also, try any of the WWV time signals... 5000, 10000, 150000 kHz... to test if SW is working. If you're in the eastern time zone and reading this just after it's posted tune in 9580 kHz to hear Radio Australia.
I get a good signal from them each morning until after sunrise.

More power to them, but how are they competing with India and China? Are they working for 16 cents an hour instead of the 17 cents they get in China? Giving up their pension plan? Giving up their health care? I'm not saying there aren't occasional exceptions, but generally speaking, how can we possibly compete with countries that pay pennies per hour and offer zero benefits and have zero environmental rules?

How many people frequent this group actually don't have a radio? We all know Honkus does not have a radio but who else does not and what are they going to get if they get one?

When you see someone like that struting down the street it's easy to see that they suffer from 'stereo 'tardism'.

Another question one might ask is 'who has a radio and hasn't a clue as to how to operate it'.

Is there actually a labor dispute at RCI? RCI's HQ is in Montreal and I believe the CBC lockout does not effect the union in Quebec.

Of course, most of the English language programming on RCI comes out of CBC, Toronto (on lockout) and someone said the SRC (French) reporters are refusing to cross picket lines to report on Parliament on the Ontario side of the Ottawa River.

Do you want to see the unreasoning compulsion that addiction has? Ask a devoted Cubs fan to not watch or talk about the Cubs for a week during baseball season. Ask a party animal to stop hitting the bars for a week. Or better yet, you try to stop posting to r.r.s. for a week.

I've seen people who are addicted to e-mail get nervous and figety if they can't access e-mail for a day or so; I've seen coffee drinkers try to go cold turkey and turn into a quivering mass of goo within a couple of hours. Those are the "lighter" addictions, compared to meth, crack, marijuana and heroin.

Once you've seen or experienced addiction, you won't be so certain that people can handle themselves in a reasonable manner with full and complete freedom.

It would be difficult indeed to find a household that didn't have at least one radio. If you are talking about shortwave radios a question with potentially more interesting answers might be: How many shortwave radios do you own and which ones do you use most frequently.

I presume you mean to display a frequency vs. signal strength graph... the answer is yes -- they are called panoramic adaptors or panadaptors. A more general device would be a spectrum analyzer, used as a panadaptor.

You can expect to pay about $1500 for a new one, and at least one is being made today. I bought one for about $100 and was only marginally satisfied. I bought a spectrum analyzer for $300 that does a much better job.

I have a Sony 2010 and an original release 2001, mostly the 2001 stays in it's box now as I'm storing it.

But I also have a Yaesu FT-840 which gets more use listening than

I find I use that far more often.

Nice radio, I owned a 2010 for about 8 years and really loved it.

Current stable is:

Kenwood R5000, which sits more than it gets used.

Panasonic RF-B600, which gets used a fair amount on shortwave and FM.
Some of the nicest audio I've heard from a radio with a built in speaker.

Degen DE1103, which gets used a lot on all bands. Really an amazing little radio for the price.

Sony ICF 7700, is a slightly larger earlier version of the Degen DE1103. Doesn't get used much because the keys are getting to sticky to use.

National 100ASD which I inherited from my father doesn't get used at all. Great example of what communication receivers once weighed and looked like.

Huh?

...and the governor of our fair state has what to do with and has what control over HP, Kodak, United, Delta, Northwest, and the S&P and Moody's bond rating services? I was referring to the National economy, not Michigan's (because I assumed that most people realize HP, Kodak, Obviously, in your case, I was wrong).

Methinks you are using a little too broad of a brush calling everyone in the SE of the state a "kook" (but how can we forget?--name calling is your forte and main stock in trade). Presumably, you are implying that NO ONE in the great SW portion of our great state voted for her. Yeah,

So what's yer point? Cuhulin said the economy was good. I contend it ain't that good. I brought up facts to make my point. You didn't

Gee, what a big surprise.

R8B: Used a lot. My overall favorite.

7030+: Used a lot. Wonderful tuning knob. Great notch, too.

Lowe HF-150: Used a lot. Love it for broadcast listening. Also good on SSB, with great stability and 8 hz tuning increments

Sony ICF-SW77: Used occasionally. Equal to the 2010, so far as I can tell--at least in its later incarnations. Not good on FM, but I consider that a virtue Sony ICF-7600GR: Used a lot. This is what I keep by the bed. I listen to talk radio on it at night.

Then you'd better go and do a serious stomp on a Christian theology called Dominionism. Dominionists believe the inverse of what you accused David of, that ONLY Christians should have power.

(Well, given the utility of the various Jewish government functionaries over the last century or two, some Dominionists generalize this to "People of the Book". Which puts them in a bit of a bind these days, as that may include Muslims, too).

As I understand it, Pat Robertson is a Dominionist. And you'll find, if you start digging into the real beliefs of the people running a number of the American Fundamentalist sects, that a large percentage of them are Dominionists, too.

Total bullshit. There were people in Iraq unable to locate any Blood comes from the heart. Love is an extreme emotion practiced by little girls and homosexuals.

Patriotism is an allegiance to the country and a strong urge to protect it from all enemies foreign and DOMESTIC.

You have a childish outlook on things. You remind me of the Wally George school of ''thought lite''.

Being a good American requires that you be informed and be willing to confront wrongdoers, whether you voted for them or not.

It doesn't mean draping a big pile of shit in red, white and blue bunting and proclaiming it ''macaroni''.

Doesn't the Lord reserve exclusive right to vengeance?

A suitable response to 9-11 would not have included shipping the Bin Laden family out of the country on September 13th.

A suitable response to 9-11 would not include starting a war with a totally unconnected 3rd party that you were already looking for an excuse to invade.

Revenge for revenge is aka cycle-of-violence.

I have a SP-600 (with digital readout) connected to a Hammarlund HC-10 unit - a killer combo for MW. I also have the R-8B, Sony 7600GR and R-390A (looking to sell it). I sold the HQ-180C a few weeks ago.

Other equipment includes: KIWA MW loop, Quantum loop, Quantum phaser, modified MFJ-1026 phaser, SGC PowerClear DSP, MFJ-784B DSP and Palstar MW550P tuner/preselector.

If you can find a re-capped SP-600 in good condition that doesn't cost and arm-and-a-leg, go for it!

Hallicrafters S20R -- Partially taken apart; one of these days I'll finish fixing it up.

Hallicrafters SX-100 -- Runs okay; this winter I'll start recapping it. I've only listened to it a couple of times since I bought it at Dayton this year; I'd rather not blow something inadvertently.
It's a Mk I, so I have to find the right manual for it first.

Realistic DX-440 -- Still in good shape. Listen to it rarely, but when I do, I let the kids play with it so that they can find interesting things to listen to.

Grundig Sat 800 -- Main workhorse; in great shape.

Maybe in the next year or two, I'd like to add one of the following:
Kenwood R-5000, Icom IC-R71A, Icom IC-R75, Drake R8, Drake R8A or Drake R8B. Okay, maybe more than one, but I'll need to finish the home office part of the basement first.

The K7RA Solar Update

SEATTLE, WA, Aug 26, 2005--There was a huge geomagnetic storm at mid-week. On August 24 a large coronal mass ejection (CME) struck Earth, and the resulting geomagnetic storm stimulated bright aurora borealis visible as far south as Utah and Colorado.

The energy for all this emerged from fast-growing sunspot 798, which released two M-class solar flares on August 22. The planetary K index actually got up to 9 on August 24, and the planetary A index reached 110. The solar flux on the day of the flare rose nearly 60 points to 157.3--a big number for this part of the solar cycle.

During the same hour that one of the flares erupted, Ray Bass, W7YKN, of Sparks, Nevada, reported an HF radio blackout. He wrote, "Forty meters appeared to have died for about an hour. Only one local station about five miles away, W6FHZ, could be heard. Even WWV and WWVH were very weak here."

Solar activity should be low for the next few days, and geomagnetic conditions quiet. Predicted solar flux for Friday, August 26 through the following Monday is 95, 95, 90 and 90. Predicted planetary A index for those same days is 15, 8, 8 and 10.

Last week we mentioned some links to sites showing 6 meter E layer propagation over a number of years, all shown cumulatively by day of the year. This gives us some idea of what times of the year are best for this. Robert Mobile, K1SIX, of New Hampshire has a Web page with many more of these types of charts over many paths.

Another reader sent in an article from NASA about advances in space weather forecasting.

Finally, I'd like to note the passing of Phil Klass, who died August 9 at 85. Although I don't think Phil was ever a ham, he is credited with coining the term "avionics" as an aviation journalist. He was an editor of Aviation Week and Space Technology. I had the pleasure of his acquaintance, and subscribed to his newsletter for many years. The newsletter and his many wonderful books covered his research into aerial optical phenomena and how this and human error often were behind reports of objects in the air which otherwise could not be identified.

For more information concerning radio propagation and an explanation of the numbers used in this bulletin see the ARRL Technical Information Service Propagation page. An archive of past bulletins is on the ARRL Web site.

Sunspot numbers for August 18 through 24 were 42, 61, 74, 77, 85, 55 and 87, with a mean of 68.7. The 10.7 cm flux was 82.7, 93.1, 98.1, 98.5, 157.3, 112.3 and 98.6, with a mean of 105.8.
Estimated planetary A indices were 16, 7, 5, 8, 12, 9 and 110, with a mean of 23.9. Estimated mid-latitude A indices were 9, 6, 2, 5, 7, 7 and 72, with a mean of 15.4.

Well, actually, I don't "now" what you're talking about and apparently you don't "now" what you are talking about, either.

I was making a point about the national economy and the sorry financial state of companies around the country and you start blathering on about a "left-wing import from CanaDuh" (presumably our illustrious guv and former California beach bunny) and insulting everyone from SE Michigan (which, in case you haven't figured it out yet, didn't have a damn thing to do with the topic).

I find it hard to believe that someone can have the limited mental capacity that you appear to have. You just gotta be smarter than that. I
always said you were a master baiter) or some kind of a stooge for the gummint.

> Now run along, and pretend you're DX'ing.

Anytime you want to compare DXCC countries worked/confirmed, we'll see who is pretending...(but don't be too surprised when your self-appointed "aCE" title falls flat on its face) ;-)

Sat800 on 90meter off center feed antenna. Used almost daily.

National NC-125 recently retubed, recapped and realined. shares 90 meter antenna. Used a couple of times a week. A friend of 30 years standing.

YB400PE on 80 meter dipole Used a couple of times a week. Just got it two weeks ago.

Wells-Gardiner BC-348Q recently retubed and tweeked, was on the 80 meter dipole, now waiting for a G5RV to be raised after the leaves fall. Used almost daily until I got the YB400PE.

National NC-183. Shelf queen, I've got the the audio section recapped and working well, but have still un-diagnosed problems in the AVC section.

Viking Ranger. Shelf queen. Worked last time I fired it up...15 years ago. Will bring it up slow on a variac after the G5RV is up.

KWM-2 Shelf queen. Needs serious diagnostics; will have to wait until after I retire.

Not refusing. They are in the Media Guild when working outside of Quebec. Emmanuelle LaTraverse, SRC's TV Ottawa correspondent
(new since May 2005) is also president of the Ottawa Parliamentary Press Gallery.

They are locked out. CBC Montreal is providing (very localized) feeds to the managers of radio and TV across the country, as all the external French services are locked out too.

See for example:
http://scfp.qc.ca/modules/nouvelles/nouvelle.php?id=669&langue=fr

http://www.cyberpresse.ca/arts/article/article_complet.
php?path=/arts/article/24/1,144,248,082005,1139613.php for the rally from Ottawa in Montreal, with Bernard Derome's blessing.

And a blog on the rally, the lockout and the situation in the new Sparks street studio in Ottawa at:

HF-150s are not prone to drift. Are you sure you want to start tweaking the alignment? Usually drift is caused by a thermal inconsistency in the circuit. I would have it checked by a qualified tech.

The ''enemy'' is always crazy and irrational.

Our behaviour reinforces what their extremists say. We are making the radicalism worse by attacking uninterested 3rd parties and thus proving to the Muslim world that we are just as bonkers as they are.

You can't have a war without insane extremists on both sides.

Yep, like David says, it's a portable version of the R-390. I do have a DX-390. I thinks it's made by Sangean. It seems a little deaf too. I use it mainly for the garage beater. I take it outside and use it

In case you hadn't noticed 'tard boy, this is not an amateur radio group per se.
This is a shortwave group, and using the NASWA Country List I have 216 countries
QSL'd and 235 heard. That's shortwave broadcast, 'tard boy. Wanna compare

This one has a LF beat/slow hum/growl when in the S modes. You can zero it (incidentally the display rolls over just as lock is achieved-it'll read 1 Hz off when perfectly tuned) but in a few minutes it'll start creeping away. Only noticeable with a worthy bass-capable sound system.

I am a qualified tech. I just do not have an SOP to go by.

Hi Eric: I am not talking about a signal streghth or SWR meter as most radio will have. It more like a scope or radar giving pattern information on the reciving attena. I was wondering if there was a device that could tell you from which dirrection and pattern the signal comming from and how.

In the Now Your talking Book, their is a diagram of attenas patterns. I thought their must be some kind of a device for giving this information.

I've seen too many WW2 movies. LOL!

Ha, no thanks. I know better than to try to get involved with things like interventions on people I don't know.
All I was trying to point out was the major failing of ideas to make everything legal, like highly addictive drugs and whatnot. That failing is that not everyone can act rationally, particularly not wrt to addictions.

Sure...parts is parts and countries is countries...only diff is one-way or two-way, but still a country.

273 worked overall

268 confirmed--(haven't had the time to send in the updates to the ARRL yet--maybe this winter).

Status as of three years ago: (worked/confirmed/checked by third party-ARRL/ certificates on the wall)

CW DXCC = 181

MIXED DXCC = 233

Check it out in your annual ARRL DXCC Yearbook.

 SAY GOODBYE TO K1MAN FOLKS !!!!! ***

ENFORCEMENT: FCC SETS ASIDE K1MAN LICENSE RENEWAL
(from the ARRL Letter)

The FCC has confirmed that the agency has set aside the license renewal application of Glenn Baxter, K1MAN, of Belgrade Lakes, Maine. This after routinely granting it on July 22nd.

As previously reported, Baxter received a $21,000 Notice of Apparent Liability from the agency which has not yet been paid. His current license expires on October 18th. In years past, if a person contested fine and his or her license expired during the period when the matter was being adjudicted, that person could continue to operate until a final determination was made.

That all changed in November of 2004 when the agency enacted the so-called "Red Light Rule" With the "Red Light Rule" in place, the FCC can decline to renew a license during the appeals process and order the person off the air once his or her current license expires.

The agency's July 25th notice to K1MAN was signed by Tracy Simmons who is Associate Chief for Licensing Operations of the Public Safety and Critical Infrastructure. Division of the FCC. In it, the FCC says that the set aside is for enforcement review purposes. Whether or not the regulartory agency will invoke the Red Light rule in Baxter's case won't be known until after October 18th unless he pays the NAL or settles the matter in another way before that date.

Back on November 1, 2004, the FCC's put its "Red Light" rule into effect. Under it, the agency must withhold action on applications and other requests for benefits when the applicant is shown in the FCC's database as being delinquent in non-tax debts owed to the Commission. This means that the regulatory agency will no longer accept applications from debtors, process their pending requests, or provide other benefits until the delinquency is resolved.

To make this work the Commission checks its records against each application under that applicant's federal registration number.

This, to determine if the applicant or any other entity using the same taxpayer identification number is delinquent in any debt owed to the Commission. If the Commission finds that the person to be a delinquent debtor, the request is "red lighted."
The Commission then stops the processing and notifies the applicant that he or she has 30 days to either pay the debt or make arrangements for payment of the debt. If payment arrangements or correction of the records is not made, the Commission will dismiss the application or request.

There are three extremely limited exceptions to this rule.
First, if the applicant through an attorney files a timely administrative appeal or has contested the existence or amount of the debt, the debt will not be considered delinquent under the red light rule until the order in question is final. Also, the FCC will not consider it to be an immediate debt if the automatic stay provisions of the United States Bankruptcy Code have been invoked and are deemed to be applicable in a given case.
Lastly, the Commission will process applications for emergency or special temporary authority involving safety of life or property including national security emergencies.
Other than these, the delinquent applicant either must pay up or take the chance of loosing his or her ability to continue on the air.

Well, though I understand what you're getting at, you're argument here is not sound. In the cases you refer to, no, the family members of these individuals obviously should not be punished for the atrocities committed; however, should they at the very least be questioned by authorities? I would certainly ask no less.

Dear Tom,

I own one of these receivers. I purchased it in 1983. Right out of the box it was somewhat disappointing. Its tuning is in 1, 3, 10, and 30 kHz steps. I do not know what the designers were thinking when they failed to include a 5 kHz step. The 30 kHz step is really useless and the 3 kHz step is of some use only for MW DXing the European MW fequencies.

The radio "chugs" badly when tuning (as you've no doubt experienced). Its scanning is slow and noisy. My unit stops on a frequency 1 kHz above the actual transmitted one (e.g. 5976 instead of 5975 kHz).

Its sound quality is mediocre as is its SSB reception. Adjacent-channel interference is annoying and selective-fading distortion, for which there is no remedy, is likewise annoying.

All that said, it is a relatively decent portable radio and can still be used to good advantage. It is quite sensitive. Selectivity, as noted above, is disappointing but IF rejection appears to be quite good; it is the only triple-conversion portable receiver ever made, as far as I know.

Do not try to use it with alkaline batteries; it is a "battery-eater." Buy some C-size NiMH batteries and a suitable charger (2 sets of batteries are ideal). I have a C. Crane QuickCharger which works very well. For the two AA computer-memory batteries, you can use alkaline ones; they last two or three years. I hope you have the AC cord. This is the way to use the radio if you are near an AC outlet.

It was my first "digital" SW radio and I used it for many years until finally "retiring" it in 1998. It is the only SW radio I own for which I do not have the original box (it got lost in one of several moves). I do have the manual. The radio is simple enough to figure out that you don't really need it. F1 and F2 are memories for starting and stopping bandscanning. They are user programmable. For example if you wanted to scan the 31 meter band, you woud program 9300 kHz into F1 and 10100 into F2. When you press the scanning button, those are the frequencies that would be scanned. Manual scanning allows you to stop manually and Auto scanning has the radio stop on the first heard frequency of suitable strength (as I mentioned, on my unit, 1 kHz above the actual frequency). The radio also has in effect 12 memories for selected frequencies; there are 6 for AM (MW and SW combined) and 6 for FM. It's all pretty straightforward by today's standards, though fairly advanced for 1983.

Note that the Uniden CR-2021 is exactly the same receiver save for the S-meter which is LED on the Uniden and analog (superior) on the Realistic.

I remember when the Uniden was being closed-out for $79.95 but, frankly, I was so disappointed in the Realistic (for which I paid $249.95) that I didn't "bite."

My main receiver remained my 1962 Lafayette HE-10 until I bought my Grundig Satellit 800 in 2000.

I am presently on vacation and will not have access to the radio or manual until I get home (middle of September) but if you have any specific questions that "jog" my memory, I shall be happy to try to answer them. Note that I won't be monitoring this (or any) newsgroup consistently during my vacation; there are too many other things to do!

Good luck with your radio.

Dear Tom,

One other very important characteristic I forgot to mention is the fact that batteries seem to have "grown" in size since 1983. When you put the C batteries in the (hidden) battery compartment, it becomes somewhat difficult to remove them, especially the last one of the six C-cells. (This was not the case in 1983; the batteries just slid out easily at that time.)

I use a curved dental pick to reach into the compartment to get that last battery out.

I also want to mention that the radio really benefits from an external antenna. Its whip, while adequate for casual listening or for travel, is not suitable for true DXing. (Be VERY careful with that whip; you can't replace it. I was able to "fix" mine, which became loose and "flopped" over, by taking it apart and replacing the washers, which I found at a local hardware store. The "fixing" was accompanied by some colorful language. I'm glad, however, that I was able to do this as there appears to be no replacement whip available.)

Again, the best of luck.

SOP? WTF does "Standard Operating Procedures" or "Standard Operating Practices" have to do with troubleshooting, repairing or aligning a receiver if you are not working under ISO-9000 type facilities?

A real tech would want a service manual with complete alignment instructions, or at the very least a block diagram showing the frequencies at each stage and schematic to create an effective alignment procedure that allows you to quickly and accurately align a reviver. I should know, I have written enough of them for production line techs.

I have a NC-183R rack mount version that needs a complete restoration after someone did a nasty re-cap job with bundles of caps taped together and hanging off the chassis with wads of wire. I am waiting till I get a better digital camera to take lots of closeup photos so that anyone

What does your church have to do with your computers for veterans project?

You keep telling us about this as if there might be something we can do.

Just curious.

Where are you using this radio? Is something in your surroundings spoiling reception? Do you hear more on it if you take it outside? Does the reel antenna help?

There are used Microdyne Spectrum displays floating around E-bay and other surplus sources but you do not want them for a HF receiver. They are made for real broadband applications in microwave Telemetry systems. You would have to do a major redesign on the RF and IF circuits to convert one to work with a HF radio and the CRT cost well over $1000, if you can even buy one now that L3-Com dropped the Microdyne products that supported their spectrum display. They go cheap, but they are no bargain unless all you want is the CRT and HV power supply. They require a couple amps on each of the 15 volt power supplies, and are made to fit in the older receivers as a plug-in, or in a rack mount accessories tray. They are not intended to be operated outside of an approved cabinet because the HV power supply is exposed on the Chassis, and it can kill.

I don't ''give them Hell'', I just tell the truth.

''"He was thinking about invading Iraq in 1999," said author and Houston Chronicle journalist Mickey Herskowitz. "It was on his mind.
He said, 'One of the keys to being seen as a great leader is to be seen as a commander-in-chief.' And he said, 'My father had all this political capital built up when he drove the Iraqis out of Kuwait and he wasted it.' He went on, 'If I have a chance to invadeï¿½, if I had that much capital, I'm not going to waste it. I'm going to get everything passed that I want to get passed and I'm going to have a successful presidency.'"

Bush apparently accepted a view that Herskowitz, with his long experience of writing books with top Republicans, says was a common sentiment: that no president could be considered truly successful without one military "win" under his belt. Leading Republicans had long been enthralled by the effect of the minuscule Falklands War on British Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher's popularity, and ridiculed Democrats such as Jimmy Carter who were reluctant to use American force. Indeed, both Reagan and Bush's father successfully prosecuted limited invasions (Grenada, Panama and the Gulf War) without miring the United States in endless conflicts.

Herskowitz's revelations illuminate Bush's personal motivation for invading Iraq and, more importantly, his general inclination to use war to advance his domestic political ends. Furthermore, they establish that this thinking predated 9/11, predated his election to the presidency and predated his appointment of leading neoconservatives who had their own, separate, more complex geopolitical rationale for supporting an invasion.''

Loctite helps on loose metal antenna screws and nuts threads after you tighten the screws and nuts up real good first.But,dont get any Loctite on plastic!,it will melt the hell out of some plastics.I know this from personal experience when I sloshed some Loctite on the screws of the tail light lenses metal screws to a 1974 Ford/Mazda pickup truck I used to own.The next morning,the plastic tail light lenses were lying in the dirt.

An addictive personality will find something. Meth, internet porn, hamburgers, etc. All the same in that they have a potential for abuse that will readily be exploited by someone who's so predisposed.

Drug abuse is a symptom of something more internal.

Technically since the lamp is intended for household use, it should be FCC Class B certified. If you can hear it from more than about 10 meters away, it probably is not Class B, and consequently probably should be reported to the FCC.

I had a problem with a 175 watt HID, but that thing was never intended for residential use (I ultimately fixed it by building a 2 section low pass filter between the line cord and the ballast assembly). It had a cutoff at about 500Khz to keep the cap and inductor sizes reasonable.

No -- that sort of plot can be generated by a sophisticated antenna system along with an equally sophisticated radio, but to do it "automagically" would be a little more difficult.

Now, someone could write software to electrically or physically turn a very directional antenna and generate a signal strength vs. direction polar plot -- in fact, something similar to that is done on antenna measuring ranges, but it is non-trivial and you couldn't listen very well while it did the plot.

No, what I was referring to was a Strength vs. Frequency plot, along the lines of the two graphs you see in this image:

Vinyl Cafe' on CBS' Pilot Menu
(Tuesday, March 16, 2004, 11:14 AM)
LOS ANGELES (Zap2it.com) - "Everybody Loves Raymond" creator Phil Rosenthal is opening a "Vinyl Cafe" at CBS.

Rosenthal will serve as an executive producer of the animated show, based on stories by Canadian author and radio personality Stuart McLean, the Hollywood trade papers report. The show will center on an offbeat family that owns a record store in Toronto.

McLean's CBC radio show includes vignettes about -- Vinyl Cafe owner Dave, wife Morley and kids Sam and Stephanie -- and he's also written several books of short stories about the family.
Rosenthal will write the pilot with "Raymond" colleague Steve Skrovan, actor-director Saul Rubinek ("Frasier," "Jerry and Tom") and Elinor Reid. All four will serve as executive producers. CBS has ordered a pilot presentation for the show from Paramount TV; if it gets a series order, "Vinyl Cafe" would likely debut in midseason next year.

The order of the pilot presentation is not connected to the fate of "Raymond," which CBS is hoping to bring back for a ninth and final season in the fall.

CBS' history with animation in primetime is spotty at best. The network aired the much-derided "Fish Police" for two weeks in 1992; the following year, the Tim Burton-Steven Spielberg collaboration "Family Dog" aired for about a month. Since then the network has stuck with live-action fare
Maybe the sun will go nova to prevent this really bad idea from taking root.

And then I saw the date, "(Tuesday, March 16, 2004, 11:14 AM)", and I started to breath again.
I mean TV would ruin a sewage plant.

That's funny. You made me laugh out loud.

I bought about 10 pounds of miscellaneous hardware at a surplus sale about 15 years ago and that cut my trips to the screw drawers at Sand Canyon Hardware to almost none. Lots of little lockwashers. Split and star. I like the star type for antenna screws.

The DE1106 is a standard-interface version of the DE-1103, but you can't buy it. Eton has licensed it and it will be sold this fall by them.

Hmmm. I don't see these on ebay very often:

http://cgi.ebay.com/PALSTAR-R-30CC-SHORTWAVE-RECEIVER_W0QQitemZ5801694108QQcategoryZ15051QQssPageNameZWDVWQQrdZ1QQcmdZViewItem

There's also an R-30 up for auction. I've heard that these receivers have incredible sound. It sure would be interesting to compare them to a Lowe HF-225 or HF-150.

The programming consists mainly of music so bad that it needs a strike in order to be played. dxAce is downright exciting in comparison, as are used toothpicks and discarded chewing gum.

I miss As it Happens, despite their sometimes obnoxious interview gaffs ands interruptions of the guests. The Six o'clock news is another missed show.

used fresh batteries instead of rechargeables. attached wire antenna to the telescopic antenna. Using ATT and letting the radio do searching for me. So it was a problem with the user

They are both very good sounding receivers. Both of them sound very similar, with the HF-150 sounding slightly better. Sensitivity is about the same, with the R30 having better dynamic range. Whereas the selectivity in the Lowe receivers is obtained through the use of more inexpensive Murata CFWS 6-element ladder filters, the R30 uses either high grade 11-element filters or mechanical filters. The exception is the SSB bandwidth; both of the receivers use 11-element filters.
The Lowe receivers use a 45 to 75MHz VCO for the synthesizer while the R30 uses a 360 to 600MHz VCO and divides it by 8 to obtain the 45 to 75MHz LO. The advantage here is that the phase noise is divided down by the division factor.
Construction is good on both receivers.....the HF-150 uses an anodized aluminum case while the Palstar uses chromated aluminum for the chassis, very similar to the R.L. Drake receivers.
In my opinion, you can't go wrong with either receiver. My main listening band is MW, and both receivers do a fine job on that band. Neither of them have that full-time attenuator on the MW band the way the FRG-100 and the R75 do (these are easily removed).
I know that the HF-150s are going on eBay for the 500 to 600 dollar range......for that amount of money, I would favor the R30. If you can find an unbroken 150 in the 400 dollar range, you are doing ok.
The thing to be careful about when purchasing an HF-150 (or any Lowe receiver for that matter) is to make sure that the sensivity is ok. The 1st mixer is easily damaged, and the SL-6440 device is relatively hard to get ahold of, unless you want to buy 25 at a time. There is a fellow in New York that sells them for about 90 dollars a rail. There are others that are trying to sell a rail of 25 of them for upwards of 250 dollars (not a good deal).
The other failure mode with the Lowe receivers is that 14569 divider chip that divides down the MCU's reference oscillator for the BFO injection frequencies. This chip is being run near its design limit, and occasionally it will fail. Relatively cheap at just under a dollar at Digi-Key. (Digi-Key also has those push button switches that are used on the Lowe and AOR7030 receivers).
The final thing that I discovered about the Lowe receivers is a 100uF cap at the output of the 8V regulator that fails. When this happens, the audio will howl. This is not to be confused with the microphonic condition that occurs with the internal speaker when the receiver volume is cranked up.
I hope this hasn't painted a dim picture of Lowe receivers.....I have both the HF-150 and the HF-225, and I would consider them keepers. Just check them out carefully when you buy them. They are great receivers.
I hope this helps.

Hi,
> How many shortwave radios do you own and which ones do you use most > frequently >

I currently have a Sat-800 (I got a "good" one), YB-400PE and a DX-398 and their frequency of use is in the same order listed. Techincally I also have a DX-394B which is "on loan" to my best friend and a Mini-100 which is also "on loan" to my Chiropractor. I had a YB-300PE for a few weeks after which the YB-400PE went on sale for the same price as the YB-300 PE- needless to say I didn't waste any time upgrading :)

I started out with s DX-375 just before a back operation in 1999 - it was on sale and since I was going to be in the hospital for a few eeks, I said why not. Needless to say I got hooked and a few months after the operation I got a DX-394B. Prior to that I was into SWL with my parents black Zenith TransOceanic in the late 60's and very early 70's. I never saw the Zenith again after I graduated from collenge in 1972 and moved to another city.......

The information I've seen indicates the DE1105 only begins coverage of shortwave at 5.8mhz! And it apparently doesn't handle ssb. I would look at the DE1102 for a highly compact radio with better frequency coverage. Or the DE1103 for complete frequency and mode coverage.

Precautions!
The most common failures of the HF150 and HF225 occur after local electrical storms. With the HF150 the first mixer (Q22 SL6440C) fails causing the set to have low sensitivity and overload easily. With the HF225 you get no operation over half the frequency range. Diode D1(BA244 or any low capacitance switching diode) has probably failed, this is in one corner inside the tin box enclosure.

Unplug the antenna during electrical storms!

A full range of spares is still available. We are happy to carry out repair work on any of the models we've manufactured.''

The Republican War on Science
by Chris Mooney

America has long prided itself on its dynamic industrial and scientific innovation. We boasted of our investment in research to produce new technology, products and medical breakthroughs, because we were a country always moving forward. Born of a revolution that rejected the stultifying constraints of Monarchist governments, we were unleashed to invent a future without constraints.

So historians, in a few years, may look back on the era of right wing Republican rule and wonder how we became saddled with a government that is intent on moving the nation backwards instead of forwards. It's as if you were a passenger in a car speeding down the expressway at 60 miles per hour and suddenly the driver threw the gear into reverse.

In this fascinating dissection of the "The Republican War on Science," author Chris Mooney skillfully explores what is behind the GOP attempt to turn a country on the cusp of innovation backwards into the Middle Ages of skepticism about science and evolution. Mooney guides the reader through this unfathomable undertaking that is an organized Republican effort to undo our national heritage of innovation and scientific advancements.

There are really two main forces at work in the Republican right, which has reached its pinnacle of power in the reign of George W. Bush, Dick Cheney and Tom DeLay. On the one hand, you have the extremist religious "base" that supports Bush no matter what his latest egregious failure or betrayal is. To them, science is an enemy because it, ipso facto, deals with discoveries, research and explanations of life and the world that conflict with literal interpretations of the Bible. Forget about the canard of "Intelligent Design," which is just another Frank Luntz euphemism -- in this case for creationism. The religious right fully endorses the war on science because science is born of human research, and human research inevitably comes into conflict with the fundamentalist interpretation of divine intent.

The second major camp behind Bush's war on science is the corporate world, particularly the depletable natural resources companies who are championed by Dick Cheney. They believe that science gets in the way of their pillaging and plundering the environment for a quick profit. If science proves, as it has, that global warming is accelerating rapidly, then what good is it? It will only lead these companies -- headed by big Republican contributors -- to a short-term reduction in profits. Or so they believe.

In Bush's world, as with the war in Iraq and economic forecasts, science is only of value when the books are cooked on research so as to support a specific Bush policy that either endears him to the fringe religious right or to the "loot and pollute" corporations.

In a tragically ironic way, these two Bush groups of supporters synergistically support each other. Because if the earth's environment is truly being destroyed by unfettered industrial pillaging, it might only hasten the Armageddon so ardently anticipated by the holy rollers. Who cares what happens to our planet, if "good Christians" will soon meet in heaven?

Bush is certainly a man with a lot of wars on his hands. But Mooney's book reminds us that the Iraq War shouldn't overshadow the severe damage that the Busheviks are doing to America's extraordinary heritage of scientific accomplishment. With a few more years, they will grind it into dust.

This is an Administration that wants us to return to a period before the Age of Enlightenment, which some might call the "Dark Ages.''

Communist organizers are set up in a house trailer in Crawford, TX. Their meetings closed to reporters.

http://abclocal.go.com/kgo/story?section=politics&id=3382521

Leading the group is Fenton Communications employee, Michele Mulkey, based in San Francisco. Fenton specializes in public relations for liberal Socialist & Communist non-profits.

Fenton Communications: Founded in 1982 by David Fenton, former writer and director of public relations for Rolling Stone magazine. David Fenton was a 1960s radical/anti-war protestor. Fenton began his "journalism" career as a photographer and media specialist for the Liberation News Service, which was named in admiration of and loyalty to the National Liberation Front of South Vietnam. The anti-American, Communist movement Fenton and his colleagues emulated called for the "overthrow [of] the camouflaged colonial regime of the American imperialists and the dictatorial power of Ngo Dinh Diem, servant of the Americans, and [to] institute a government of national democratic union [in Vietnam]."

Fenton's political ideology led him to become a member of the White Panther Party, the Caucasian counterpart of the infamous Black Panthers.

In the 60s and early 70s, Fenton snapped photographs for the Weathermen, a Communist-driven splinter faction of SDS, whose anarchistic national views led to their bombing of the National Guard offices in Washington, D.C., the U.S. Capitol building, the New York City Police Headquarters and the Pentagon.

The later 1970s saw Fenton's foray into the anti-nuclear movement. This Western "disarmament" movement greatly pleased the Soviet Union.

By the 1980s, Fenton was becoming a star himself. He was recruited to shape and mold the public perceptions of Communist-led governments and Marxist guerillas alike. The year 1986 found Fenton in the throes of the Communist-led Angolan government's Bureau of Information and Propaganda. He was hired to smear a right-wing rebel group that the Angolan Communists had fought against for years.

Fenton did similar public relations work for Nicaragua's Sandinistas. The Communist-backed Sandinistas regarded themselves as leading a proletariat revolution in Nicaragua. Fenton showed them how to generate favorable opinion about their Marxist enterprise. Another Communist connection was Fenton's media work for Grenada's Prime Minister, Maurice Bishop. Bishop was a staunch supporter of Fidel Castro and his Marxist government in Cuba, and sought to impose that government's philosophy in his own homeland.

Arlie Schardt, a senior consultant at Fenton Communications and chairman for Environmental Media Services, served as Al Gore's national press secretary during his first presidential campaign.

Clients have also included major Democratic Party-supporting trial lawyer firms such as Milberg, Weiss, Bershad, Hynes & Lerach. Fenton Communications, in fact, has long been the P.R. firm of choice of the Association of Trial Lawyers of America.

Now you know why the Communist Democratic Party is keen to obstruct conservative Supreme Court nominations.

Other Fenton clients have been foundations that bankroll the Left, including the Democratic Party. Among these are the Heinz Family Foundation controlled by Massachusetts Senator John F. Kerry's wife Teresa Heinz Kerry, the John D. and Catherine T. MacArthur Foundation, CNN founder Ted Turner's Turner Foundation, the Tides Foundation, and the Open Society Institute of billionaire George Soros.

Their bills are being paid for by True Majority, a non-profit set up by Ben Cohen -- of Ben and Jerry's Ice Cream fame.

Ben and Jerry's Foundation
http://www.discoverthenetwork.com/funderProfile.asp?fndid=5323

Cohen's group has teamed up with Berkeley based MoveOn.org, an anti-Bush group co-founded by Joan Blades.

MoveOn shares the Shadow Party's general goal of using its fundraising clout to push the Democratic Party to the left - Communist. MoveOn PAC director Eli Pariser broadcast to the group's financial supporters on December 9, 2004. Regarding the Democratic Party, Pariser wrote, "Now it's our party: we bought it, we own it, and we're going to take it back."

MoveOn hired 32-year-old Zack Exley as MoveOn's organizing director. Exley was a hardened activist of the extreme Left. Trained by the AFL-CIO, he had worked as an undercover union organizer for five years, and also done a stint training activists for the Ruckus Society, an anarchist group whose violent tactics first caught the public eye during the 1999 riots against the World Trade Organization (WTO) meeting in Seattle.

Exley brought MoveOn into the antiwar movement. One of his ads that appeared in The New York Times labeled President Bush "a misleader" who had lied to the public about Iraq's weapons programs, and featured such spokesmen for the Left as Robert Byrd, Martin Sheen and Al Gore aggressively assailing the president.

Exley's hard-edged propaganda campaigns soon aroused the admiration of mainstream Democrats. In May 2003, the Howard Dean presidential campaign hired Exley away from MoveOn for two weeks in order to turbocharge Dean's Web operations. Exley finally left MoveOn for good in April 2004 to become

Director of Online Communications and Online Organizing for the Kerry-Edwards campaign.

George Soros and his associates poured nearly $6.2 million into MoveOn over a period of six months, according to the Center for Public Integrity.

34-year-old son Jonathan Soros, an attorney and financier recently promoted to deputy manager of Soros Fund Management LLC., has become personally involved with MoveOn.org's activities. In December 2003, he collaborated with techno-rocker Moby to organize "Bush in 30 Seconds," an online contest for the best 30-second anti-Bush TV ad. MoveOn agreed to air the winning commercial on national television. Among the 1,500-odd submissions to the contest were two ads juxtaposing footage of George W. Bush and Adolf Hitler. MoveOn posted these ads on its site.

Current Democratic National Party Chair Howard Dean's organization Democracy for America is also involved, as is the more radical anti-war group Code Pink organized by San Francisco's Medea Benjamin.

Code Pink was founded by four experienced activists and hardcore Communists - Jodie Evans, Medea Benjamin, Diane Wilson, and a radical Wiccan activist calling herself Starhawk. Ms. Evans is the nominal leader of the organization, which works closely with Medea Benjamin's group Global Exchange, which in turn maintains strong ties to the Communist Workers World Party (WWP). Code Pink also works hand-in-hand with United For Peace and Justice, whose leader Leslie Cagan is a longtime devotee of Fidel Castro and the Socialist Party USA. Throughout the 1990s, many of the Marxists currently working for Code Pink organized anti-free trade protests - some of them violent - and filed numerous high-profile lawsuits that forced American corporations to spend millions of dollars defending themselves.

During the last week of December 2004, Medea Benjamin announced in Amman, Jordan that Code Pink, Global Exchange, and Families for Peace would be donating a combined $600,000 in medical supplies and cash to the terrorist insurgents who were fighting American troops in Fallujah, Iraq.

The Communist Party marketing business!

Experience has proven that the politics of political prostitution works. In our busy world today, with the average American having the attention span of a gnat, the combination of a barrage of anti-freedom propaganda from the leftist media and the sad face of the anti-war pimp's political prostitute Cindy Sheehan is the perfect one-two punch to send support for the defense of freedom spiraling downward. But our freedom is too precious to fall prey to the political prostitution of a war protest.

http://www.pardonmyenglish.com/archives/2005/08/the_political_p.html

The following is a transcript of comments made by Cindy Sheehan at a pro-Lynne Stewart rally held on Wednesday, April 27, 2005 at San Francisco State University. Among the sponsors of the event were the INTERNATIONAL SOCIALIST ORGANIZATION, and the Campus Antiwar Network.

Cindy Sheehan - "I was raised in a country by a public school system that taught us that America was good, that America was just. America has been killing people, like my sister over here says, since we first stepped on this continent, we have been responsible for death and destruction. I passed on that bullshit to my son and my son enlisted. I m going all over the country telling moms: This country is not worth dying for."

The majority of SW preachers would say that most US Christianity is paganism. Of course, these guys don't often have actual buildings for churches, and have to broadcast across the entire hemisphere in order to scrape up the meager contributions in order to buy one more day's SW time at about a dollar a minute.

Brother Stair voices the Christianity/paganism viewpoint well. If you can hear him, I suggest you tune in the weeks before Halloween and Saturnalia (Christmas).

Wow. I wonder what the religious activists would say about that. On one hand, they're all for government subsidizing a religious interest. On the other hand, if they get school prayer, the kiddies might end up praying to the wrong God(s).

> Additionally in older towns you get dedicated

I have to think there's something like that in Chicago, although I'm not sure. I have known people who've claimed to be pagans, but that was back in the 70s post hippie era.

Were you in San Francisco? I have the impression that would be the most likely place for pagan stuff, at least the old world pagan stuff. I think a great many Americans who find themselves attracted to alternate religions look into Native American culture or Buddahism. Oh, yeah, let's not forget another favorite target of the SW preachers -- the Freemasons.

I'll bet there's plenty of items of a Native American religious interest in the US Southwest.

> Maybe this is the Catholic influence? But there are lots of European

The Catholics often co-opt paganism. For example, Mexican Catholics celebrate "The Day of the Dead". This celebration goes way back to the Aztecs. The Mexican Americans I talked with said it's still more Aztec than Catholic.

To a large degree, American culture was formed in the Colonial days by Protestants, particularly the then newest sort of Protestants such as the Puritians and other Reformed Christians. Purifying their church (and government!) from non-scripturial and pagan influences was a high priority.

The technological pride this country had is dwindling. Not only from this administration, but from companies moving it out to foreign countries, and a weakened higher education system because we value popstars, celebrities and athletes much more than engineers and scientists.

I had a very nice childhood! One of the most memorable things was not growing up in CanaDuh.

By the way, worthless and immature are quite descriptive of CanaDuh.

If you scan Chris C. Mooney's long list of Left-wing liberal "progressive" propaganda you will see his agenda:
http://www.amazon.com/exec/obidos/search-handle-url/index=books&rank=relevancerank&field-author-exact=Chris%20Mooney/104-7446743-7987952

"Extraordinary claims require extraordinary evidence."

That oft-quoted statement from Carl Sagan captures the essence of the scientific approach to knowledge. Before an idea can achieve the revered status of "theory," it must survive round after round of skeptical criticism.

The evidence supporting the existence of a partisan War on Science will never measure up to the Sagan criterion.

What does measure up is the evidence showing Chris C. Mooney's "Progressive" agenda.

Chris C. Mooney is Washington correspondent for Seed magazine and a senior correspondent for the American Prospect.

The American Prospect, Inc. "We incubate, train, and mentor young 'progressive' journalists," the site also says, "through our prestigious writing fellows program."

--- "Progressive" is a propaganda code word for Socialist. ---

Online The American Prospect, Inc. operates not only a digital version of its magazine and special reports but also a "public policy resource" of links coordinating and integrating it with at least 140 other activist "progressive" groups and web sites.

The American Prospect, Inc. Not-for-profit, tax-exempt organization that operates The American Prospect Magazine

Biggest funders include foundations controlled by Bill Moyers and George Soros

Put out at least one publication without informing readers its content was bought and paid for by a foundation to promote legislation

Its web project Moving Ideas promotes other "progressive" groups funded by foundations controlled by Bill Moyers and George Soros

The American Prospect apparently takes editorial dictation from its leftwing sugar daddies not only about what it publishes but also where it publishes.

Mooney has contributed to a variety of other publications in recent years, including Wired, Slate, Salon, Mother Jones, Legal Affairs, Reason, The American Scholar, The Washington Monthly, The Utne Reader, Columbia Journalism Review, The Washington Post, The Washington City Paper, and The Boston Globe.

Light bulbs are part 18 (Industrial/Scientific/Medical), not Part 15.
(At least that's what the GE brand ones said on the packaging). They also said not to use it in a location where there are radios used for emergency/safety services.

I had some pretty strange results. I'm using one of those 13 watt ones in my bedside lamp, and the RFI (mostly) went away when I reworked my power from a rats nest of extention cords to one power strip. Even though the lamp is closer, electrically, to the shortwave, the interference is much reduced.

So, interference may be related to the physically construction of the power wiring.

You do run into them every so often in European channels. There is a British dealer that gets them in. Dave Z picked up a very clean HF-250 a few months back. This receiver even had the Sync board and the whip amp board installed from the factory, as evidenced by the boxes that were checked off on its outer box. I still haven't been able to get ahold of one of them yet. The 150 is probably the best bang for the buck.....some folks are put off by the fact that it has only two bandwidths, but for me, that is fine. For MW listening, the wide bandwidth is fine.
Good luck on your quest!

In actuality, I love crushing the cans on my head. It's left a nice dent overtime and gotten me some great radios.

Also, I don have standards when it comes to beer drinking. It has to

The Harry Truman quote means it's easier to argue when you have the facts behind you.

You seem to have a defect in your reading faculties. I asked if the English had the right to steal oil.

Try to get this to stick:

There is a faction within the Bush Crime Family that wishes to control as much of the Earth's resources as possible. They also wish to squeeze as much filthy lucre as possible from the resources they wish to control.

I must have been doubly unlucky with the R-30 because I've had two of them and they were dogs! They both had massive birdies and an unstable IF, not to mention vastly inferior sensitivity to the HF-150 that I compared them with. I actually liked the feel and sound of the R-30s but even my old FRG-8800 ran circles around them.

I had back luck with mine too. A R30 with murata filters, made two wasn't impressed with the Palstar.

Indeed! Including the possibility that a "Superior Being" does exist and the Universe(s) are a reflection of "Its" Intelligent Design. Additionally, there is no extraordinary evidence that some type of "Superior Being" does or does not exist. Furthermore, there is no extraordinary evidence that ANY mortal human religion worships that "Superior Being".

To exclude the possibility that some type of "Superior Being" exists is as illogical as the belief that the Communist Party is the master of the Universe and its Center is located in Tiananmen Square. (That is exactly what the Chinese Communist Party believes.)

The motive behind Chris C. Mooney is clear - to propagandize the Republican Party as some kind of anti-science movement and attempt to lasso the cause into his "Progressive" (Socialist - atheist) sphere.

There is nothing more powerful than a laissez faire economy. And any scientist would give his right arm to profit from his discoveries no matter what political entity may happen to be office or what religion is in vogue. An attempt by any government (or religion) to squelch scientific discovery would simply result in the exodus of brilliant scientific minds with catastrophic results for that country. History is littered with fine examples. To think that that is the goal of the Republican Party is preposterous. I can think of few counties that are more scientifically laissez faire than the U.S.

Science needs moral and ethical checks equally as importantly as government. If some type of religion provides that socially acceptable moral and ethical reference than so be it. To exclude it would be disastrous.

"Extraordinary claims require extraordinary evidence." Extraordinary evidence that Chris C. Mooney does not have.

I can't understand Americans - surely when you join the American armed forces you are not signing up for a Sunday school picnic? Yet American parents allow their sons to voluntarily join the American armed forces and then are shocked when they are killed and call President Bush a murderer. I really can't figure that type of logic.

President Bush, freely elected by a large majority of American citizens, expresses the will of the American people.
For some of the views freely expressed by Americans in this NG you would be locked up in a stinking jail here in Africa and the keys thrown away. You would be had up for treason and sedition for those remarks.

President Bush, as Commander in Chief of the American Armed Forces, is carrying out the will of the majority of citizens and should be respected for that and given your loyalty. The remarks I see here in this NG I regard as unpatriotic and un-American, and in an earlier age Senator McCarthy would have had you up before the Senate House Committee on Un-American Activities.

You, being incapable of independent critical thought, dismiss as insignificant any information that doesn't make the news cycle on the corporatist mass media. Fact is, Gilligan, these points are starting to get traction. The people are starting to see the scales underneath the pasty white flesh.

The existence of a Superior Being is irrelevant. Science is science.

The Republican Party has been usurped by transnational corporatists who don't care what country their research comes from. They are finished with us. They have fresh growth curves to exploit. They were here before the USA and they will be here long after we are gone.

I can't understand Americans - surely when you join the American armed forces you are not signing up for a Sunday school picnic? Yet American parents allow their sons to voluntarily join the American armed forces and then are shocked when they are killed and call President Bush a murderer. I really can't figure that type of logic.

You must come from an engineering background if you expect ANY group of people to behave with anything remotely akin to logic. Mothers and fathers who lost a child seldom behave with calm clear reason. I am not taking sides, but as logical as your perspective is, it really doesn't apply to a people who have forgot that death is a constant companion to life. Here in the USA we have pushed death far from every day life. Cpmared to 200 or even 100 years ago very few young people die. Yea I know that car crashes are the nubmer 1 killer of teenagers. And to hear the anti gun lobby, you would expect every third child to die from gun violence. But the truth is kinder. Very few american children die. Parents ahve come to expect "their" kid will live have kids and do better economically then they did. The media does or did, such a good job showing aircraft blowing things up, that most people had no idea that after the bombs stopped falling young men(mainly) would have to walk on the ground. In an area where they would not be all that welcome. Combine the un commonness of death for young people, with the idea that somehow this, or any war, could be bloodless, it is easy to see why people are out of touch with reality.

Bush was first ''elected'' with fewer votes than Albert Gore. He was ''re-elected'' by a very slim electoral margin when Ohio put him over the top. Since then, many irregularities in the Ohio election have cast a nasty cloud over his alleged victory.

Our fighting forces sign-up to defend the country, not to enable twisted megalomanical fantasies. The excuse to invade Iraq was national defense. We now know that that was a trumped-up excuse.
That's why people are extra pissed-off. Bush lied.

Indeed, people who sign up voluntarily for the armed forces should expect that at any time they could give their lives.. this does NOT say that those young people's families are not entitled to grieve, or to disagree with the leadership or the particular war in which their offspring died.

As for the president, he may have been elected by a majority, but that also does not require that the minority has to like or even support him. The United States is, for the time being, a free country, where freedom of speech, thought, religion, etc. are guaranteed us by our Constitution and MOST of the laws of the land. Too bad about your rights, I wish you better in the future.

As for Senator McCarthy, his witchhunts were, in the outcome, roundly condemned, and rightly so, by a freedom loving people and their representatives.

It wouldn't have mattered who had triumphed. The tabled would have turned.
We live in a Republic and that is how it works. It works better than a pure Democracy which is what the Socialist/Progressive/Leftists are pushing. They wish to scrap the Republic.

To err on the side of prudence was brave and wise. Had we followed the path

the Socialist/Progressive/Leftists.

Well the ones that didn't vote for him have a right to speak out against what they don't believe in and with out the 1st amendment a true balance in our democratic system would not be possible and again I support it. And if they were put up on treason I would be one of the first to help push another

Cold beer rocks anywhere in the world! Just out of curiosity, and I don't know what brands you drink, how much would 500 mL of Becks and 710 mL of Heineken go for in your neck of the woods?

In case Telamon is reading, lets agree that beer cans can be used to make Beverage antennas ;-)

It is really quite simple, John. We have a right to free speach. Even if that speach is entirely illogical or incorrect and ignorant of historical fact. In which case it can be catagorized as propaganda. That propaganda has an agenda should be no surprise to you living in South Africa. You are keenly aware of its consequences if not balanced by freely and publically exchanged common sense logical argument.

Indeed the self-appointed experts of morality, ethics, strategic geo-politics and Real Politicks of the Leftwing faction of the populace is certainly getting increasingly annoying. The day may not be too far off when "appropriate action" may be necessary to preserve this Republic. If the threat is clear I trust they most certainly will.

Every bulb in my house is compact fluorescent.

I can hear the TIS at LAX from 45 miles away. Before they took over 530 I could hear the Mojave National Monument on that frequency, about 60 miles. On HF I copy aircraft from thousands of miles away quite reliably. I can get Bangalore every morning on 9690.

I often listen to WNYC 820 khz am around 4:00pm. That is about the time that NPR (National Public Radio) comes on.

I've notice that in the last year or so, WNYC 820 khz does not come in as clear as it use to. I've tune into the station from different radios and locations. Even a friend of mine in Brooklyn tells me the same thing.

On top of which, WABC 770 khz am is extremely powerful. I wonder if that's the problem.

If your in the New York City area, try tuning your radio in the 800 khz am area and post your results here.

Danny Styles in coming on now on the radio. LOL!

I can not seen to tune into VOA. According to September's Monitoring Times VOA is listed:
7215va 9780va 11760va 15185va 15290va 17740va 17820va at 0030 UTC

I can not get any of the above, don't they target North America?

I already know about the link below. I find their website over loaded with too much stuff and I can not seem to find my target area which is North America.
http://www.voanews.com/english/about/ProgramGuide.cfm

ARRL: Do they broadcast on the sw? Where and when?

Glenn Hauser, Radio for Peace and International: is he or the other program still on the air? Where and when.

I live in the SW corner of Michigan, nowhere near NYC, of course, and it is one station I have never logged here. However, the most recent listing I have for it shows it's output power to be 10kW day/1 kw night, so that doesn't suprise me. I can, not infrequently, get WBAP in Fort Worth listenably, and that's almost 900 miles from here - but it is 50kw, and that's the difference.

But - and this bugs me - the only 50kw NYC station I can get listenably well most nights is WCBS (820). Most of the other 50k stations in NYC I can get, but the reception is awful. And my antenna orientation is optimum for East-/West, too. Many 50k stations from much further away than NYC (about 650 miles) I can get like gangbusters here, but not the NYC ones.

You know, if I was the President, knowing what I know right now, it sure would be fun to pull right up to Rickets hovel, walk right up to the door, and when Rickets answers I'd just look him right in the eyes and say "Rickets, I hear you got a problem with me".

It would be so damn much fun to watch the 'tard boy turn to jelly and crap his pants.

Then I'd let Bubba (code name of one of the Secret Service guys) have his way with him.

Bubba's been wanting to cut loose on a 'tard real bad lately.

The British have some very interesting cuisine. You know the old joke of being in Hell and the British being the cooks.....

Tracy, I never planned to fully retire. If I was forced to retire, I planned on repairing and selling collectable electronics. As you know, I ended up on disability instead of retirement but I still enjoy restoring old radios, or doing simple repairs.

I am trying to get a loan to put a new roof on my 1200 square foot garage so I can spend more time on my electronics projects. Have you seen the 2" thick foam insulated roof panels they use for sun rooms? I would like to do the new roof with them. They are available in a 30 foot panel four foot wide, so I would need 10 of them to replace the crappy old "Pittsburgh" metal roof.

The other shop (where the machine tools are) is 18 * 28 so that would be seven 20 foot panels. If the stuff wasn't so expensive, I would like to replace the steel skin on the buildings with the new insulated panels so they could be air conditioned. The isles are wide enough to get through with my cane, or if worse comes to worse, a wheelchair.

There are two other work buildings as well. A 12' * 12' where I store things that need work, and a 12' * 24' cottage I use for a computer room and to do my computer project.

BTW, how was the vacation?

Sometimes you have to spoil yourself. That's a good price for a six-pack of Heineken or Becks and I pay a bit more than that for the equivalent of a six-pack. Too bad alcohol and gas are taxed to death but what are you going to do?

Hehehe. Brian, you old dog, I'll drink one for you.

On a more radio related note, I think you are an owner of a SP-600? Right? Anyhow, if you have used one of them, have you ever noticed any frequency instability above 30 MHz? My electronic readout gets really jumpy above 30 MHz and I haven't seen that problem reported before in various groups that I read.

4798. New PCR-1000 update

Hiya....

I've had a few days to get used to my new PCR-1000. Today, I took it off the indoor telescopic antenna it came with and I now have it hooked to my two outdoor antennas. They are a G5RV on the roof and a 200' random wire. I've got an antenna switch to go between the two antennas. I've found that my 200' roof wire makes a good antenna for VHF/UHF frequencies. It picking things up on VHF/UHF considerably better then the telescopic whip that it came with. I have also been able to hear NOAA satellites with my roof wire. I haven't decoded any weather map images yet, but I'm going to try that soon. I've also installed TalkPRC software on my computer and I've found it to be a very good ap for scanning. I'd almost call in 100 % necessary to have if you want to use it like a scanner.

On the down side. For shortwave listening, the PCR-1000 really overload now that I have my two roof antennas hooked up to it. I've been listening tonight from 5.000 to 7.500 and the radio has intermod just about every place that there are two strong signals close to each other. I have to use the attenuator all the time. No way is the PCR-1000 as good as my R-75 for sw listening. I normally use the two roof antennas with my R-75 and it never shows a hint of the overload that the PCR-1000 does. I'm also having some problems with PC monitor causing interference when listening on the shortwave bands. Even if I change the refresh rate, the monitor is causing problems. I have the radio about five feet away from the PCR-1000 and that isn't good enough to avoid problems. Above frequencies of 20.000 there is no problems with that though.

Also.. I've tried without success to get the free Bonito software that the PCR-1000 came with to work. I think it is too quirky to be useful.

So far, I'd say that it is a great VHF/UHF receiver, but for shortwave it has limitations.

Either your culture or age of consent in South Africa is a bit different than here. You have to be 18 to join the military here and do not need your parent's permission. Therefore, the parents do not / cannot "allow" anything, although they can certainly offer advice one way or the other (and if you are a parent, you are no doubt aware that teenagers consider themselves immortal, think they know it all and can be told very little).

I will admit to knowing very little of South African politics, but going by what you said above, it sounds like quite the totalitarian state and for that you have my sympathy. May you always agree 100% with your

Hi Pete. Nice post as usual from you on the technical aspects of radio

I don't understand how dividing down a synthesized clock by itself reduces the phase noise unless the divider is filter for the phase noise?

Australia is about the same on 15,515 at the moment. I expect the RNZI signal to improve on 15,720 in a little while then deteriorate toward the end on the time slot on this frequency. When they switch to 11,820

Listening at 0316. Presumably Radio Fana. Great signal in Wilmington, NC.
Are they heard pretty typically? Just curious.

Not surprising as antenna height is very important for VHF and UHF.

You are going to need a electrically balanced antenna connected to coax lead in to the radio located some distance from the computer.

4815. Anytihig else to do to improve reception?

using my 7600GR with windup antenna that came with it. It helps but still on my SW bands (above 3.5 mhz to 30mhz) can only receive several religion stations, couple chinese, french, indian, russian,spanish etc stations and something that sounds like news from england. Otherwise I get very bad signal (I do see -tune- showing up on my radio though but all i hear is static or some faint voices). I was under impression that i will be able to listen in to ham radios, airplanes etc. Do i need more equipment like Sony AN-LP1 antenna for better reception or is there something else i need to do. I live in a large city maybe good 50 feet above the ground so i don't imagine that there is alot of interference.

thanks for all the reponses.

The simple explanation is that we have freedom of speech and that some people abuse their rights.

There are far worse things Americans have to put up with than having someone abuse their free speech rights like not appreciate other rights we have and work for their elimination or restriction thereof.

You should be able to hear everything you want to hear with the 7600GR. You say you're in a city, and it sounds like you live in a large apartment building. If so, your problems with reception probably stem from the many sources of interference in your apartment, as well as your neighbors'. Steel used in the construction of your building might also be a problem. I suggest that you find a way to get an antenna, even if it's just a length of wire, outside your apartment. If you have a balcony of some kind, that would be a big help, but even dangling a wire outside a window will be progress.

Oh, it's also worth noting that, if you want to listen to hams and expecially aeronautical communications, you'd better know where to look. Especially when it comes to the latter, it would be hard to just stumble across the right frequencies unless the fine tuning wheel of the 7600GR is in exactly the right position. Search the web for a list of aeronautical frequencies and a description of where the amateur bands are. Then tune to these frequencies, tuning slowly.

Near mint condition - one of the cleanest, best working portables I've seen in a long time. No noticeable scratches or nicks. You have to look close to see any signs of use.

Includes an AC adapter, instruction manual and the original shoulder strap.

Super-size the pictures for a closer look.

John, I respectfully disagree with your statement above.

I'm not sure how our election news is reported in South Africa, but your facts may have gotten a little twisted or lost something in the translation.

In the first election, W won by just 2 or 3% with the Florida election falling under a wee bit of suspicion. In the second election, it was also just 2 or 3 % only this time with the cloud of suspicion falling over the great State of Ohio. In either election, most would hardly call those numbers a "large majority" as you stated above.

As you can tell from this NG, the one campaign promise not (yet) kept by W is "I will unite this country". We're still waiting and I wouldn't recommend anyone holding their breath on this one.

Get about 18 to 22 inches of thin wire and wrap (or attach an alligator clip to one end of the wire) a bare end of the wire a couple of turns around your radio's antenna.Mount the other end of the wire on a wall useing a piece of tape or a thumbtack.

It improves reception markedly but still many stations are suffering

No, Brian, honestly I don't see what you mean. I am dealing in facts.
I just pointed out the fact that very few people would hardly call 2 or 3% a " large majority" as John did.

I really don't see what my pointing out that discrepancy has to with freedom of "speach" (although I'm sure you mean "speech"...sorry, minus two points for spelling).

As I replied respectfully and calmly to his post, I'm not sure what having a heart attack has to do with anything either.

Yea I got a couple. Hum? It may be the readout circuit itself? Without looking at the digital readout does everything seam copasetic in regards to sensitivity, selectivity and are signals where there supposed to be on the analog dial?

Hi Frank,

I've had pretty good luck with mine, so I am not sure what happened with your units. As far as the 455kHz I.F. there were a couple of engineering changes. First of all, that 270uH inductor was replaced with a tunable unit.
Next, there was a .047uF coupling capacitor that was changed from a leaded unit to an SMD type. Apparently, there was some radiation from the cap.
I haven't experience that problem with my unit.
As far as sensivity, both my HF-150 and my R30 are in the .1uV range.....when the whip amp on the 150 engaged, the sensivity improves to .04uV.
I haven't used my comm receivers very much, instead, using the Grundig 3400 as a bedside radio, but that can change, depending on moods.

Didn't say a thing about whether or not it was valid, only that the rest of the people are under no obligation to like it or to back up the will of the 'majority'. In a free country, that's the way it works. This has always been my position, and always will be, regardless of whom is in power, and whether or not I personally like or agree with them or not.

I see what you mean...I guess it comes out as a wash, but I will try to explain what I meant. Phase noise degrades by [20log(N)], where N is your division ration in the feedback network of the PLL. Dividing it down improves the phase noise by the inverse of the aforementioned formula. If phase noise is looked at as an FM signal that has a certain deviation bandwidth, it becomes apparent that when the carrier frequency is divided down, the modulation sidebands (phase noise) are divided down by the same proportions.
The main advantage with Palstar's scheme is that by designing the system at a higher frequency, a higher reference frequency can be used. This allows a faster settling time for the system. Once everything is divided down, you now have a system with finer tuning steps, quicker settling time, and roughly the same phase noise.
I must have been sleeping when I made that comment about the phase noise.....thanks for waking me up!
Too many things on my mind!

It seems to me that the destruction of their OLD sewer system, electrical generation systems, water supply system and every other infrastructure by B-52 bombers instilled even more anguish in the Iraqis.

The invasion of Iraq and the thirty day aerial bombardment will go down in history as an act of aggression worse than what the Germans did to Poland in 1939. Like the Iraqis, the Poles also lasted about thirty days.

'Shock and Awe' my ass. It's time to reconvene the Nuremberg trials. The new atrocity pictures should be released soon if the courts have any semblance of justice left. With all the political appointments, it seems to be a very scarce commodity indeed.

Storm winds already at 160 MPH (knots?), making it a category 5, and it is expected to gain strength before it hits landfall. Some estimates are for 195 MPH winds.. worst storm to hit the Gulf coast since Camille (we left Corpus Christi just before Camille leveled our whole neighborhood, which was just two blocks from the beach)

Keep waiting... you left-wingers don't have anything worth uniting with. Come to the table with something worthwhile and the President might consider it.

I see the "re-introduced" Icom R-75's at Gigaparts and HRO are going for a whopping $650-$750.

Remember when they went for $449 about 14 months ago?

Maybe the price increase is due to the hurricanes in the Gulf and the increased demand in China.

Hearing a phone patch at 1318 on 13927.1 from one of the Hurricane Hunters. A crewmember of TEAL 64 was calling home. Said already made several passes into Hurricane Katrina and it was getting worse. Stated that they would probably make one more penetration before heading to Houston.

That may explain why TEAL 55 was over Texas yesterday. My guess is that they probably evacuated their aircraft out of Mississippi since Katrina may track there.

Everything works well on the rig and I haven't had any problems with selectivity or sensitivity and all controls work well. In fact, when I lived in Montreal, thanks primarily to the crystal phasing taking out Buffalo on 1520 kHz, I was able to nail down Saudi Arabia on 1521. The R-390A and the HQ-180C couldn't cut it with clear and clean reception. The digital readout is a Communications Concepts Inc. unit that works well on all bands. It does generate some birdies but is not too bad otherwise. The frequency readout goes crazy to the high end of the 29.7-54.0 MHz band and everything seems okay otherwise.

It's not a pressing issue as I don't listen up around 54 MHz all that often. Just curious to see if anyone else has had a similar problem.

Bush lost the popular vote by 500,000 in 2000.

Th so-called Florida margin was a couple hundred votes when they stopped counting. Had they counted every vot in Florida Gore would have one.

2000 was a coup d'etat. Plain and simple.

I sold a Central Electronics MM-2 monitor scope to Joe Walsh about a year ago. As it turns out (and not too surprisingly), the correspondence and check signing is done by his agent or secretary, who also no doubt shields him from the unrequested emails and autograph seekers.

There have been several Presidential elections in history that have been very close.
It is amazing how the Demo-Komms keep hacking away at this issue. Get over it!

Al Gore would have made a catastrophically disastrous President and would have been sure to lull the masses into a Socialist stupor.

I think both radios have earned the right to be called by their proper name. And there's a large group of us who think the R-390 is a superior radio to the R-390A.

God forbid we should ever be twenty years without such a rebellion. The people cannot be all, and always, well informed. The part which is wrong will be discontented, in proportion to the importance of the facts they misconceive. If they remain quiet under such misconceptions, it is lethargy, the forerunner of death to the public liberty. ...

And what country can preserve its liberties, if it's rulers are not warned from time to time, that this people preserve the spirit of resistance? Let them take arms. The remedy is to set them right as to the facts, pardon and pacify them.

What signify a few lives lost in a century or two? The tree of liberty must be refreshed from time to time, with the blood of patriots and tyrants. It is its natural manure.

As somebody who is represented by Maxine Waters I offer that she is more a crackpot whose voting record happens to better align with a liberal point of view than being an actual liberal. In fact, I would go as far as to say that calling her a liberal is an insult to

Yeah, they flew the Hurricane Hunters Squadron at Keesler A.F.B. out ahead of the expected hit in this area.

I am "Mission Essential," so will be there from 4pm this afternoon for the duration it seems. I'll be in the Civil Engineering EMCS bunker. My

New Orleans will probably disappear in many areas as they are below sea

YOUR F*CKING CRAZY!!!!!!!!!!!!!!!

Who is Dennis Kucinich?

Member of "Progressive" Caucus [code word for Socialist Caucus]
Anti-war candidate for President in 2004

From 1969 to 1973, and again briefly in 1983, Dennis Kucinich was a member of the City Council in Cleveland, Ohio. In 1977 he was elected mayor of Cleveland, during which time the city fell into financial bankruptcy, a state of affairs that cost him his re-election bid in 1979.

In recent years Kucinich has lent his support to an organization called SOA Watch, whose stated mission is to close down the U.S. Army School of the Americas (SOA), which was recently renamed the Western Hemisphere Institute for Security Cooperation (WHISC). Located at Fort Benning in Columbus, Georgia, SOA (WHISC) is the Army's principal Spanish-language training facility for Latin American military personnel. During the Cold War, the SOA trained many Latin Americans in guerrilla tactics designed to help put down Communist insurgencies in the region. Many trainees indeed went on to fight against Communist (and often Soviet-financed) rule in their homelands. A testament to the School's effectiveness is the fact that Communist groups rank among the SOA's staunchest opponents. In January 1996 the Communist publication People's Weekly World printed an anti-SOA piece titled "Close the School of Assassins." The Socialist Party of Michigan has a link for SOA Watch on its Website. The Communist organization Workers World Party promotes SOA Watch events.

Kucinich supports dramatic increases in government spending on the arts, education, transportation, welfare, and environmental protection. Conversely, he advocates drastic reductions in spending for national defense, particularly the research and development of new weapons. He calls for further, though less draconian, cuts in funding for the modernization of existing weapons and military hardware. He favors the total elimination of research and testing for the Strategic Defense Initiative (SDI) missile defense system. With regard to immigration issues, he advocates an increase in the number of visas issued for agricultural workers, and amnesty for certain illegal immigrants who already reside in the United States.

Among the measures Kucinich opposes are these: the establishment of English as the official national language; the temporary detention of asylum seekers from countries known to sponsor terrorism; the adoption of stricter rules for student visa applicants from nations known to sponsor terrorism; the granting of greater surveillance powers to law-enforcement agencies for the purpose of preventing future terrorist attacks; an increase in border security to stop the flow of illegal drugs into the U.S.; and mandatory jail sentences for those who sell illegal drugs. Nor does he believe that the U.S. should hold foreign states accountable for the actions of terrorists who operate within their borders. In this view, the 9-11 hijackers and their co-conspirators are an independent band of criminals that should be prosecuted through legal, not military, channels - rather than the government-sanctioned benefactors of a Taliban regime that willfully permitted and supported their activities. _____

Who is Maxine Waters?

Member of the radical Progressive Caucus [code word for Socialist Caucus]
Voted against the 1991 Gulf War after it began, and in March 2003, was one of 11 who voted against the resolution to support our troops after the Iraq War commenced
Has traveled to Cuba and has praised Marxist dictator Fidel Castro Rationalized and justified the actions of the 1992 Los Angeles rioters

In 1984 she was co-chair of Rev. Jesse Jackson's presidential campaign.

Waters belongs to the radical Progressive Caucus and to the Black Caucus, which she has headed. For every primary and final election she publishes her own Progressive Connection mailer to constituents, and Democratic politicians eager for votes from her district pay Waters from $10,000 to $35,000 to be included in the slates of candidates her mailer endorses. Her own voting record, according to the leftwing Americans for Democratic Action (ADA), is consistently 95 percent on the left side of legislation. Her rhetoric is often superheated and demagogic. Waters, for example, described retiring moderate Republican Mayor of Los Angeles Richard Riordan as a "plantation owner" and once said that she never sees Los Angeles police officers abuse "little white boys."

She was one of six members of Congress who voted against the Gulf War after it began, and in March 2003 she was one of 11 who voted against the resolution to support our troops after the Iraq War commenced.

She defended the racial hatred that led a gang of black hoodlums to nearly murder white truck driver Reginald Denny, saying, "the anger in my district is . righteous.I'm just as angry as they are." She chanted the radical slogan "No justice, no peace" and dismissed the mass looting of Korean-owned stores by saying: "There were mothers who took this as an opportunity to take some milk, to take some bread, to take some shoes.. They are not crooks."

Waters is also a co-sponsor of a bill to study the reparations for slavery by fellow Progressive Caucus [Socialist Caucus] member Rep. John Conyers (D.-Michigan).

Waters has traveled several times to Cuba, praised its Marxist dictator Fidel Castro, and argued for an end to the U.S. trade embargo against the Castro government. In a letter to Castro (quoted during an October 2, 1998 newscast on Radio Havana) she wrote that he has the right to grant "political asylum" to U.S. citizens fleeing "political persecution" such as what the U.S. Government directed against Dr. Martin Luther King, Jr. and Cesar Chavez." But in 1999 when six-year-old Elian Gonzalez requested asylum in the U.S. after his mother drowned during their escape from Cuba, Congresswoman Waters pressured President Bill Clinton to return the refugee boy immediately to Cuba. Waters flew to Cuba and met with the father Elian's mother had divorced and with Elian's grandmothers, thereby giving political and propaganda support to Castro during the controversy.

In September of 1998, Waters wrote a letter of apology to Castro after she had voted in favor of a bill calling on him to turn over former Black Panther Joanne Chesimard. Convicted 25 years earlier of murdering a New Jersey state trooper, she escaped from prison and received refugee status in Havana. While there, she took on a new name which Waters failed to recognize. When Waters learned the woman she'd voted to extradite was a Black Panther murderer, she urged Castro to continue safeguarding Chesimard, because she had been "persecuted for her civil-rights work."

President Clinton appointed Waters' second husband Sidney Williams, a luxury car salesman and former pro football player, to be U.S. Ambassador to the Bahamas. [A State well known for international money laundering. The Communist Chinese are well connected on the island.]

Organized labor is by far her biggest campaign contributor and supplies more than 68 percent of her Political Action Committee (PAC) donations. Her largest labor support comes from the Laborers' International Union of North America, which has a history of involvement with organized crime, and the leftwing Service Employees International Union (SEIU), a large share of whose members are government employees. Other Waters campaign contributors include the Association of Trial Lawyers of America and Viacom, which owns CBS and many cable networks, including MTV.

http://www.discoverthenetwork.com/individualProfile.asp?indid=1264

Who is Sheila Jackson Lee?

Member of the radical Progressive Caucus [code word for Socialist Caucus]
Member of the Congressional Black Caucus [soon we will need a White Causus]
Ken Lay of Enron helped bankroll her first election to Congress
Lent her prestige to 2001 anti-Jewish United Nations conference in Durban, South Africa Provided propaganda for Communist FARC guerrillas in Colombia

One of Jackson Lee's crusades as a Representative of subtropical Gulf Coast Houston has been to end what she calls the government policy of giving hurricanes "lily white" names. She hoped the weather establishment in the future "would try to be inclusive of African American names" such as "Keisha, Jamal and Deshawn."

In 1999, 2001 and 2003 Jackson Lee voted against a proposed Constitutional amendment to prohibit desecration of the American flag.

As a devout Seventh Day Adventist, Jackson Lee is a vegetarian.

The group Americans for Democratic Action (ADA) rates her voting record in recent years to be 100 percent on the left side of legislation.

In 2000 Jackson Lee joined seven fellow Progressive Caucus members and one Republican in signing a letter that called on President George W. Bush to "delink" economic sanctions from military sanctions against Saddam Hussein's regime in Iraq. This would have allowed Hussein to receive economic aid while refusing to comply with his international agreements.

Like most leftwing Democrats, Jackson Lee voted against the use of force in Iraq. In February 2003 she was one of six House Democrats who filed a lawsuit to require President Bush to get explicit congressional permission before invading Iraq.

In 2001 the United States withdrew most of its diplomatic participation in the United Nations' World Conference Against Racism, Racial Discrimination, Xenophobia And Related Intolerance in Durban, South Africa after it became clear that the gathering would give prominence not only to anti-American but also to anti-Israel and anti-Semitic leaders. [Then Sec. of State Collin Powell walk out of the conference.] Despite this, seven members of Congress including Congresswoman Jackson Lee attended, and along with seven other congressional Democrats lent their prestige to what became an anti-Jewish hatefest.

In 2002 Jackson Lee joined 43 other members of Congress, all but two of whom were Democrats, in signing a letter to Secretary of State Colin Powell alleging human rights violations by the Government of Colombia in its war against the drug-running guerrilla terrorist Colombian Revolutionary Armed Forces, FARC, established as the military wing of the Colombian Communist Party. This letter, published worldwide and used as pro-FARC anti-Government of Colombia propaganda, made no mention of FARC's thousands of murders, atrocities and support from Cuban Marxist dictator Fidel Castro and from Venezuela's Marxist caudillo Hugo Chavez. The letter urged Secretary Powell "to take our concerns into account when determining whether to approve additional military aid for Colombia this year."

In November 2004 Colombian Defense Minister Alberto Uribe announced that informants had warned of a FARC plot to assassinate President George W. Bush during his brief visit that month to Colombia.

In 2003, Congresswoman Jackson Lee co-sponsored legislation reducing or ending U.S. economic sanctions and travel restrictions against Cuba. In 2000 she voted in favor of granting Permanent Normal Trade Relations (PNTR) to Communist China.

Jackson Lee has a 100 percent pro-union voting record, according to the AFL-CIO. In 2003 she was among a handful of liberal members of Congress who spoke at a rally in support of organized labor's Immigrant Worker's Freedom Ride, an effort to liken the unionizing of illegal aliens to the African-American civil rights struggle of the 1950s and 1960s. One writer described this as the "Open Borders Bus Tour" because it encouraged workers to enter the United States illegally.

Jackson Lee has a 100 percent pro-education voting record, according to the teachers' union -- the National Education Association (NEA). She earned this honor in part by voting in 1998 to deny vouchers to the 70 percent of African-American parents in Washington, D.C. who want to liberate their children from inferior, unionized public schools.

Jackson Lee opposed the tax cuts proposed by President George W. Bush, endorsing instead the Progressive Caucus' "American People's Dividend," a payment of $300 to every person in America, the same for all whether a person paid $1 million in taxes or $0. Under this plan, a husband and wife with three children would receive a refundable tax credit of $1,500, regardless of their income or tax burden. [Socialist Welfare]

In 2000, 2001 and 2004 Jackson Lee voted against reducing or ending the marriage penalty that imposed higher taxes on married couples than on singles. In 2000 and 2001 she voted against the "death tax" that can force the sale of a small family farm or business to pay tax on their value of up to 50 percent when a family member dies. In 2000 he voted against reducing taxes on Social Security benefits.

In 1998 Jackson Lee voted against ending racial preferences in college admissions.

If you can't understand what the connections are then U.S. voters have a serious problem.

Jackson Lee has a 100 percent pro-education voting record, according to the teachers' union -- the National Education Association (NEA). She earned this honor in part by voting in 1998 to deny vouchers to the 70 percent of African-American parents in Washington, D.C. who want to liberate their George Bush has never vetoed a single piece of legislation. He has done a 10 trillion dollars-into-the-hole reversal of the Federal budgets. He hands out no-bid contracts and huge subsidies and tax breaks to his benefactors while increasing the burden on the Middle Class.

Standard personality of all tyrants. From that article:

"While President George W. Bush travels around the country in a last-ditch effort to sell his Iraq war, White House aides scramble frantically behind the scenes to hide the dark mood of an increasingly angry leader who unleashes obscenity-filled outbursts at anyone who dares disagree with him."
.....
"Bush, administration aides confide, frequently explodes into tirades over those who protest the war, calling them “motherfucking traitors.”
He reportedly was so upset over Veterans of Foreign Wars members who wore “bullshit protectors” over their ears during his speech to their annual convention that he told aides to “tell those VFW assholes that I’ll never speak to them again if they can’t keep their members under control.” "

smart men solve problems, wise men avoid them.

I'm sure he did a good job. It is still a massive radio that is really outdated. Hope he includes the optional R390 band scanning tool - a 3/8" reversible drill mounted to the tuning knob!

the 17 MHz frequencies work for me around 23:00-01:00 here in Washington State. Also 9760 in the early morming (13:00 UTC or thereabouts). I gather they've cut back, they're not as easy to find as they used to be.

It is a rather difficult to use and maintain receiver that is really dated in comparison to modern tabletop receivers. A rack mount radio of that size and weight seems a little silly today. But to each his own I guess.

Man, you really blew it. I was having the time of my life watching all of these idiots calling a Founding Father names, and insulting the philosophy behind this great nation of ours. You'd think all of these patriots would have recognized the words. Did you have to look them up, or were you familiar with them already? I'd hate to think that a bunch of Americans didn't catch it, but a Canadian did. I wonder if Rickets, (who for the record I don't align myself with) did this on purpose?

Been saying that for years on this newsgroup. The PCR-1000 isn't a bad VHF/UHF receiver, but practically useless on MW and SW. Also suffers from way too much intermod and computer "hash" and you still may not get rid of it even after lots of troubleshooting. Know many people who have bought new computer systems just to get their PCR-1000s working halfway decent.

Best thing to do is buy both a dedicated VHF/UHF scanner and a dedicated SW receiver if you want decent receiver performance.

Mr. Glenn A. Baxter
RR1 Box 779
Belgrade Lakes, ME 04918
Re: Amateur Radio license K1MAN

Dear Mr. Baxter:

On May 14, 1999, after numerous complaints about your Amateur station regarding broadcasting, deliberate interference, failure to identify, poor signal quality and erratic starting and stopping times, personnel from the Boston office of the Commission monitored your station and attempted to inspect it. There was no one present at your station while it was transmitting on Amateur Service frequencies. The transmissions continued while Commission personnel went to your residence at 1 Long Point Road, but there was no one present there either. Again on May 15 while your station was transmitting, Commission personnel attempted an inspection but there was no one present.

Since the Amateur Radio Service rules require that Amateur stations be under the control of a control operator, and that the control operator must ensure the immediate proper operation of the station, we requested by letter dated June 25, 1999, that you provide information to the Commission, pursuant to Section 308(b) of the Communications Act of 1934, as amended, regarding the operation of your Amateur station. You responded by letter dated July 25, 1999, but your response failed to provide the information we requested. We notified you of that fact by letter dated August 4, 1999, and detailed the inadequacies of your response.

Specifically, you did not provide the name, address or phone number of the control operator for any of the "broadcasts" or "bulletins" such as prerecorded interviews, transmissions of answering machine responses, live interviews, or live, pre-recorded or automated station identifications transmitted by your station. Among other deficiencies of the response, you did not provide dates and times Amateur station K1MAN transmitted without a control operator.

You also stated in your July 25, 1999 reply that you had not received our June 25 letter by certified mail and that our letter had "misrepresented itself as Certified Mail". We reminded you that you had signed the certified receipt for that letter, and we provided you with a copy of that certified receipt.

You responded to our August 4 letter by letter dated August 24, 1999. During our review of the information you provided, your Amateur station ceased operation. As a result, we held our inquiry in abeyance. The U.S. District Court in Maine subsequently dismissed your lawsuit against the Commission, and dismissed your petition for reconsideration of that dismissal as well.

You recently resumed operation of Amateur station K1MAN. In view of that resumption and the resulting complaints we are receiving about deliberate interference, threats against those who do not relinquish frequencies for your use or who would complain, or who have complained, erratic operation, broadcasting, unauthorized tape recording and broadcast of telephone conversations, business use of an Amateur station and lack of station control, we have resumed our inquiry into the operation of K1MAN.
In reviewing your letter dated August 24, 1999, referenced above, and your actions subsequent to coming back on Amateur frequencies, it appears that your understanding of certain Amateur Radio Service rules may be incorrect.

We will outline the apparent misunderstandings below.

Amateur Station Control
With regard to control of an Amateur station, your letter of August 24 indicated that the control device for your station was a "Radio Shack timer", and that the control points for the station were "the main power switch at the transmitter site" and at the location of the control operator, wherever that may be". You further stated that on the dates in question, May 14 and 15, 1999, you were the control operator and were in "both Belgrade Lakes and Augusta in either mobile or portable modes".

Section 97.7 of the Commission's rules states that "when transmitting, each Amateur station must have a control operator". Section 97.105 states that "the control operator must ensure the immediate proper operation of the station, regardless of the type of control (emphasis added). Section 97.109 states that "each Amateur station must have at least one control point", and that the control operator must be at the control point when the station is locally controlled or remotely controlled.

Section 97.7 further states that a control operator need not be at the control point if a station is automatically controlled. However, as Section 97.109 also explains, only stations specifically designated in Part 97, such as a space, repeater, beacon or auxiliary station, may be controlled automatically. There is no provision in Part 97 that allows an Amateur station transmitting information bulletins to be automatically controlled.

In summary, your control of the station by a "Radio Shack timer" while you are absent from your Amateur station is a violation of the Commission's Rules. You were not in control of your station on May 14 and 15, 1999 while you were in "both Belgrade Lakes and Augusta in either mobile or portable modes". Your statement in your response that "K1MAN has never transmitted during the current license term without a control operator acting in full compliance with rules 97.105 and 97.109 as well as all other applicable FCC rules" is untrue.

Simply put, to comply with Commission rules, you must be at the transmitter, or at the transmitter control point, every moment your station is transmitting, when your station is locally or remotely controlled. If the station is controlled by telecommand from the control point using a radio link, the frequencies used for telecommand must comply with the Section 97.201 requirements for an auxiliary station (may transmit only on the 1.25 m and shorter wavelength bands, except 219-220, 222-222.150, 431-433 and 435-438 MHz segments).

Publishing a Transmitting Schedule & Interference
It appears that you may be under the misconception that by publishing a transmitting schedule of K1MAN, you have certain rights under Commission rules regarding the control operator and frequency sharing requirements that you would not otherwise have.

With regard to the requirement for a control operator, publishing a schedule does not relieve you of that requirement in any way whatsoever. Section 97.113(d) of the Amateur Radio rules states that by publishing a schedule of transmissions at least 30 days in advance, a control operator of a club station may accept compensation for the periods of time when the station is transmitting...information bulletins, providing certain additional conditions are met. Publishing a schedule of proposed transmissions, therefore, relates only to a club station control operator accepting compensation. We note that this is irrelevant to the operation of K1MAN because K1MAN is not a club station.

Simply put, to the extent that you start your transmissions on top of ongoing communications of other amateur service stations, you will be engaging in deliberate interference, in violation of Section 97.101 of the Commission's rules. No amateur service frequency is assigned for the exclusive use of any station. Your publishing an intended transmission schedule does not exempt you from that rule.

Threats to Complainants and Other Users
Your sending "Felony Complaint Affidavits" to other Amateur Service licensees who complain or intend to complain of your operation, or who do not relinquish frequencies to you, was the subject of a Warning letter to you dated December 11, 2001. You have also been warned about such "Felony Complaint Affidavits" by the United States Attorney in Maine.

The Commission will view any threats made by telephone, through the U.S. Mail or on radio frequencies to Amateur Radio licensees who file complaints with the Commission, or who do not relinquish frequencies for your use, as very serious.

Broadcasting
We also note that on your web site and in your radio transmissions, you refer to your transmissions variously as "broadcasts, programs, talk shows, bulletins, pre-recorded interviews" and so forth. We have received complaints that you have broadcast comedy shows and commercial messages. We caution you that Section 97.113(b) of the Amateur service rules prohibits amateur station from engaging in any form of broadcasting. Certain one-way transmissions, such as information bulletins, are allowed as specified in the rules.

Tape Recording and Broadcasting Telephone Conversations
We have received and have under review complaints that you have tape-recorded telephone conversations without the consent of the recorded party and that you have broadcast such tape recordings. We caution you that such recording without consent may be in violation of state or federal law. We will contact you under separate cover regarding those complaints.

In summary, it is very important for you to understand that we will review all valid complaints concerning the operation of your Amateur station, and that Commission personnel will again inspect your station. The rules of the Amateur Service are straightforward and easy to understand. To the extent that you do not comply with Commission rules regarding the Amateur Radio Service, then to that extent enforcement action will be taken against your licenses. That enforcement action may include revocation of your station license, suspension of your operator license, a modification proceeding to restrict your operating privileges, or monetary forfeiture.

It is also important for you to understand that if these matters are not resolved, your operator/primary station licenses will not be routinely renewed; but instead will be designated for hearing before an Administrative Law Judge. In such a proceeding, you would have the burden of proof to show that your licenses should be renewed.

Thanks for responding. I work in this odd intersection of digital signals operating at RF frequencies so sometimes I look at problems in a digital way and other times in a analog RF way depending on circumstances. I follow the RF explanation but I need to understand it in a digital way if that makes any sense to you. In RF speak its phase noise in digital language its edge jitter. The way I work out problems is to understand and design circuits functionally in the digital realm and then implement them using RF techniques like transmission lines instead of "wires" and so on.

The other positive attributes you mention below are understandable. The only drawback I can think of would be an higher cost. Usually it costs more money to make a reliable PLL at a higher frequency and maybe it takes a little more power to do it. Most any decision in engineering is whether the benefits out weight the cons.

The Palstar has some pretty nice specifications it's just a little weak on the feature side but looks to be a pretty good performer.

How is the audio for programing listening on the Palstar? Looks like they engineered a better than most audio output stage to me. Maybe I am putting to much weight on bells and whistles and not enough on basic performance.

Ever look inside the early VHF to UHF converters? The one I had long ago that used a 6J6 I believe. The units local oscillator changed frequency by raising or lowering a shield around the tube. This apparently changed the tubes elements capacitance to ground and the frequency lowered with the raising of the shield not unlike the tuning capacitor in many receivers.

The VOA is not allowed by federal law to target the USA for its broadcasts. The VOA can be heard in the USA via it's Relay sites around the globe. I good site to check out for ENGLSH only broadcasts is the PRIME TIME SHORTWAVE by Danaiel Sampson at: http://www.topica.com/lists/primetimeshortwave/ I use it all the time. Glenn Hauser and RFPI are also listed on the site. Good Listening and DX!!!

Thank you.

The 10 AM National Weather Service track shows the eye going right over my town (Picayune, MS). Fortunately, we won't have to deal with any storm surge here because we're far enough inland (25 miles). Those winds have me very concerned, though. We've got a lot of tall pine trees around here.

TIJUANA, Mexico (AP) - David Smith Sr., who already holds a world record for the longest distance traveled by a human fired from a cannon, added to his list of cannonball coups Saturday by shooting across the U.S-Mexico border.

The feat was the brainchild of Venezuelan artist Javier Tellez and is part of a series of public art projects in the two border cities.

Smith climbed into the barrel of the cannon Saturday afternoon and flashed his U.S. passport as about 600 people applauded.

Michael wrote about his new PCR1000:

Hiya....

Thre are three Yahoo groups devoted to the PCR1000, and one more about PCRtrunk(or something like that).

If you add a MW (AM BCB) reject filter it will really improve the reception of ALL bands on the '1000.
I use the Kiwa filter, but Stridsberg is also highly rated.
I do have a Stridsberg FM (88~108) reject fitler which really cleans up the 30~75MHz range.

Here are plans for a DIYS that work pretty well.
I had to stack 2 in series.
<http://www.hard-core-dx.com/nordicdx/antenna/special/highpass.html>

Kiwa also makes a Low Pass MW reject that will allow the PCR1000 to shine on LF.

A good antenna and ground is a must. I would suggest either an acitve antenna like the AmRad or a "Doty" wire antenna that uses a 9:1 transformer to couple the ~500 Ohms of the typical wire antenna to a 50 or 75 Ohm coax.

A set of 10, 20, and 30dB external attenuators is also very nice.

With attention to detail the PCR1000 becomes a good HF receiver.

I keep frequency lists to cover specific events. One for Huricanes, which I am using right now. Plus local VHF/UHF freqs for T-storms\ tornados, snow/ice storms, floods, riots in any of the 4 nearby towns. I even have a set of frequencies that I pray I will never need.
About 25 miles south east of me is the BGAD, where they have tons of ancient nerve agent stored and slated for destruction. A major leak there will ruin a lot of peopels lives.

I recall watching CBS' 60 minutes some time ago. The highlight was when Communist Chinese President Jiang Zimen recited Abraham Lincoln's "four score" speach to make a point about his Communist Party.

Communists delight in attempting to apply great American speeches to justify their brutally hineous ideology. You will hear devout Party members at University in Beijing reciting select snippets without so much as batting an eyelash. Those students are the ones that have never set foot outside the mainland, are usually relatives of a high Party leader, and have no comprehension of what Freedom & Liberty really means and represents. Querying them reveals their twisted logic and thoroughly brainwashed minds.

Your a classic example!

It's funny how he wants to overthrow a government that is going out of its way to help spread democracy around the globe and he'll believe any and everything that would help to stop it. I like how the opposition to the war screams that we are killing our people which volunteered to go there in the first place and believe in this campaign. He'll you can barely call it a war with only 1800 losses in over three years. We lost more men between 1989-1996 (18,000+) in the military from normal operations and the Gulf war combined. We would have lost 1800 even if we would have stayed home. If only people looked at the numbers and the stats.

The WWL Transmitter is located at 29 50' 14" N, 90 07' 55" W, about 8 miles south of downtown New Orleans on the Eastern edge of the Barataria Preserve of Jean Lafitte National Historical Park, just off Highway 45, Barataria Boulevard. Much of the Preserve is marshland and swampland. According to http://gorp.away.com/gorp/resource/us_nhp/la/hik_bata.htm
the HIGHEST point in the preserve is five feet above sea level.
(Fred Laun, K3ZO, WTFDA-AM via DXLD)

Layla Morcos of WWL (AM) did a report on MSNBC around 1850 UT, concluding with the station`s own situation. Studios are in a high-rise downtown, and I think she said they have another location (presumably studio) they can broadcast from if needed, but they don`t expect their towers to survive 200 mph winds.

To me it appears obvious that the people who responded to Rickets with their usual jibes had no idea that they were attacking Jefferson when they jumped on him for what they -thought- he was saying. dxAce called him manure and a 'tard boy. SeeingEyeDog called him a California Socialist/Communist racist useful idiot. Stinger called him an idiot. Perhaps these were knee-jerk reactions to David's usual lunacy. But perhaps not.

mII knew who wrote those words. I did, and I based on something you said earlier I believe you did as well. I don't for a minute believe that the other people in question did. An example would be this, from SeeingEyeDog:

<quote>

> "David" <rickets@knac.com> wrote

Another Communist Party mantra!

It may very well be a Party mantra, although I seriously doubt it. (Cuba's been communist, for what, ~50 years now? North Korea? China? Etc.) I think he was just attacking a sentiment from Rickets, not knowing from where it had originally sprung. And clearly, David felt that the epithets tossed his way were, at least in this instance, based on the words that people thought he'd said rather than on his personality or usual political positions.

> I was hoping to be called a Communist a few more thimes, then > springing the author. Thanks for spoiling the surprise.

Of course, it's impossible for me to prove what I believe happened here. I imagine that everyone mentioned is going to jump up and claim that they knew it was a Jefferson quote, and that they were attacking Rickets in the same fashion you were. But I'm not buying it.

Residential fluorescents have to be 'A' rated. They have a better power factor AND lower noise level than industrial/commercial types types. Nobody notices a humming ballast in a welding shop.

Agreed, but that's assuming that it's recognized as coming from a founding father in the first place. My point is that I don't believe it was, and his words and the sentiments being expressed were being attacked as well as Rickets himself. I can see why; they have a radical tone to them. But I think he set up some of the people here, and they flat out fell for it.

But he's certainly not alone in that camp. And the view from one of the disgusting.

Well of course he did. You missed the point. What a shock.

Sorry.

Wrong as usual. The difference is that I don't believe you looked it

I have to use bigger words for Cuhulin than for you. The content of that post was specifically referring to Cuhulin's disgusting habit of bestiality with dogs. Let me repeat that..

See Spot. See Dick. See Spot see Dick. Run Spot, Run..

I'm sure that with a good dictionary, you too can decipher it.

Who's projecting? YOU are the one with thousands of rounds of ammunition hidden away in your house, along with the AK47 collection. Is there a tall tower on your University Campus, Ace?

You fit the profile completely. Unmarried, anti social and a militia nutcase. I worry for your neighbours' well being.

And you'd be wrong yet again, 'tard boy! Like I stated earlier it only takes seconds to put the first line of Rickets plagiarism's into Google. Please, try to pay attention and not assume that other folks are as gullible and as stupid as you are setting yourself up as tonight.

But hey, keep on with your little fantasy. It makes for some hilarious reading while monitoring the hurricane news.

I am picking up WWL 870 pretty good on my General Electric model 7-2916A radio.Of course there is that long distance background noise and some fadeing in and out.Winds are picking up dramatically in the New Orleans area right now and as I mentioned before,tv station channel 16 www.wapt.com is the best in the Jackson area for constant bad weather update news.Channel 16 is full time weather update news when the weather gets bad.One of their channel 16 tv news reporters,Andrea Molloy sure is cute.

I had a head start..

It's too late for most citizens anyway. A street poll in the US already had most people who had the Constitution read to them brand it as revolutionary communist crap. The schools are failing at their jobs as educators but are excelling in producing walking turnips at the 'out' chute.

I'd be more worried about whether there was one on yours rather than whether there's one on mine or not if I were you. (And thank goodness I'm not you. You are in Canuckystan after all. UGH!).

Why would you worry about them? They're not in Canuckystan.

You'd best be worrying about YOUR neighbours... after all, they are the ones suffering the utter indignity of living in Canuckystan.

I'm impressed. Even your bloody school systems are corrupt. It may be inevitable, given the rampant corruption in government.

Consider also the following press reports that deal with recent situations in New York, Texas, Massachusetts, Maryland, Ohio, and Connecticut. In each instance school personnel were indicted, suspended, or are under investigation for improper behavior, and in each instance the responsible factor was the increased pressure on the schools that resulted from the rankings.

This .sig file will continue until Mister Fort posts a sincere apology to all cancer victims and their families. His refusal to do so says more about his attitude and upbringing than any of his thoughtless and hurtful postings in rec.radio.shortwave. He seems to be very proud of the fact that he can buy expensive radios using the refunded deposit money from his empty beer containers and has frequently posted the fact. It appears he is well on his way to purchasing his next radio. Anyone caring about his well-being should mention the good work of Alcoholics Anonymous to him.

You may well think it's funny. If only a fraction of your military budget went to better schooling, you'd have fewer grade nine dropouts who HAVE to enlist in the forces because they can't get a job anywhere else. n You may have noticed that stupidity, especially in the White House, causes invasions of sovereign countries.

I'm saying that no way do you go around in your personal life slinging the word 'tard at people like you do on Usenet. You know exactly what I'm getting at. Tell me, where you severely bullied as a child? You show any number of anti-social tendencies that would lead one to think so.

I never thought for a moment that those were Rickets original thoughts.

Like I said before, you seem to be thinking that others are as stupid and gullible as you are. You keep proving it.

LMAO

> I called it; you proved it. And > it was you I had specifically in mind.

Not sure what you had in mind, 'tard boy. What's so hard for you to understand here? I looked up where Rickets ripped off the quotes from and then I pulled the last word in the last line off and tossed it back at him thusly:

You are manure... 'tard boy!

And what possible difference does it make whether I looked it up or not or whether I knew who originally said those lines?

As I said, I merely pulled the last word off the last line...

No I have not but if you have a link I would like to see one.

Other things I seen done with tubes externally is with those little acorn type tubes. I have seen them used in a way they pass signals to one another by pointing their tips together. I can't tell you any more than that as I had no schematic of the device, which was some kind of military remote control box that went into aircraft.

That does make quite a bit of sense. I sometimes do that myself; when you find a parallel in another discipline, it can make a concept easier to envision.

Very true....it took quite a bit of work to optimize the performance for the VCO in my MW receiver. It did turn out to be very clean, with the 2nd harmonic at -45dBc, the 3rd harmonic at -65dBc, and all other harmonics below -75dBc, with most of them below -80dBc. To get good performance with a 1 octave VCO is much harder.
Mini-Circuits uses the tuning voltage of their VCOs to tune a tracking filter at the VCO output. As far as I know, they are the only ones that are doing it right now, but there could be others.

The audio of the Palstar R30 sounds very similar to the old WW2 Collins receivers. The AGC action reminds me of the old BC-348 receivers......very

"tubelike" in its sound. Paul got the AGC circuit right in this receiver. Audio performance is very similar to the Lowe receivers, although I would give the Lowe units a slight edge in audio quality.
As far as your favoring bells and whistles.....nothing wrong with that! Everybody has a certain style of receiver that they prefer. I think that is why manufacturers are able to sell so many different styles. My trouble is that I keep acquireing them, repairing them, and keeping them. My wife and I sometimes joke about this.....she will ask me "do you want to buy this receiver", and I usually will answer "sure, I can always use another receiver to put on the shelves and not use".
Radio collecting is fun, though!

Because there are very few men on this planet who could go around insulting in real life the percentage of other men that you do on Usenet and still be able to operate a keyboard. Of course, I -did- say no way do you sling the word 'tard at -people- in real life, so I could be wrong. I wasn't thinking about women, but for a pocket bully like yourself, well...it stands to reason.

Actually, spelling cop, you should have inserted a comma after the word "were". You also neglected to end your sentence with a period. I always suspected that you were as stupid as anyone else around here; now I know. And like beerbarrel, you've managed to hoist yourself on your own petard. (There's a joke in there, but I'm betting you can't catch it.) I think the word you would use here is "boggling".

Ok, the problem with my Sony ICF 2010 is that the SSB does not work well. I did find a website http://www.palmsradio.com/hurricane.html
And I tuned my radio to 14.325 USB MHz, but I hear nothing.

But however, I tuned to 3.885 MHz and I hear hams talking about it.

Once I get the a better radio I'll be able to SSB in better.

I know exactly where Barataria Blvd is.There is a shopping mall out that way and some residential areas and businesses and the usual stores and gas stations and blah blah blah.It is a very nice area out that way.I suppose it is a lot more built up nowdays than when I was there about ten years ago.I have a cousin who lives in Gretna,just across the Mississippi River from New Orleans.He and his folks are in Jackson now.

Damn... this entire fantasy of yours has evolved simply due to me pulling the word 'manure' off of one of Rickets posts. And... by doing that I somehow disparaged a Founding Father and then stand accused of not Googling something.

Allow me to tune in the clueless...

'managed to hoist yourself on your own Pet 'tard'

I understand when Cuhulin's conscience bother him, he quotes Shakespeare.

To wit:

"Out! Out, Damn Spot!"

I figured the Palstar R30 would sound good after reading about the audio output stage and other specifications on the filters.

Don't know about the collecting thing. I like to use what I own. I have three table top radios. The 7030+ is next to the bed and the other two are on a shelf in the office. I have one on Matt Drudge and the other is on NZ right now. I have a speaker cable going down stairs so I can listen while puttering in the kitchen. Today I was listening to Japan, Netherlands and Australia while baking my latest disaster in the kitchen.

West of the Mississippi River is usually considered being in the Midwest.The way that River loops around and doubles back on itself,I suppose whatever side of the River one is on,one could be in the Midwest or East at the same time,I doubt if that makes any sense though.Something else,the Mississippi River could do a flip flop and change it's path at most any time,it has done so many times before.A few days ago,I read that the Mississippi River is low because of drought conditions in the Midwest.No doubt Hurricane Katrina will add a bunch of water/rain to part of the Mississippi River.You can step across the Mississippi River where it starts in Minnesota.

I sat here wide awake at home while Hurricane Frances snapped trees off around me for 48 hours straight last year. Both oks and pines were groaning and making cracking sounds, till they finally came down. The pines mostly broke off about 2/3 of the way up, while the oaks were either uprooted, or were split at a major fork near the ground. I spent the next one in a shelter. All i took was some clothes, my medicine and two radios to try to hear the news. I had a DX-375 (Takes two "C" cells) for shortwave, and a Sony SRF-49 for the local stations because it will run for days on a single alkaline AA cell. The only other things were important papers and my old truck.

You, and everyone I know in the path are in my prayers. Take care, and may God bless!

People notice ballast noise in an office setting. Failing ballasts give me a headache. Buzzing is bad enough, but when the lamps start to flicker I can see it in my peripheral vision and I get a migraine headache in 15 minutes or less. I had to go to the president of the company I worked for to get some flickering lamps fixed because they were over unused workbenches and the maintenance man was to damn lazy to change them.

Shop lights are low grade fixtures, and some cheap CFL lamps buzz like a nest of angry bees. The ones at "Dollar stores" are really bad, in most cases.

I'm picking up WWL near Ocala a little after 1:00 AM, Monday morning. A little fading, but it is a usable signal on a portable radio (DX-375).

I myself tend to lean to the story that Hoffa was taken to the nearby Alpo dog food plant and "processed", and canned, then fed to dogs all over the country soon after. I'll tell you, there were some scary looking parts that came out of those cans! My dog really loved that stuff.

The scariest was what must have been the Aorta of a cow or horse, it was about a foot and a half long, and about an inch and a half across. There wasn't much else in the can.

No, I didn't give it to my dog. I did take it to school the next day and showed it to my teacher, who freaked when he saw it.

Article at www.worldnetdaily.com Waterford nuke facility near New Orleans is shut down before Hurricane Katrina.The only nuclear plant in Mississippi is the Grand Gulf facility near Stennis Space Center,that isn't far from the Gulf Coast,I haven't heard any news about that though.The local tv weather folks say the weather in Jackson will be windy and rainy Monday afternoon.Some local Jackson Entergy (electricity) folks are heading to New Orleans right now to help out and repair after Hurricane Katrina passes on through the New Orleans area.That Sandhill bird they just showed on local Jackson tv sitting on a piling on the Mississippi Gulf Coast doesn't look worried at all.I am going to get my beauty sleep,I might need to be wide awoke later on today.

http://www.duracap.com/inductuners/uhf600series.htm It is a compact version of a multi gang roller inductor. There are a number of models available, and they were used as variable TV tuners years ago. Too bad they don't make one that is suitable for HF front end. It might be possible to adapt the lowest VHF model to a single band, but its still an interesting device.

On a really serious note..

I sure hope the architects knew what they were doing in the Super Dome design. It's one thing to resist downward pressure on the structure and it's roof, but another thing entirely to design against a low pressure against a part of it. Even a few ounces of pressure per square inch multiplied by millions or billions of square inches can lift the roof right off a huge building. I hope and pray there will be no fatalities.

Can anyone confirm? I've been listening to WWL for a few hours, and they've been fading in and out here in MN (and here I am without my MW loop!). But the channel suddenly went silent in the middle of a conversation at 12:43 am CDT.

Is anyone closer to N.O. LA still hearing WWL?

I don't know if they they got knocked completley off the air,or if their transmitter power was somehow reduced,but WWL is gone.
I'm in Alabama and always have a booming signal from them,so something is definately messed up. You could try 690 WTIX in New Orleans,I have a pretty good signal on them as of right now.

Of course it hasn't been "paid."
You don't PAY an "apparent" liability.
You pay it IF and WHEN when it becomes a fine.

I just bought a Sony ICF-SW7600GR and it should arrive this week.

I live inside city limits in Lexington, KY where I don't have the ability to string antennas. Consequently, I am looking at buying an active antenna for this unit.

Any suggestions where to begin?

No, I lost the signal here in Florida, too.

WWL mentioned about 1:30 EST that another AM station in their area had gone off the air and that they couldn't find out if the station was damaged, or had just lost power. It was fading and I didn't get the other station's call letters.

I'm too looking to buy this antenna for my new 7600gr.
often i can see _tune_ displayed on my receiver but can only hear static.
with my windup antenna i can definatelly see boost in performance.
Can anyone confirm that i will see a comparable improvement when getting this new active antenna. Price is a little steep at 100$ so im wondering if it's going to be a slight improvement or a sizeable improvement.

thank you

"We can do it better" is not a plan! When are you left-wing, progressive (communist), democrats going to figure that out?

That's why Kerry lost... "I can do it better' and "I have a plan" just didn't cut it. When queried about those statements, he repeatedly could not articulate what he'd do better or exactly what his plan was.

That pretty much sums up what is wrong with your whole left-wing movement. If any are elected they act like deer caught in the headlights as they scramble to figure out exactly what they can do better or to actually formulate a 'plan'.

The slogan that would fit and actually would make more sense is "We can screw up better".

Nope - he lost because you cowards didn't want to switch leaders "in Clinton and Bush both pulled the same cowardly stunt to stay in power.

At least Clinton was elected.

We're definitely in the storm now. The eye wall still won't be here until after noon.

It's raining sideways due to gusty wind. The lights are flickering about every 20 to 40 seconds -- we should lose power soon.

Looking outside, I see lots of small twigs and leaves - type debris everywhere. No big limbs yet. The pine trees are really swaying.

One interesting thing is that when I was having some coffee about 10 minutes ago, I looked out on the lake where we live and saw a half-dozen seagulls swooping around. I guess they got blown inland, because we don't normally see them.

We never have valued engineers and scientists much.
Why is that such a surprise?? By the time Einstein made it to the US, he was more celebrity than scientist at that point. Hawking is probably more well known for being "the guy in the wheelchair who was on Star Trek playing poker" than his theories. Carl Sagan was a scientist who was more well known for his showmanship and his apocryphal "Billions and billons" quote than as a scientist. I once heard from a coworker who went to Cornell that there used to be a t-shirt making the rounds at Cornell that had the top lies told at Cornell. One of them was (not an exact quote, but close), "I take a class taught by Carl Sagan."

One of the major sources of funding for research was the DoD and DoE during the Cold War. When that ended, a lot of money available for funding dried up and went toward other things. Priorities changed, too: look at the decision to scrap the Superconducting Supercollider (SSC), or the constant shifting of priorities away from a Mars mission. The SSC was deemed too costly, and the Mars mission meets heated debate over what our national priorities should be. The Cold Fusion debacle 15 years ago also demonstrated the fractured nature across scientific disciplines: chemists and physicists were arguing rather loudly about the results of Pons' and Fleishmann's experiments not in a reasoned manner, but more in the manner of "we found it first, so nyaah nyaah nyaah" reserved for children.

There is also a distinct disconnect between what the public and the people with the purse strings feel is important, and what the academic scientific community feels is important. Try and suggest that the space program should be significantly scaled back so that hunger in Africa could be given priority, and you'll get an earful from the scientific community on that.

My first suggestion would be to try the radio with just the whip antenna. I think you will be pleasantly surprised at how many signals that set will pick up. Portables like the 7600 and DE1103 are quite sensitive and designed to work effectively with the built in antenna.

Next try a simple wire antenna. - just make one from stranded wire if your 7600 doesn't come with one. One of the best ways to position a wire antenna is to run it around the perimeter of the window in your listening room.

To be honest I don't think you will get any more signals with an amplified Sony antenna than you will get with a simple wire.

Hmmm. I wonder if an H-800 Skymatch antenna would be too much for a 7600GR. Maybe someone in the group has tried this and can report the results? The H-800 is far more antenna than the AN-LP1, but will only cost around $40 more. And the real advantage of the H-800 is that you could locate it outside your window, on the roof, etc., since what you really need to do is get an antenna outside. I guess you could always get an inexpensive highpass filter if the H-800 gave you problems with overload. The H-800 is very small and very quiet. In fact, it's as quiet as the spot its located in. I recommend it highly.

That is what I believe in. Not some crazy Hebrew texts from the Bronze Age, that were in large part stolen from Gilgamesh (an Iraqi as I recall).

stuff it.

The next election will be stolen, too.

Yikes...the local officials were not kidding when they called it the refuge of last resort. Estimates were that 100,000 people could not make it out of New Orleans, but only some 9,000 people are inside the superdome the last time I heard a news cast. Understandably the Red Cross decided to not open its shelters during the hurricane.

This has nothing to do with numbers.

It has everything to do with making things worse. It has to do with creating new generations of enemies.

The United States should lead the world by example. Not like a shitty parent who says ''do as I say, not as I do''.

Only in your warped little mind! I can't even begin to fathom how you came up with all the crap that you did simply because I said that Rickets was full of manure.

1,800 people seems like a lot of people to have die needlessly, and the number is a lot higher if you include contractors and other nationalities. And how could we forget the tens of thougnds of Iraqis who have been killed so far. I'm certain the parents and loved ones of those killed would think the losses were of some significance, wouldn't you?

And that justifies the invasion of a soverign country? It must, because the Bush administration has given no other credible justification.

Yada, yada, yada... more left-wing propaganda. Plenty of justification out threre, 'tard. It's just that you and your minions continually dismiss it as false.

If you can't come up with anything better you'd best be prepared to lose a lot of nationwide elections in 2006 and 2008.

Rather than let him leave the cleanup to someone else would you support changing things so that GWB could run again in 2008? That would give you at least one less thing to whine about, wouldn't it?

I used to have a few of them, but the collection grew to the point where I don't have the time for play with them all. Right now, I am working on another receiver. I just picked up an Icom R7100. The 51.2MHz reference crystal had drifted down in frequency over the years to the point where it could not be warped on frequency with the trimmer capacitor. I replaced the trimmer with a better grade microwave trimmer and solved the problem. The original trimmer had a range of 2 to 12pF......I replaced it with a 1.3 to 14pF unit and was able to warp the oscillator to the correct frequency. The off-frequency crystal caused a few problems. First of all, it is divided down to 12.8MHz to act as a frequency reference for the synthesizer. Next, it is multiplied by 5 to 256MHz for the 2nd LO injection for the 512 to 1000MHz range........finally, it is multiplied by 15 to 768MHz for the 2nd LO injection for the 25 to 512MHz range.
I still need to check the 3rd LO frequency of 10.245MHz and make sure it is on frequency and adjust the BFO injection frequencies for the SSB modes. A relatively complex receiver, but it seems to be easy to work on. I forgot that you had an AOR unit. I haven't gotten to play with mine for awhile, but the 7030 is a decent receiver. My favorite thing about it is is menu structure. With all of those hidden functions, it is like having a castle with all kinds of rooms to explore.

Hello.

I would first recommend that you try using the receiver with just its whip antenna. Place the radio as near to a window as possible (or use it outside, just as an experiment). Then try the included wind-up antenna; frankly, I personally have had little luck with that wind-up, but, as you'll already have it, it's certainly worth trying.

There are two antennas which I use with my ICF-SW7600G's and 'GR's: for travel and for general use, I use the Sony AN-LP1 Active Loop Antenna, which works very well with the '7600 and is superb for travel.

For more critical use, I recommend the AOR WL500 Window Loop Antenna, a superb instrument. It is expensive, but, in my opinion, worth every cent. Generally I use the AOR antenna with my Grundig Satellit 800, but, as I bought adapters which allow me to use it with my '7600's, I often listen with it. The WL500 is a superior antenna to the AN-LP1, but I would recommend that, if you determine you need/want an external antenna, try the AN-LP1 first. (Don't pay more than $90.00 for it; that is list price and Universal, AES, and some other reputable dealers sell it for that. I have seen it going for much more[!] on E-bay,)

The AOR WL500 is $200.00 (it doesn't LOOK as though it should cost that much but, believe me, appearances are deceiving) and you'll need a couple of $5.00 adapters from the Radio Shack to connect it to the '7600.

I wish you the best of luck and enjoyment from your new Sony ICF-SW7600GR. You'll never regret the purchase.

Best,

Joe

Some folks in New Orleans are driving around in their vehicle taking live video and simucasting from tv WDSU in New Orleans to tv station WAPT here in Jackson.They stopped near the Superdome for a couple of minutes.There is a large section of the roof blown off.A building in Marrero, (according to a guy on tv WAPT news) across the River from New Orleans,West Bank,has collasped with some people inside the building and rescue people can't reach the building.Actually,boats would be better vehicles to get around in some places in New Orleans right now.

You can buy it from Grove: http://www.grove-ent.com/ANT15.html

You can buy it direct from LF Engineering:
http://www.lfengineering.com/products.htm. And by the way, their customer service is excellent.

You can read a review of the H-800 from Monitoring Times here:
http://www.lfengineering.com/pdf/Monitoring%20Times%20H-800.pdf

The H-800 is a very good antenna, and an excellent value for the money.

I suggest buying it through LF engineering, and paying the few extra dollars they'll charge to install a connector on the antenna so you can easily replace the coax when it dies.

I used one as my camping and vacations antenna for about a year, and it performed pretty well.

When I did my research, the only commercially made active antenna I found with better specs was the Wellbrook.

The "portable" use I was giving it would be hard on any coax, but even with a permanent installation, I'd be surprised if the coax was good for more than a few years.

Well, lets look at the record so far. We are for all intents and purposes still in charge of a country that has just regained its position as the largest single producer of opium. And George isn't even getting a piece of the action. Just more dead. Great job so far George.

And of course we are in charge of another country, but I keep forgetting the reason we are there. Oh, yes...we are still hoping for weapons of mass destruction but more recently we also decided to install democracy. Or did George change the reason once more this week. And in the meanwhile the average citizen has numerous miltia groups to worry about, minimal utilities and a crumbling infrastructure, a US installed government that is imploding and roving gangs that break into houses, shoot or imprison people and stop cars at will. The average citizen of that country sees the U.S. losing its will and getting ready to pull out, as predicted. So what will we leave in our wake.....another Viet Nam to collapse on itself.

I'm sure the next president will look forward to that mess.

Maybe there is still hope for him in the civil rights arena. I won't hold my breath though.

5343. The Eton E1 Radio and the RF Junkie "SWLZ" 9:1 Shortwave Listener's Balun with "F" Connector for RG6 (75 Ohm) Coax Cable Feed-in-Line Output

For One and All,

The Eton E1 Radio and the RF Junkie "SWLZ" 9:1 Shortwave
Listener's Balun with "F" Connector for RG6 (75 Ohm) Coax Cable Feed-in-Line Output.
http://groups.yahoo.com/group/ETON-E1-XM-Radio/message/1005

If you are looking to build your own Random Wire Antenna (Longwire) to use with your Eton E1 Radio; then consider the "SWLZ" Shortwave Listener's (SWL) Balun by RF Junkie.

WHY ? First the Eton E1 Radio uses a "PAL" Jack as the Input for an External Shortwave Listener's (SWL) Antenna.

PAL ADAPTER - In the USA most of us will buy a "PAL" Jack to
"F" Connector Adapter as the first piece of any SWL Antenna Hook-Up for the Eton E1 Radio.

DIRECT RG6 COAX CABLE HOOK-UP TO THE ETON E1 :
The simplest direct hook-up to accomplish this External Antenna "Connection" is to use RG6 (RG-6) 75 Ohms Coax Cable.
RG6 (RG-6) is the 75 Ohms Coax Cable that is now used in most common home Cable TV and Satellite DDS TV Systems.
Plus RG6 is readily available and has a relatively low cost.
Note - RG59 (RG-59) 75 Ohm Coax Cable can also be used with the SWLZ Balun.

SWLZ BALUN - The RF Junkie SWLZ Balun uses an "F" Connector as the Coax Cable mating jack; and simplifies the whole Coax Cable hook-up process to the Eton E1 Radio.

SWLZ - Shortwave Longwire Antenna Balun Match 9:1 # SWLZ
SWLZ => http://cgi.ebay.com/_W0QQitemZ5798979012
SWLZ 9:1 Balun Receiving Specifications Frequency Range: 500 kHz - 60 MHz
The AM/MW Broadcast Band and Full Coverage of the Shortwave Bands
SWR: Less than 2:1 over frequency range

IMAGE - SWLZ Balun Large Photo
http://www.geocities.com/qrp_baluns/SWLZ-Low.jpg

NOTE - The SWLZ Balun uses a 9:1 Matching Transformer to connect your Random Wire Antenna and Ground to your RG6 Coax Cable as the Feed-in-Line.

I thought the PS for the 500 (which I don't have) is the same as for the 700 (which I do have). If so then it'll run on NiCads and has a built in recharger. Mine gets about 15 hrs per charge on a set of "white label" cells I scrounged out of a lab at work, and fully recharges overnight.
It's certainly a better arrangement than the competition's.

David Rickets meets bin Laden

...within Marxism, it is the Trotskyites that are spearheading the turn to radical Islam... Trotskyites are in fact the most zealous among the Marxists in seeking to unite with the jihadists.
...
It is in Europe that the political convergence between Marxists and Islamists is most advanced.
Here in Canada, the tiny and splintered -- but often surprisingly influential -- Marxist movement has come down firmly on the side of radical Islam and jihad. One of the most sycophantic in its praise of all things Islamist is the Trotskyist Socialist Voice.
The largest Marxist group in Canada, the quasi-Trotskyist International Socialists (IS) , has also chosen to cast its lot with the Islamists against the West. In fact, as far back as 1994, the IS's parent group in Britain, the Socialist Workers Party (SWP) , published a pamphlet entitled "The Prophet and the Proletariat", in which they called for "defending Islamists against the state", and for "occasionally" siding with radical Islamists while maintaining an ideological distance. Today, in the pages of the IS publication Socialist Worker, in which the Islamist torturers in Fallujah, serial murderers of women in Mosul, and holders of sharia courts in Najaf and Sadr City, are all labeled "heroic", that "distance" has all but disappeared.

Invasion of the Chinese Cyberspies

...to rank among the most pervasive cyberespionage threats that U.S. computer networks have ever faced.
"This could very well impact national security at the highest levels."
...
FBI is "aggressively" pursuing the possibility that the Chinese government is behind the attacks.
...
When it comes to advancing their military by stealing data, "the Chinese are more aggressive" than anyone else.
China has not been cooperating with U.S. investigations [Or in the war on terrorism.]
Carpenter had never seen hackers work so quickly, with such a sense of purpose. They would commandeer a hidden section of a hard drive, zip up as many files as possible and immediately transmit the data to way stations in South Korea, Hong Kong or Taiwan before sending them to mainland China. They always made a silent escape, wiping their electronic fingerprints clean and leaving behind an almost undetectable beacon allowing them to re-enter the machine at will. An entire attack took 10 to 30 minutes. "Most hackers, if they actually get into a government network, get excited and make mistakes," says Carpenter. "Not these guys. They never hit a wrong key."
Eventually he followed the trail to its apparent end, in the southern Chinese province of Guangdong. He found that the attacks emanated from just three Chinese routers that acted as the first connection point from a local network to the Internet.

The CCP's Hidden Foreign Agenda Revealed

At a Sydney Auditorium, former Chinese police superintendent and 610 officer Hao Fengjun addressed the audience by taped video recording, in which he outlined a plan that the Chinese government has hatched to attack and neutralize foreign media as part of its overall efforts to control public opinion outside of China.

Yea it's a shame. You can't stop them from doing what they believe in Carter. Do you not agree? This war isn't going to stop and a lot of us are for it. Including the majority our troops. Theres nothing you can do but complain.

Dunno about radio, but he shows up on channel 4 tv in the san francisco bay area at 1:00 am weeknights for an hour. Much changed from when I used to run across him years back, when he usually had on a bomber jacket and a couple pair of glasses together. Has also picked up a rophy wife who sings at the beginning and end of the hour.

If you're really interested, he has a website called dreugenescott.com or somesuch.

Same raant, though.

Begin HERE: Kit costs less than $50.00

http://www.northcountryradio.com/Published/actant_0896/page1.htm

Here in Winter Garden florida, several hundred feet from a high tension line I am receiving portions of the HF bands hitherto unreceivable on vertical slinky or the DX 398 whip

During it's first opersation It received eastern Med, South America, Europe, Greece,

NEVER RECEIVED CITIZEN'S BAND BEFORE. I CAN with the North County Antenna

I received (tho sometimes couldnt copy) stations all the way into the 11 M band. Before I couldnt get higher than 15 M with my Slinky

It even works well on 75M which demands a LOOOONG WIRE.

The antenna doesnt seem to introduce noise and I am receiving FAR more than I did without it.

My preconceived reservations about active antennas are kaPUT!

Before the North County Radio antenna I couldnt receive distant 40M stations, tho this morning I am receiving central Michigan stations, Missouri,South Carolina, Washington DC,Texas stations, W or KI 1's, 2's ,3's ,5's 4's,9's,0's Cut lil' thang! Mebbe 30" long

http://www.northcountryradio.com/Published/actant_0896/page1.htm

I PVC'd it onto 10 foot of heavy PVC pipe strapped to my porch fed with interior-type TV video cable (RG 6?)
and radio hooked up with RG 174u (?) that real skinny coax

I don't think so. It's amplified and tuned, but I see no information saying it is shielded.

However, a connector and some coax will allow you to build a loop for less than $5.00.

Dare To Be Stupid
by Al Yankovic

NOTE: The "Instrumental" version has no lyrics besides the "Dare to be stupid" refrain.

Lyrics:

Put down your chainsaw and listen to me
It's time for us to join in the fight
It's time to let your babies grow up to be cowboys
It's time to let the bedbugs bite

You better put all your eggs in one basket
You better count your chickens before they hatch
You better sell some wine before it's/its time
You better find yourself an itch to scratch

You better squeeze all the Charmin you can while Mr. Wimpole's not around Stick your head in the microwave and get yourself a tan

Talk with your mouth full Bite the hand that feeds you Bite on more than you chew
What can you do
Dare to be stupid

Take some wooden nickles
Look for Mr. Goodbar
Get your mojo working now I'll show you how You can dare to be stupid

You can turn the other cheek
You can just give up the ship
You can eat a bunch of sushi and forget to leave a tip

Dare to be stupid
Come on and dare to be stupid
It's so easy to do
Dare to be stupid
We're all waiting for you
Let's go

It's time to make a mountain out of a molehill
So can I have a volunteer
There's no more time for crying over spilled milk
Now it's time for crying in your beer

Settle down, raise a family, join the PTA
Buy some sensible shoes and a Chevyrolet
And party 'till you're broke and they drive you away
It's OK, you can dare to be stupid

It's like spitting on a fish
It's like barking up a tree
It's like I said you gotta buy one if you wanna get one free

Dare to be stupid (yes)
Why don't you dare to be stupid
It's so easy to do
Dare to be stupid
We're all waiting for you
Dare to be stupid

Burn your candle at both ends
Look a gift horse in the mouth
Mashed potatoes can be your friends

You can be a coffee achiever
You can sit around the house and watch Leave It To Beaver
The future's up to you
So what you gonna do

Dare to be stupid
Dare to be stupid
What did I say
Dare to be stupid
Tell me, what did I say
Dare to be stupid
It's alright
Dare to be stupid
We can be stupid all night

Not true. having owned and operated both the R390 and R390A for years, they are very simple to align and operate. All you need is a a manual and a signal generator. Try that with a R75 or AOR flavor of the week.

Brian,

Let me try a respectful and calm reply...

>> Yea it's a shame.

Well, if your father/brother/son was one of the casualties, I wonder if you might not be quite so cavalier about "only 1300" or your overlooking of the 14,000 maimed when figuring the price of the war.

>> This war isn't going to stop and a lot of us are >> for it. Including the majority our troops.

Some troops believe in it, some are naive, some are economically disadvantaged kids that are there mainly for the "signing bonus" or the promise of a college education and some are there "just because"--just because they were in the National Guard already, going for their 20 year pension and never thought they would get called up.

The other reasons are sort of obvious, but let me explain what I mean by "naive"...let me tell you a true story that occurred a few weeks ago.

One of my ham buddy/radio collector friend is also a Willys Jeep collector, it was a nice night, his 1946 didn't have a top, so he, I and our wives went for a ride. We stopped at a neighborhood hardware store because he wanted to get a spare key.

As it turns out, there was a nice young man there who was also in line to get a key. We got to talking with him and it turned out he was in the Army National Guard and soon to be going to what he called "the sandbox" (Iraq). In the course of the conversation he brought up the fact that

"Bush really treats the troops well". I bit my tongue and didn't say anything, but wondered if he ever watched the news or read the paper.

I wondered (to myself) if he ever saw the news story about how one of the military hospitals wanted to charge a war amputee for his dinner at the hospital. Or if he saw the story about how our brave guys have to scrounge around junk yards for armor plate. Or the stories about how parents have to send their kids flashlights, bullet proof vests and other military supplies at their parents expense because the gummint didn't. I'm thinkin' to myself, if this is "treating the troops good", I would sure hate to see how they treat them badly. (Also, before anybody gets too geeked up, it has been widely publicized in the media that Rumsfeld is trying to do this war "on the cheap").

We shared none of the above thoughts with him, kept the conversation light, smiled, shook hands and wished him the best of luck.

Was he "all for the war"? Was he already in the Guard and just got caught up in it? Naive? All of the above? I dunno...

>>> This war isn't going to stop

Maybe yes, maybe no, but W's polls are waaaay down. Could it be that the sheeple are finally waking up and realizing that maybe they've been lied to and been chumped big time?

See? Nice and calm. Not upset at all. Appreciate the opportunity to debate this with you without rudeness and name calling. I'm in such a good mood that you even get a free pass for spelling tonight. No points taken off for missing the apostrophe in "theres". ;-) <--[humor again]

Greeting: I bought the Sengean ATS 909. I got it at J&R here in NYC. It cost me $219.00. It has a lot of features I like. Including LBS/USB. It also came with an external wire antenna. Cool.

I was looking around for the best portable SW radio I could find. I hope this is it. I know that it is not a new model, but I think it will work better then my old Sony ICF 2010.

I also bought the Koss Pro/4AA headphones. Their big & heavy. This is the real thing. I plan to use this at home for a bigger SW radio.

You can actually do a pretty decent alignment just using the antenna, as long as you have the manual..

I adjusted my local time to it. I wish everything was in UTC. Local time is confusing. LOL!

Also, I notice when I scan on LSB it will not stop if a signal is transmitted on USB or am mode -vice versa versa.

This mean I have to scan 3 time in every band. Is that normal in SW scanning?

And where in the world can I find this hurricane FRQ?

SR 73!

Actually, Gilgamesh was a 'Persian' - the 'Persian Empire' was split into what we now call Iraq and Iran. As to the correlation between Hebrew texts and the tales of Gilgamesh it should not be surprising as the first Jews came from Persia and for centuries the folks in that area moved around quite a bit so Jews were in and out of Persia quite a bit.

Last nite before Katrina hit, WWL was floudering in here at S-7 to S-9.....tonight, a different story.

Now booming in at steady +10dB.

Maybe all that water surging into the area juiced up their antenna efficiency?

On another related topic: While watching FOX News TV yesterday....did anyone else hear Shepherd Smith told "it's none of your fu'ing business" by a person he was interviewing. Smith asked a street-person why he was walking his dogs in the middle of a CAT-5 hurricane.....good answer, I guess!

Farly weak signals, if you are using the built in whip, you likely will hear nothing.
At 2:54Z with a R2000 using a 70' matched ((:1) antenna I am hearing some geazers on 14.327.0MHz that don't even move my S-meter.
Looking at <http://www.spacew.com/www/fof2.html> I see the MUF is around 6Mhz. I would try the 40M and 80M frequenies, 3.873 and 7.285 MHz. Remember below 10MHz coms are most often LSB, above USB.

<http://www.spacew.com/www/fof2.htm>> is a very usefull tool.
Knowing the MUF willhelp decide what frequency the pros are most likely to use.

It does not sound like a rescue. Or anything about the hurricane.

Iffen your located 'East of The Rockies' tune in at night (like right now) to WWL Radio 870 AM on the AM dial. LMAO right now listening to the various jigs call-in's to a talk show about how pissed off they are having to sleep in the attic or the roof on an air mattress and bitching cause they ain't got the power back on yet. (!!) This one welfare queen what called in said she can't use the toilet and she has to relieve herself in the swamp water from off the 2nd story window...

I was nearly on the floor in tears laughing like a nutcase.

Now I can appreciate when these 4-Landers talk about "coons" on 75M at night. :)

Well actually many men in my family have died in wars. There's been men in my family involved in every war this country has fought since the Revolution.

Don't downplay their intellect because you find them to be naive. Presumptuous?

You watch too much news and have obviously fallen for the liberal spin. You should watch some history and reflect on the carnage Sadam and his henchmen have inflicted on millions. Hitler wasn't the only genocidal mass murderer. And yes we have ignored other genocides around the globe but we shouldn't any longer and heres the start.

Been listening to WWL for the past hour.

Some observations:

1) The sheer ignorance of some of the people calling in is truly astounding!
This is exactly what happens when you perpetuate a Welfare State where people are encouraged to stay at home and watch Jerry Springer or Maury instead of working. Actually heard people on there who think that their water, electric, gas, phone and sewage will be restored by this Friday.

2) I cannot begin to imagine what will happen by Thursday or Friday when they begin to let the 30,000+ welfare coons out of the Superdome.
(This assuming they even let them back out onto the streets that soon!)

Prolly is best to lock the doors to the place. After 400 years of living in the US, with its relatively temperate climate, the spearchuckers have likely lost their tolerance for sustained high temperatures in the days ahead
So, I'd give this herd till Friday before a full-scale closed-cage inter-racial riot breaks out. Some darky is gonna say something (..probably true)
about another brillo-head's momma or girlfriend and by the time it's over, New Orleans will then be one of the whitest cities in the USA. (..we can only hope)

3) Any bets that all the Liquor Stores within the NO city limits will be looted clean by the weekend? (either that or the local WalMart or shoe stores)

4) Uncle Charles Darwin will no doubt 'thin the herd' in the comming Months when all those nice water bourne pathogens start to multiply and the ignorant fools drink from the tap instead of using bottled H2O. Can you say Cholera, Typhoid, Encephelitis and some other -nifty- diseases kiddies ?

5) If you know anyone who owns a business in NO, best to tell them to camp out on the property with a Mossberg and 400+ rounds of 0-0 unless they want to be cleaned out by Tyrone and his extended family after dark. Same goes for anyone who attends any kind of a gas station.

6) The sooner the LA National Guard is on the streets with a 'shoot to kill' order in hand for any looters, the better NO will be for the whole.....(assuming they are not in Iraq right now that is, in which case they need to be brought back for domestic 'police duty' a-s-a-p on the next C-130)

The American Military is ideologically impotent. Had the 'military' been lead by intelligence rather than rhetoric, the Iraqis would have kept their water and electricity supplies going instead of having them bombed out. A social security system would have then ensured that all Iraqi families are fed, clothed and the kids can get to school. Special Military MASH hospitals could have delivered the health care that they have lacked. In this atmosphere, violent extremists would be well and truly upsetting the applecart.
Instead of the above scenario, the Iraqi people have been subjected to the mentality of Columbine High School, wherein death is a random event on a daily basis; the hospitals aren't working, the social security system is almost non-existent. The violent have the argument over moderate Iraqis, because who can argue with the facts over Abu Graib Prison?
What Iraqi in his right mind would trust an American? So armed with money and argument, the violent have an unlimited supply of suicide bombers, and all the time in the world. The money gets paid to the families of martyrs; the argument is the simple independence of a Nation, that has the right to it's independence, and it's resources. Had the American Military used Health and Humane Resource Delivery as a vehicle of influence WITH the Iraqi people, they would be greatly respected. Instead, they have denied Health for many years, killing the children of Iraq in particular, and have denied distribution of social funds leaving the male members of Iraqi households feeling impotent in a Nation run by men whose pride and vanity is a by word. The American Military is run by War-Mongers, rather than the organisers of victory. America's geopolitical aims would be far better served by a kiss from the organisers of victory than a kick from the warmongers of Abu Graib mentality.

In my sleep stupor I heard the announcer this Tues. morning at around 5AM Central state that they had enough diesel fuel to run generator power for another 24 hours and that he didn't know how they were going to be able to deliver more. He didn't say if he was referring to the studio or the transmitter power. Mentioned he and staff sleeping on the floor but will carry go on.
Many mention of people's cell phone batteries going dead about now and no power to recharge.

Yes, they are booming into Virginia as well. It's an understatement to say there's a lot of confusion among both rescuers and the rescued in a situation like that. And a lot of frustration on the part of residents who can't even get to the remains of their homes for at least a week. I'm tempted to say if anyone is caught looting or stealing under those circumstances they should be taken out back, given a 5 minute trial and shot.

I am sick and tired of you ignorant, self-esteemd, and free-loading Americans talking about things you never hae experienced, or known. Stay at home with mommy, and pray no one calls in your dues for the freedom you enjoy. In fact thank God you losers stay at home because in the field in the real world, you'd be capped before the enemy who at least has guts and takes and stand with their lives, and cowardly words.

I may not like Bush, but the prior clown got us into this mess with "we are the world" and selling out America to a bunch of lazy extremists who have slaugtered each other for centuries in the name of God or Islam.

What Cindy Sheehan represents is the Americans who would be a free-loader in any society.....her son left home to be rid of the smothering mom......she is the reason why we should have a mandatory srvice period for all your Americans...no service or sacrifice to the USA, then pack up your lzy behind and go live in the shit-holes I have visited, lived, worked, and fought in. And if some poor foreign national is willing to serve this country, then let them and grant them the earned citizenship that they deserve...meanwhile ship your attitude to where I am right now. You are the perfect target for these radicals here...anyhting Christian, western, or white is the cause for these prejudiced, barbaric, and hipocritical Moslems over here.

I think we should find out where you all live, and when we return, pay you a perosnal visit, hijack your entire family to over anywhere in the Middle East, and experience first hand the reality of the situation. Better yet, you and your cowardly kind should be identified as easy targets for these peoples determined to spread Islam throughout the world......I'd like to see your face as they shot at your car from 200 years, or a school bus, or better yet, kidnapped your family, had their way with them, and when paid, send pieces of them back to you as a momento. For the last 46 years years, we have befriended these "Arabs - no such culture as the British put a label on them as well as the Hebrews over here. In repayment, they turned to godless USSR.....without us, Afghanistan would be a doorway through Persia to the port of Basra for the Black Sea fleet.

When you educate yourself of the situation over here, understand the culture and religion (read the Koran and most importantly, the Hadiths..), and then try to survive over here, then tell me what we are doing over there.

If we cannot plant a seed for democracy, free the children and women from cruelty and abuse, and stop human slavery under the government guise of foreign workers, and draw limits for their frustration for their leaders, but due to stupid Islamic education from cradle to grave, forgive the murdering and stealing by their leadership, but blame the west for not exterminating their leaders (a Moslem is forbidden to kill another Moslem...hic, they do it anyhow).

We need as Americans to show our determination to preserve the sanity and decency of western civilization, as opposed to the continual blood baths among themselves, as well as, the new target, western society as a whole.

As far as Cindy Sheehan, I would love to slap that bitch in front of the camera...or better yet, bring her over here to see, listen to, and experience the hate for her and her kind. The USA peoples fled the same kind of socities that now are on the rise throughout the world...for her to say we killed and caused these problems is pure ignorance or she is a verifiable idiot. Her ravings are a danger to every western soldier, aid worker, and civilian over here....I personally want her to be held for her presence on Islamic radical web sites, and for any Americans killed over her by non-Iraqi's killing us and the Iraqi's because they have been expelled from their native country, or truly believe that this is a religious war...if it was, it would be over by now.

It is time for the parents of these brave and loyal American soldiers to put a big stopper in the these anti-war types once and for all. It is easy to criticize...try living somewhere else other than America...unless you have a real professional skill that even the Europeans want, or the Arbas would pay for, then be thankful America keeps trach like you around to remind us how bad we are as a nation and a philosophy that all men are truly created equal...no where else will you find that value supported with the blood and resources of a people...not in the history of the world.

I bet that even Mr. Bush could whip your sorry self in a fist fight....it takes guts to do the right thing, and not the politically correct thing that keeps you lovee-dovee with the liberals in America.

Simply put, you and Cindy can get out of my country...pack your bags and go feed of someone else's sacrifices.

It's a long listing of receivers sorted by narrow dynamic range and the R390A is beaten out on that measure by several smaller, much lighter and more versatile receivers. I would think that if the R390A were still a receiver that could perform it's intended task it would not have been put out for surplus by the numerous government agencies that once used it and Collins would still be manufacturing it.

I'm not saying that the R390A doesn't offer good receiving performance, because it clearly does. The old rigs like the R390A and National HRO500 are electro-mechanical wonders that I get pleasure from by just watching everything mesh together. But their shortcomings are substantial when compared to more modern gear.

The Mississippi Gulf Coast was devastated by Hurrican Katrina. Keesler AFB received major damages, the medical center was flooded, generators shut down, still without power.

Civil Engineering headquarters is on generator power and up and running. We have telephones and e-mail. Typing this from the EMCS bunker.

The coastal/beach highway, hwy. 90 is mostly washed out. The business' along the highway are gone, restaurants, hotels, motels.

I don't have time for a detailed report.

I would not use the word substantial. You clearly have never had the pleasure of operating one of these receivers that was at its peak performance level. The r390 series offers outstanding performance and maintenance potential. Go out and buy one of these high priced modern receivers. When it breaks toss it in the trash because they were never meant to be serviced.

Let's discuss your message one ranting phrase at a time. Please tell me what ideologically impotent really means. I'm truly confused by that phrase since the military isn't usually an organization one would associate with an ideology.

There are I'm sure several reasons that caused the government agencies to surplus and part out those large monitoring receivers. Those same agencies are still very much in the business of listening and communicating, but with more versatile equipment. A military communications engineer I'm acquainted tells chuckles a bit when telling stories about the older comm guys and MARS operators who are fascinated with the R390A.

I agree, there certainly is a potential for a lot of maintenance on that old tube radio. And there is the problem...keeping those old boatanchors at a steady state of performance. I'm not sayng it isn't a radio capable of high performance - clearly it is. But there are several less cumbersome and more versatile receivers that will also do what the R390A does, which is catch signals under difficult circumstances.

There must be at least one good reason all of those 90 pound monitoring receivers were sold off at auction by their original governmental owners. What do you suppose that reason could be.

The resolution of the display is 1kHz, the accuracy of the tuning is typically within 100 Hz or so either way. So if the set does drift/age "the wrong way" by only a few Hz, the display suggests a 1kHz error - because that is its resolution.

To avoid the effect you are seeing, when we aligned the radios we set the oscillators 50Hz or so higher than they should have been, and this had the effect of landing the display the right side of 9/0 boundary when tuning in synchronous modes.

However the design of the set, particularly the clever (cheap) way the inserted carriers are generated adds to the possibility of that effect.

Basically there's probably nowt wrong with it as we say in Derbyshire.

The growling effect I first heard when doing the final alignment and testing in the early days of '150 production. I spent a few days trying to stop it but failed. The designer, JT, wasn't particularly interested. I found that it would happen only with weak signals - 1 to 5 microvolts if I remember correctly. Not much of a problem in practice. If that is what your set is doing, once again - nowt wrong with it.

If the growling instability is more noticeable than that, there may be a fault.
Just had a thought - make sure there is no mains power supply or computer monitor near the set and throwing alternating magnetic fields at it.

Our public liability insurance premium in respect of our sales to the volume of goods we sell there. As a result, regrettably, we can't sell goods or services to that part of the world. If you

It's just like anything else. They get replaced by modern technology.
The problem with the new technology it that to get the same level of performance you have to spend big bucks. You aren't going to get that kind of performance from a tecson or degen. Also, you can't repair the stuff yourself. Most folks aren't going to have the special test bench that they need to create an effective repair. If they did, they won't be able to get the proprietary components that they need. I have the ability to fix just about anything that goes wrong with this radio.

Do you realize that the radio was still being used during the gulf war?

Best way for Quick easy cash, for REAL!
LOTS OF CASH, FAST AND COMPLETELY LEGAL, THIS REALLY WORKS!!
THIS REALLY CAN MAKE YOU EASY MONEY!! IT WORKS!!! BUT YOU HAVE TO FOLLOW IT TO THE LETTER FOR IT TO WORK!!!!
A little while back, I was browsing through newsgroups, just like you are now, and came across an article similar to this that said you could make thousands of dollars within weeks with only an initial investment of $6.00! So I thought," Yeah, right, this must be a scam", but like most of us, I was curious, so I kept reading. Anyway, it said that you send $1.00 to each of the 6 names and address stated in the article. You then place your own name and address in the bottom of the list at #6, and post the article in at least 200 newsgroups. (There are thousands) No catch, that was it. So after thinking it over, and talking to a few people first, I thought about trying it. I figured what have I got to lose except 6 stamps and $6.00, right? Like most of us I was a little skeptical and a little worried about the legal aspects of it all. So I checked it out with the U.S. Post Office (1-800-725-2161)

and they confirmed that it is indeed legal! Then I invested the measly $6.00. Well GUESS WHAT!!... within 7 days, I started getting money in the mail! I was shocked! I figured it would end soon, but the money just kept coming in. In my first week,

I made about $25.00.
By the end of the second week I had made a total of over $1,000.00! In the third week I had over $10,000.00 and it's still growing. This is now my fourth week and I have made a total of just over $42,000.00 and it's still coming in rapidly. It's certainly worth $6.00, and 6 stamps, I have spent more than that on the lottery!! Let me tell you how this works and most importantly, why it works....also, make sure you print a copy of this article NOW, so you can get the information off of it as you need it. A cousin of mine did this a few months back, and he is now enjoying life in his brand new Tahoe Sport!! ($30,000+). So it does work!!

STEP 1: Get 6 separate pieces of paper and write the following on each piece of paper "PLEASE PUT ME ON YOUR MAILING LIST." Now get 6 US $1.00 bills and place ONE inside EACH of the 6 pieces of paper so the bill will not be seen through the envelope to prevent thievery. Next, place one paper in each of the 6

envelopes and seal them. You should now have 6 sealed envelopes, each with a piece of paper stating the above phrase, your name and address, and a $1.00 bill. What you are doing is creating a service by this. THIS IS ABSOLUTELY LEGAL! Mail the 6 envelopes to the following addresses:

: Rimon 631/24
: Natzareth illit, T.D. 13123
: ISRAEL (17000)
: 2- Jared Franklin
: PO Box 11
: McCune, KS 66753
: USA
: 3- Wallden Enterprises Inc.
: 14329 - 68th Avenue, Surrey, B.C. V3W 2H5
: Canada
: 4- Mark Gomez
: 11108 Shoreline Dr.
: El Paso, TX 79936
: 5- Robin Hanson
: PO Box 596
: Virden MB.
: ROM 2CO CANADA

6- Bill Boyer
: 8776 Fern Glen Dr.
: St. Louis, MO 63126
STEP 2: Now take the #1 name off the list that you see above, move the other names up (6 becomes 5, 5 becomes 4, etc...) and add YOUR Name as number 6 on the list. STEP 3: Change anything you need to, but try to keep this article as close to original as possible. Now, post your amended article to at least 200 newsgroups. (I think there are close to 24,000 groups) All you need is 200, but remember, the more you post, the more money you make! ---DIRECTIONS -----HOW TO POST TO NEWSGROUPS---------- Step 1) You do not need to re-type this entire letter to do your own posting. Simply put your cursor at the beginning of this letter and drag your cursor to the bottom of this document, and select 'copy' from the edit menu. This will copy the entire letter into the computers memory.

Step 2) Open a blank
'notepad' file and place your cursor at the top of the blank page. From the 'edit' menu select 'paste'. This will paste a copy of the letter into notepad so that you can add your name to the list. Step 3) Save your new notepad file as a .txt file. If you want to do your postings in different sittings, you'll always have this file to go back to. Step

4) Use Netscape or Internet explorer and try searching for various newsgroups (on-line forums, message boards, chat sites, discussions.) Step 5) Visit these message boards and post this article as a new message by highlighting the text of this letter and selecting paste from the edit menu. Fill in the Subject, this will be the header that everyone sees as they scroll through the list of postings in a particular group, click the post message button. You're done with your first one!
Congratulations...THAT'S IT! All you have to do is jump to different newsgroupes and post away, after you get the hang of it, it will take about 30 seconds for each newsgroup!
REMEMBER, THE MORE NEWSGROUPS YOU POST IN, THE MORE MONEY YOU WILL MAKE!! BUT YOU HAVE TO POST A MINIMUM OF 200 That's it! You will begin reciving money from around the world within days! You may eventually wany to rent a P.O.Box due to the large amount of mail you will receive. If you wish to stay anonymous, you can invent a name to use, as long as the postman will deliver it. JUST MAKE SURE ALL THE ADDRESSES ARE CORRECT. Now the WHY part: Out of 200 postings, say I receive only 5 replies (a very low example). So then I made $5.00 with my name at #6 on the letter. Now, each of the 5 persons who just sent me $1.00 make the MINIMUM 200 postings, each with my name at #5 and only 5 persons respond to each of the original 5, that is another $25.00 for me, now those 25 each make 200 MINIMUM posts with my name at #4 and only 5 replies each, I will bring in an additional $125.00! Now, those 125 persons turn around and post the MINIMUM 200 with my name at #3 and only receive 5 replies each, I will make an additional $626.00! OK, now here is the fun part, each of those 625

persons post a MINIMUM 200 letters with my name at #2 and they each only receive 5 replies, that just made me $3,125.00!!! Those 3,125 persons will all deliver this message to 200 newsgroups with my name at #1 and if still 5 persons per 200 newsgroups react I will receive $15,625,00! With a original investment of only $6.00! AMAZING! When your name is no longer on the list, you just take the latest posting in the newsgroups, and send out another $6.00 to names on the list, putting your name at number 6 again. And start posting again. The thing to remember is, do you realize that thousands of people all over the world are joining the internet and reading these articles everyday, JUST LIKE YOU are now!! So can you afford $6.00 and see if it really works?? I think so... People have said, "what if the plan is played out and no one sends you the money? So what! What are the chances of that happening when there are tons of new honest users and new honest people who are joining the internet and newsgroups everyday and are willing to give it a try? Estimates are at 20,000 to 50,000 new users, every day, with thousands of those joining the actual internet. Remember, play FAIRLY and HONESTLY and this will work. Also, for the skeptics, you're looking at this and thinking about doing it right? imagine how many millions are looking and thinking the EXACT same thing!!

: Enjoy the money,
: Rick

But it's dual purpose! You can turn off the heat in the house when you turn on the radio. It saves you money in the long run.

As with solid beam axles, drum brakes and carburetors in automobiles new technology in radios results in an improved product. It will be different than the old, but generally better at doing the intended job.

> The problem with the new technology it that to get the same level of

But the military, CIA, DIA, NSA, Embassies were also spending big bucks for the receivers and their maintenance.

> You aren't going to get that

The R390A was never targeted at recreational listerns who would use a Tecsun or Degen receiver. I don't understand the comparison. For casual listening a DE1103 will run circles around a R390A.

> Also, you can't repair the > stuff yourself.

You could say the same thing about the R390A when in service since it's operators as a group were not repair people either.

> Most folks aren't going to have the special test bench

And that's fine - if you enjoy and want to spend hours repairing the R390A that's ok. But most folks don't have the interest - they would rather listen with something more reliable and flexible. It's kinda like cars - there are guys who get immense pleasure from tinkering with their set of wheels.

Not surprising, since phase outs don't happen all at once and it was last produced in 1986 or so. And I'm sure there are MARS operators somewhere still using it. It is clear the receiver does not have a place in modern communications since the original owners of the R390A series have abandoned it for more up to date equipment and modes of communication.

For listening to the ball game maybe, but we aren't talking about casual listening here. Hell, I can sit down with a 10 dollar boom box and be a casual listener. We are talking about raw performance.

Again, they don't break near as often as you make it sound. When they do, anybody with a little common electrical knowledge can repair it. Take today's radio and I'm sure they are more reliable, but when they break it's time to send it out for repair or toss it in the trash. You will actually be lucky if the manufacturer will repair it. I sent my Sony CRF-V21 back to Sony for repair. They told me that they no longer support this radio. That's great I thought. I have a 4000.00 dollar radio that nobody can fix and believe me I tried. In a nutshell, I'd never trade a 390 for a modern rig.

It's not clear at all. I would be willing to bet that it will be in the civilian market and operated daily for years to come.

Jefferson Parish under Martial Law.

No one being allowed into New Orleans.

Levee breaches are causing rising water in New Orleans.
WWL-TV studios are being evacuated due to rising water in the French Quarter. WWL will begin broadcasting from LSU as soon as possible and we will be attempting to stream on the web.

Mayor Ray Nagin reports the Twin Span Bridge is "totally destroyed" and that 80% of the city is underwater.

According to some comments a few minutes ago on WSM it looks like the cellular base stations have all run out of fuel, so the whole cellular system is out of service for New Orleans. till they can truck in fuel and restart the generators. They stated that they had been in contact with people in that region, but could no longer reach anyone by phone.

But that was the context of the previous comments. And that was the audience the R390A was targeted to. It was designed to be parked on a frequency more than multiple band scanning.

But you made the comparison to Degen and Tecsun equipment, not me.
Clearly the DE1103 is far better suited for listening to listening to programs of major broadcasters no matter the band. Band scanning and hopping between bands are not the strong points of the R390A. It is far better at parking on a frequency to dig out radio flyspeck.

No doubt, but it will appear for civlian use because it is a surplus radio that no longer meets the needs of the listeners it was originally designed for. It clearly does not have the place it once had in the world of specialized communications and monitoring. It has been replaced.

I dunno...you could rig a fan driven generator on top of the R390A.
Should be enough lost energy from those glowing tubes to help run a decent sized AC unit.

Anyone know of an audio stream for WWL Radio? I know that they are supposidly simulcasting on several stations. Possibly one of them has streaming if WWL doesn't? I am out of propagation range during daylite hours so the streaming would be nice for me.

Could some third party in the UK buy parts from Lowe and then make them available (at a price $$) to repair shops in the US? This way Lowe receivers could be repaired in the US.

Surely there's some way around the liability issue.

Amazing what $10 worth of ferrites can do.

No law against building an outboard filter/regulator circuit either.

The most important step is to bypass each Si diode.
This is much more important then adding an outboard filter or ferrite. The bypass cap stops the production of IM at the soruce.

>Anyone have frequencies that one might hear the BBC world service in >California (SF Bay area) ???

For your local non-commercial broadcasters, go the the World Service web site http://www.bbcworldservice.com or http://www.bbc.co.uk/worldservice and halfway down their home page there's a place to put your city into a form entry and a button that takes you to a page for the program schedules. This, for US locations, will list the local stations that carry some BBC, and XM and Sirius satellite. You can switch between the various schedules. (Sirius runs a news only schedule, XM runs the same as shortwave for Americas).

Likewise, there are also pages for the shortwave frequencies for several regions in the world. These come in two forms, one type is a text list, and another is a graphic bar chart for what frequency is used over 24 hours. You get to the graphic version from a link off the text list page. There's about a dozen target regions, so it's a pain to get all of them.

The America's schedules (Caribbean, South America) are also on shortwave for a couple of hours.

5975 kHz at 7-9 PM PDT. With 8-9 PM coming from a transmitter in Delano, California. The 7 PM transmission is targeted at South America, the 8 PM at the Caribbean. 9825 kHz is also used for the 7 PM transmission.

Then there are transmissions targeted at other regions.

Transmission to various African regions may be picked up 8-11 PM PDT or thereabouts on 7120, 7160, 6195, and 11765 kHz.

Most useful here are transmission from South East Asia aimed at coastal East Asia. (To get the program schedule, I tell the web page I live in Manila).

9740 kHz from 2 AM to 9 AM PDT,
6195 kHz from 2 AM to 10 AM PDT ?
(often "sharing" with China's Mongolian service)
7160 kHz from 9 AM to 11 AM PDT.
15280 kHz about 4 PM to 8 PM
15360 kHz 10 PM to somewhere in the dead of night.
17760 kHz late evening and early morning

7160 and 6195 are better in the winter, and 15280 and 15360 are summer frequencies coming to the end of their usability for the year pretty soon here, and they're often not that great to start with.

As a last resort, after 10 PM, try 550 kHZ.

One of the other operators managed to make his way in to work to relieve me. I went home and got some fresh clothes, showered and returned to the CE bunker. My house was pretty much unscathed, 7 shingles missing, no leaks, no other damage other than a 80 ft. + pine tree in the back yard is down, It fell away from the house. The house next door lost most of the front roof and almost all the shingles. Go figure.....

The volcanos used to be moderated by the rain forests. Carbon dioxide sinking. Now that the rain forests have been turned into cattle ranches we get no CO2 sink, plus added methane. Enjoy.

The bidder has put in "back up" bids in the hopes you'll see his six bids and figure he's serious and has bid a fortune for it.

If you put another bid in when you're already the high bidder, it doesn't come into play unless it's needed to keep you the high bidder when someone else bids, or if you were the high bidder by less than the standard bidding increment.

Often the difference between their lowest bid and highest bid is small. (after all, they're doing it to try to hold down the price)

If I want something, I'll bid what it's worth to me regardless of what the bidding history shows, but I feel pretty good when someone else has used this technique to hold down the price for me.

What truth?

nti-President George "W" Bush (guilty)

Anti-Republican / Conservative (anti-Republican, pro-conservative)

Anti-America / USA (anti-America, pro-USA)

Anti-Christian and Persons of Faith (anti-''Christian'', pro-Jesus; if by ''Persons of Faith'' you mean those twisted Evangelicals and Dominionists yes. I want them locked up.)

Anti-Family Values / Community Values (please define these terms.
Is social Darwinism a ''family value''?)

You will be happy with it if you can feed it. Mine is an exceptional radio but greedy for power. It chews up batteries and will operate ONLY with the expensive alkalines. Put in bargain-basement imports and it doesnt even turn on.

It wont even turn on with expensive high capacity NiMH's ...It says "SIX volts, not 4.8 !"

I have a MESS of NiMH cells so I am going to put a six-cell battery holder together to hold the NiMH's rather than use a noisy wall wart.

Be prepared for that eventuality altho I hear each one has it's own personality. Many complain they are deaf on whip, while mine is HOT!

Perhaps that's why it eats the amps!

>>>WORLD EDUCATION RANKINGS

(snip)

these figures are basically meaningless......when you read stats like these, you (although perhaps unknowingly)are comparing apples and cows.

Most countries listed above the US have educational systems that track students and by the time the kids are 14-15 years old, only those above certain levels go on to higher education.

I was involved with educational testing for 35 years....and quickly came to realize that while we here in the US are mandated to test _all_ students, in most countries the testing is quite selective, with the less capable students _not_ tested. My last school had over 50% of the students rated as NES (non english speaking). Nevertheless, _all_ students were given the same tests, which the same over 50% could not read, and the results were poor scores for that school. Consequently, funding was reduced (an odd form of "discipline", expecting that this would somehow cause us to improve the scores) resulting in even less being spent to help those NES students. The next testing time, the school scores were even poorer, so more funding was reduced, etc. A vicious circle.

There are 10s of thousands of people that need to be evacuated ASAP.

I went to Frisco with my cousin to see a friend and we stopped at some ritzy coffee house and I couldn't believe what those yuppies were paying for those fancy shmancy coffees. Unbelievable what the in crowd does to itself financially.

What no-one has mentioned up to now is the sort of problems you might be facing, and how various solutions deal with them.

Here are some (simplified) facts:

[ ] Radio signals are electromagnetic waves

[ ] Electromagnetic waves have electric and magnetic components

[ ] A loop antenna picks up the magnetic part of the signal

[ ] Signal-to-noise ratio is everything

What you can draw from this is that, if you have an electrically-noisy environment, the loop antenna can help. It will receive less noise. It can't help with 'atmospheric' noise, and neither can a whip or wire.

You can mount a loop antenna in a window, as you can a wire antenna, and you can place your receiver there and extend the whip. With wires and loops you can have them in the window, and have a 'lead-in' to your radio.

You can do this very cheaply: You'll need an antenna jack plug for your radio. Measure the length around the perimeter of your window frame, and add say 15 feet. Get some single flexible insulated cable of this length - it isn't critical. It could be 'earthing cable' or whatever you have to hand. Tape the cable around the perimeter of your window, so that the two 'tails' from each end are about the same length. Twist the tails together. Remove the insulation from each end for about 1/4", and connect one to the antenna connector connector inner, and one to the outer. You can feed the wire through the holes and twist them in place. Make sure they don't short or you won't get any signal! You can now happily try receiving signals with the radio's whip, and with your loop antenna. It won't cost much at all.

It won't be pretty, either, but it'll get you started.

Why is the window important? It probably furthest away from the electrical noise, and nearest the radio signals, which can be severely reduced by any metal frame of the building.

This is a great hobby. Enjoy it!

I now it would be stinky, but perhaps we could use your BS to raise the city 15 feet. At the rate you churn it out it might only take a few days and then we could still shoot the looters.

I can field this one (having had the same thing happen).

Opening bid is $1. You bid $1.. later, you decide to up the bid to say, $3, so you do. The bid still stays at $1 because no one has bid against you. You keep thinking... maybe I'll bid a bit more.. so you go to $5, $8, $10... so your max bid goes up, but the current bid still stays at $1. But your new bids show up as new bids in the bidding list.

Yep, sure are. The Northwest has a lot of rainforest (at least west of the Blue Mountains) in Oregon and Washington. This includes the Olympic National Forest area around Mt. St. Helens. Average of 184 days with rain in that part of the country, and over 40" of rain annually (some areas much more, some a little less).

The solution is simple. There are three controls that you can use. You can change frequency (and find more interesting topics, perhaps), you can turn the volume down (or off), or you can shut off the power to the receiver.

You can thank George Bush for most of this with his "family values", with which he has done nothing. It was a ploy to get re-elected. I've noticed that one preacher is blaming the deaths of our soldiers on the fact that America "protects" gays and g*d's wrath is upon us. Bush's agenda to get re-elected has caused much hate and discontent. Our federal deficit is unbelievable and getting worse. Finally, he is coming off vacation to make a big show of how he is going to help the states that have been devistated by the hurricane. Perhaps he can go back to an elementary school and twiddle his thumbs and toes and bounce his eyes around if and when we get attacked again.

After Bush pushing for (and obtaining) big tax breaks for SUVs, how's the price of gasoline in your area? Ever wonder why after the big tobacco settlement and all the information as to how bad tobacco is for you, the tobacco farmers get big subsidies? Think, man, think for a change. Follow the money trail.

thank you for this amazing post. I just have one question;
You say that i can use telescopic antenna as well as loop antenna simulatenously with my radio. The manual for my Sony 7600GR however says that when i use external antenna (loop antenna) that my telescopic is supposed to be retracted. Any reason you can think why would that be.

About ten shingles were blown off my house late yesterday afternoon.I already had half a can of asphalt roof coating stuff and some shingles and shingle nails and some tar paper left over from when I was repairing the roof on my old shed in my back yard a few years ago.I had my house roof repaired in about an hour this morning.Three trees got blown down across the South end of the street I live on.Many,many trees got blown down on power lines in the Jackson area.There are still about 160,000 people without electricity in the Jackson area according to the local Jackson 5:00 PM WLBT tv news this afternoon.I am really supprised my electricity got turned on so soon.I was sort of expecting it would be at least Thursday or Friday or this weekend before it got turned back on.

Hurricane Katrina blew down a lot of trees onto a lot of electric power lines in the Jackson area.Some houses suffered mostly minor damage from the wind.Some trees got blown down onto some houses.I went over to my sister and brother in law's home this morning,a distance of about five miles from my house.I think I counted at least sixteen trees that had gotten blown down,but there are many,many more trees all over the Jackson metro area that got blown down.Some cities and towns in South Mississippi and Louisiana suffered the worst damage.It will be years and years before things get back to normal.There are a lot of refugees in Jackson and other cities and states who dont have a home to go back to.

It could be a bidder rethinking his bid several times as others have mentioned. It could also be a game the bidder is trying to play with other potential bidders. By making it seem that he has bid the radio way up, it may drive off potential bidders. Just put your max bid in and see what happens.

I think New Orleans needs to rebuild further North,on high and dry land.The City is sinking (so are Venis,Italy and Mexico City,Mexico sinking) and there will be a time when they will have no other choice.There is a lot of acreage that is lost everyday in Louisiana because of natural erosion.

I say a lot of things at cuhulin's expense. And to refresh your memory, I offered to bury the hatchet with him; I'd ignore him if he'd ignore me. He kept bringing me up, so he gets more shit. I refuse to be lectured on empathy by a guy that repeatedly makes jokes about necrophilia and another human being's recently departed mother. If you're trying to take the high moral ground here, you've got a really peculiar way of showing it.

Oh, but I forgot. You're just a simple-minded fuckwit that doesn't know any better.

The profit is having his moment - he's been "predicting" such a disaster for years.

So now that one of his "predictions" has finally come true, he feels that he owns the bragging rights.

Yep .. all them "sinners" in New Orleans got what was coming to 'em.

The profit has a lotta room to talk after what he did to those young "sistahs" out behind the barn a year or 2 ago.

What it does is show that you're an idiot. I've busted mII's chops in the past, and look forward to doing so again in the future. You'd know that, if your reading comprehension skills were up to snuff. (Not to mention the fact that I -do- have a radio...three in fact, although I've never brought up the other two.) And while I abhor the vast majority of mII's political inclinations, at least he's able to make coherent and apropos responses. All you do is the equivalent of squatting down and grunting.

In actuality, I don't think you learned anything except how to be a Canadian. It's funny how this group topic is about radios and you post absolutely nothing on topic.

Oh, excuse me. You did make one post. Get a radio, get a life, or get lost!

I have had UK friends buy the parts and ship them to me. Alternatively, you could ship your radio to a friend in UK and they can have it repaired. The good news is the the 150 is not a difficult radio to work on, if you have spare parts. Over the years I have collected displays, drivers, mixers etc.

(From the Times Picayune in New Orleans)....
Law enforcement efforts to contain the emergency left by Katrina slipped into chaos in parts of New Orleans Tuesday with some police officers and firefighters joining looters in picking stores clean.

At the Wal-Mart on Tchoupitoulas Street, an initial effort to hand out provisions to stranded citizens quickly disintegrated into mass looting. Authorities at the scene said bedlam erupted after the giveaway was announced over the radio.

While many people carried out food and essential supplies, others cleared out jewelry racks and carted out computers, TVs and appliances on handtrucks.

Some officers joined in taking whatever they could, including one New Orleans cop who loaded a shopping cart with a compact computer and a 27-inch flat screen television.

Officers claimed there was nothing they could do to contain the anarchy, saying their radio communications have broken down and they had no direction from commanders.

"We don't have enough cops to stop it," an officer said. "A mass riot would break out if you tried."

Inside the store, the scene alternated between celebration and frightening bedlam. A shirtless man straddled a broken jewelry case, yelling, "Free samples, free samples over here."

Another man rolled a mechanized pallet, stacked six feet high with cases of vodka and whiskey. Perched atop the stack was a bewildered toddler.

Throughout the store and parking lot, looters pushed carts and loaded trucks and vans alongside officers. One man said police directed him to Wal-Mart from Robert's Grocery, where a similar scene was taking place. A crowd in the electronics section said one officer broke the glass DVD case so people wouldn't cut themselves.

"The police got all the best stuff. They're crookeder than us," one man said.

Most officers, though, simply stood by powerless against the tide of law breakers.

One veteran officer said, "It's like this everywhere in the city. This tiny number of cops can't do anything about this. It's wide open."

At least one officer tried futilely to control a looter through shame.

"When they say take what you need, that doesn't mean an f-ing TV," the officer shouted to a looter. "This is a hurricane, not a free-for-all."

Sandra Smith of Baton Rouge walked through the parking lot with a 12-pack of Bud Light under each arm. "I came down here to get my daughters," she said, "but I can't find them."

The scene turned so chaotic at times that entrances were blocked by the press of people and shopping carts and traffic jams sprouted on surrounding streets.

Some groups organized themselves into assembly lines to more efficiently cart off goods.

Toni Williams, 25, packed her trunk with essential supplies, such as food and water, but said mass looting disgusted and frightened her.

"I didn't feel safe. Some people are going overboard," she said.

Inside the store, one woman was stocking up on make-up. She said she took comfort in watching police load up their own carts.

"It must be legal," she said. "The police are here taking stuff, too."

Not sour grapes at all. Just pointing out the hypocrisy of people who blocked large numbers of judgeships proposed by Clinton, but now whine and pule when a handful of Bush's hyper-conservatives are blocked. Same folks who savaged Clinton for not burping up an "exit strategy" and budget for the War in Bosnia, but now want to let the current commander in thief get away with a war of undefined length (and goals) while pissing away billions with no real accountability o companies run by his cronies. On no-bid contracts yet.

For people like you, it's always time to rally around your prez, while you refuse to do it when the other guy's man is in office and you're doing all in your power to obstruct his policies.

Not at all sour grapes on my part -- just unbridled hypocrisy on yours. Where were you and your call for unity when my guy was in power? You seem to prefer someone who will lie the country into a war where close to 2,000 Americans have been killed to a guy who lied about a simple blowjob. Great sense of proportion.

I am just glad Hurricane Katrina or a tornado didn't blow my house away,especially with doggy and I sitting in my dining room ready to dive under the kitchen table if the big pecan tree in my front yard near my house or the big pecan tree in my back yard near my house was about to fall over on my house.I could do without electricity for weeks if I have to.I have GOT to get those two trees trimmed down.I am glad my electricity is back on too,airconditioning sure is nice.My sister and brother in law own a Pace Arrow motorhome they have parked next to their house.He has shingles.He had the airconditioning runing off the motorhome's generator in his motorhome when I went over there this morning and he was sitting in there watching tv.He has to stay out of the heat with those shingles he has.

Black bodies swinging in the southern breeze,
Strange fruit hanging from the poplar trees.

Pastoral scene of the gallant south,
The bulging eyes and the twisted mouth,
Scent of magnolias, sweet and fresh,
Then the sudden smell of burning flesh.

Here is fruit for the crows to pluck,
For the rain to gather, for the wind to suck,
For the sun to rot, for the trees to drop,
Here is a strange and bitter crop.

As sung by Billie Holiday

Its called Laddering (Steps) your Bids :
It can be used to 'discourage' Last-Minute-Bidders (Snipers).
Plus it can be used to take-a-look-see at the Reserve Price without way over-bidding the item.
Also, it can be used to peck-away at another bidders Maximum Bid;
again without way over-bidding the item.

Actually the last of five sequential ladder bids has exactly the same effect as a single bid for the same dollar amount. The Ebay reserve bidding will take you to your highest bid and no more. You have an equal opportunity to pay too much or not enough under either bidding scenario.

I have tried cap values from 100pF up to 0.1uF.
I have found that 1000pF appear to work best for me.

And yea I know the prolem is the abrupt on to off, or off to on,

If I place six sequential bids starting at and increasing in 10 dollar increments then my maximum bid is $60.00 although Ebay will only show the initial bid amount. Subsequent bids by other buyers will increase my bid price automatically by the auction bid increment up to my maximum bid of $60.00

If I place one bid for $60.00 Ebay will show only the inital bid amount. Subsequent bids by other buyers will increase my bid price automatically by the auction bid increment up to my maximum bid of $60.00

You end up in the same place under both bidding scenarios - an initial minimum bid with a hidden reserve of $60.00

While I don't like Bush's policies, and the circumstanes of global warming may or may not have anything to do with Katrina, I think everyone ought to take a breather from recriminations while the death toll is rising along with the water level. Let's get through this first and then discuss issues.

Worse from Bay St. Louis to about Biloxi, then the damage lessens somewhat.

We have FBI response Teams on base, along with the Air Force Red Horse construction teams to help in the rebuilding of the base.

Yeah, but something tells me that the jewelry or a PSP sort of loot becomes an albatross when you need to escape, and kicking everyone out of NO means that they won't be able to hang onto their ill gotten wealth.

In a couple of days, it won't mean a thing, since without electricity, the food will go bad, the water will be drunk, and disease will spread rapidly.
If it'll be weeks or months before electricity is back on in NO, then most of that stuff stolen will be worthless, anyway. It would be pretty obvious if people are trying to escape NO with a flat screen tv.

Hello all,

I have a question regarding setting up a small SW broadcast system. Do I have the right idea of the following setup?

computer / audio source -> audio processor -> sw transmitter -> rf surge protector -> antenna

Am I missing anything else?

Thanks!

Let's see, I've got a AAA badge, used to have a Red Cross
one, and there's the library card.

That said, I think this is where you get your amusement.
Your last several topics are deliberately designed to be outrageous bordering on silly, because there will always be people who will respond to them. Likewise, I don't think you could stop yourself from posting here for a week as an act of self discipline; there seems to be just as great a need to be the provoker as the act of provoking itself.

You will likely need a license anywhere you go. Some places they shoot first if they think you are up to something and an unlicensed station could be considered a spy station by those in charge.

They have not been abandoned. A significant portion of them chose to stay for whatever reason, and given the lack of power and other items in NO, they are probably not aware of how bad things are beyond the next day or two.

Those who simply could not get out tried to go to safe locations as best they could, and are making do as best they can.

It also would not surprise me in the least that a portion of the people who stayed decided to stay to see if they could loot.

I kind of feel sorry for those looters because they will probably die because of lack of food. But it's their bad choice.

Don't forget the bribes to local officials (aka "the guys with the guns"). And depending on the political situation you have to bribe the rebels too.

The West Gulf ARES Emergency Net remains active (7.285 MHz days/3.873 MHz nights), and radio amateurs not involved in emergency communication have been asked to keep these frequencies clear when the net is in session. (this is an emergency H&W freq)

A high volume of health-and-welfare requests reportedly is slowing the passage of critical tactical and emergency traffic. The Salvation Army Team Emergency Radio Network (SATERN) on 14.265 MHz has been accepting and handling general health-and-welfare inquiries on the air and via its Web site.

I did a www.devilfinder.com for,New Orleans Shortwave Radio.As large a city as New Orleans is (greater metro area population of about two million or more,most of them have moved out now because of Katrina) there is bound to have been a lot of Shortwave radio listerners and Hams in the Greater New Orleans metro area.

The worst polluters on the planet (India, Malaysia, other 3rd world hell holes) are not part of Kyoto. I don't see what it solves, it just gives liberal whacko environmentalists that warm and fuzzy feeling inside (or is it cool and fuzzy feeling?).

Power source, program material, people on programming side and people on tech side and people on facility maintenance side.

Keeping a transmitter going in third-world conditions isn't rocket science but depending on the antenna/facilities it usually takes at least one guy. In really corrosive/jungle-like conditions it'll take more.

Depending on your desired broadcast range you might be better off with a (local) broadcast-band or maybe even FM transmitter to reach your audience.

If you can define your target audience socio/economico/geographically you can then define the transmitter and program material. Otherwise you're very likely to set up a station that nobody wants to listen to.

Officials Helpless Against Looters
Aug 31 11:41 AM US/Eastern
By KEVIN McGILL - Associated Press Writer

NEW ORLEANS

Officials watched helplessly as looters around the city ransacked stores for food, clothing, appliances and guns.
"We don't like looters one bit, but first and foremost is search and rescue," Gov. Kathleen Blanco said Wednesday.
In the city's Carrollton section, which is on relatively high ground, looters commandeered a forklift and used it to push up the storm shutters and break the glass of a Rite-Aid pharmacy.
The crowd stormed the store, carrying out so much ice, water and food that it dropped from their arms as they ran.
The street was littered with packages of ramen noodles and other items.

New Orleans' homeland security chief, Terry Ebbert, said looters were breaking into stores all over town and stealing guns. He said there are gangs of armed men moving around the city.
The Times-Picayune newspaper reported that the gun section at a new Wal-Mart in the Lower Garden District had been cleaned out by looters.
Multiple gunshots were heard throughout the night in Carrollton.

Police spokesman Marlon Defilo said an officer and a looter were wounded in a shootout. Defilo had no word on their condition. Three or four others were also arrested, he said.
One looter shot and wounded a fellow looter, who was taken to a hospital and survived.

Staff members at Children's Hospital huddled with sick youngsters and waited in vain for help to arrive as looters tried to break through the locked door, Blanco spokeswoman Denise Bottcher told the newspaper. Neither the police nor the National Guard arrived. Authorities planned to send more than 70 additional officers and an armed personnel carrier into the city.

On New Orleans' Canal Street, dozens of looters ripped open the steel gates on clothing and jewelry stores and grabbed merchandise. In Biloxi, Miss., people picked through casino slot machines for coins and ransacked other businesses. In some cases, the looting was in full view of police and National Guardsmen. The historic French Quarter appeared to have been spared the worst flooding, but its stores were getting the worst of human nature. "The looting is out of control. The French Quarter has been attacked," Councilwoman Jackie Clarkson said. "We're using exhausted, scarce police to control looting when they should be used for search and rescue while we still have people on rooftops."

Sen. Mary Landrieu's helicopter was taking off Tuesday for a flyover of the devastation and she watched as a group of people smashed a window at a gas-station convenience store and jumped in. At a drug store in the French Quarter, people were running out with grocery baskets and coolers full of soft drinks, chips and diapers.

That's impressive, you manage to say all that without making a single concrete point. Pure hand wavy rhetoric without a single meaningful idea to get in the way.

And let's face it, that's what politics really is all about, and should be. Issues be damned! They just make everybody's heads hurt.
What it's really about, in the end, is the Good -kind of people-versus the Bad kind of people.

If you're the Good kind of person, everything you do is right, and if you're the Bad kind of person, everything you do is necessarily wrong. So what's the POINT getting more specific about anything? Just identify the Good People and the Bad People by whether they are in the Good Party or the Bad Party, and then you -know- whether to disagree with them or not.

Thinking is a decadent 20th century practice. Fortunately, our governments here in the future are based on Faith and Abstract Principles.

Channel 13 - WLOS TV in Asheville, NC is reporting that a number of gas stations in WNC are closing down due to an outage at the supplier's terminal in Spartanburg, SC. The terminal outage is said to last 3 days or so.

Just a heads up - if you're going to Shelby this weekend, might wanna keep 'er topped off as you travel through the affected areas. Just got this clip from http://www.wlos.com./

Mountain Fuel Shortage
Hurricane Katrina has knocked out power to many areas in the Gulf States and that's affecting the two major suppliers of fuel in the Southeast.

That means delays in fuel deliveries to stations here in Western North Carolina. Wednesday morning we found that some gas stations only had premium. And at least one station, is selling gas for more than $3 dollars a gallon. People are urged to cut back on unnecessary trips and to conserve gasoline as much as possible. If the gas problem continues for several days, cities, towns and counties may ask police and firefighters to stay overnight to be sure they can get to work.

My point is that the last bid you place is the controlling number - you will be bid up to that amount automatically by the proxy system on Ebay. Whether you enter your high price as a series of sequential small bids or one large one is irrelevant. The result and displayed bid price will be the same.

That's a $50.00 XM radio plus monthly subscription fees.

Or you can catch plenty of BBC action at no added cost via the PBS broadcasts. I've had mixed results with satellite radio so far. A subscription service should provide near perfect reception, but it can be spotty in the strangest locations.

Hey Mike,

Make sure you are familiar with backing up your EEPROM on your PCR-1K. You can corrupt your EEPROM using 3rd party software. There have even been reports of the EEPROM being corrupted using ICOM software. There is freeware available that allows you to back up your EEPROM and restore it if you have problems. Good luck. Also if you use the 1000 for vhf/uhf scanning check out Probe1k software. Worth every penny ($70.00)

If you look at his bidding history, he tends to place backup bids even

PBS doesn't carry the BBC World Service. XM carries the North American service 24/7/365.

Personally, I prefer the BBCWS News stream on Sirius, who also offers a $50 radio.

XM has a repeater on Mount Sutro. Sirius also has a Bay Area repeater. Get a radio from Best Buy, listen to the preview channel for a few days to see if reception works. If it doesn't, return the radio.

My theory on Hurricane Katrina and all Hurricanes makes sense.The Earth's weather system is a very complicated "engine".We are still in Hurricane Season and there are weather cycles.Warm air meets cooler air and that starts an air spinning situation out there on the Oceans and Seas.There isn't anything out there much to slow down those Hurricanes and they start picking up more and more moisture and sometimes wind speed.That is why Hurricane Katrina happened.Last Friday or Saturday,I heard on my radio there is another Tropical Depression out there.

In South Georgia, gas deliveries to some stations have been suspended until further notice. In North Georgia stations are running out in smaller towns, and shipments aren't expec6ted before another 3 weeks. At least one small town Sherriff's department has pulled all patrol cars off the street and is only sending out .
for emergencies.

Ga Governor's office has lifted restrictions on truck drivers carrying gas supplies to allow them to drive more hours than they were previously limited to.

From what I hear, they are closing gas stations for the weekend around

Anyway, I have it connected with a Wilson 5000 mag mount outside of the window and connect to a VHF/UHF TV antena on the roof. I grounded the radio to the radiator. And using KOSS Pro 4AA headphones.

No scaning or memories on the radio, but it works nice.

I am tuned to 14.325 USB (09:45 UTC) but at 14.326 USB I heard a ham communicating. Nothing was mentioned about the hurricane so far.

I need to learn how to calibrate the dial on this radio.

If you come thru Gaffney, SC on I-85 there was fuel at $2.65 (as of 2 PM 8/31) on exit 92 (Pilot and Petro). I notice a lot of spaces that had not been taken at Shelby (I was over there today putting up my tent). There are quite a few campers there as always, and more will prolly arrive tomorrow.
I hope it will be a good ''fest inspite of all the fuel troubles.

I am a happy owner on a Kaito 1103, but I am thinking of picking up a ATS909 as a second receiver...I have heard negative things about the 909's receive off the whip, but was wondering how much more sensitive this radio is with external antenna that is supplied with the radio...Can the 909 pick up more stations than the 1103 with external antenna, or are they about the same?...
Thanks

GP - The 909 is fairly insensitive off the whip - damn near deaf, IMHO - but using an external antenna off the jack, or even a passive inductive connection from a strung-up wire to the whip, the difference is like night and day; one must be careful of too much antenna, in fact, because the radio becomes too sensitive and subject to overload.

Don't know about the 1103, but with care the 909 will give excellent results with an external antenna.

There are fixes for the 909 whip out there that involve minor internal tinkering (essentially fidding with a resistor and a do-it-yourself matching transformer), but the above removes the need for that and won't void your warranty if you goof something up.

Sangean radios digital front panels mess up sooner than most other brand name radios,,, or so I have read a few times before.It cost about fifty dollars or more (plus shipping and handling charges) to have them repaired.Only way I would ever own any Sangean radios (I have owned two of them before,I sent that Sangean JUNK back to Bob Crane too) again would be if somebody gave me one for free and then I would either sell it or trade it for something I like better.Stay away from them Tiny Tennas too,they dont work at all.

Some minor free advice --

Consider the use of Log Periodic Horizontal antennas for transmission, as in this example: http://cbc.am/cbc-src.htm
-- For SW power at or under ~5 kw, dipoles -- as in MW transmission are fine -- so long as their hights do not exceed 49 m.

I do consluting work:

FP: It's hard to know where to start Dr. Dalrymple, as your essays evoke so many profound themes.

I guess we can begin with your observations on the root causes of many of our social ills. You discuss how in your practice as a doctor you have confronted a growing pathology in our culture within which there is an assumption that "one's state of mind, or one's mood, is or should be independent of the way one lives one's life." You connect this to people confusing unhappiness with depression. Can you talk a bit about this?

Dalrymple: I have noticed the disappearance of the word 'unhappy' from common usage, and its replacement by the word 'depressed.' While unhappiness is a state of mind that is clearly the result of the circumstances of one's life, whether self-inflicted or inflicted by circumstances beyond one's control, or a mixture of both, depression is an illness that is the doctor's responsibility to cure. This is so, however one happens to be leading one's life. And the doctor, enjoined to pass no judgement that could be interpreted as moral on his patients, has no option but to play along with this deception. The result is the gross over-prescription of medication, without any reduction in unhappiness.

As you put it, there is a complete disconnection between one's state of mind and the way one lives. Moreover, one does not have a right to the pursuit of happiness, one has a right to happiness itself.

I decided, as a matter of experience, that these attitudes are very destructive and - not surprisingly - lead to a lot of misery about which a mere doctor can do nothing, at least without making judgements.

FP: In your discussion of evil, you observe one central phenomenon: "the elevation of passing pleasure for oneself over the long-term misery of others to whom one owes a duty." Kindly give us some of your thoughts on this reality.

Dalrymple: The idea that one's pleasure or desire of the moment is the only thing that counts leads to antisocial behavior. Let me give a small and seemingly trivial example of this.

About half of British homes no longer have a dining table. People do not eat meals together - they graze, finding what they want in the fridge, and eating in a solitary fashion whenever they feel like it (which is usually often), irrespective of the other people in the household.

This means that they never learn that eating is a social activity (many of the prisoners in the prison in which I worked had never in their entire lives eaten at a table with another person); they never learn to discipline their conduct; they never learn that the state of their appetite at any given moment should not be the sole consideration in deciding whether to eat or not. In other words, one's own interior state is all-important in deciding when to eat. And this is the model of all their behavior.

Young patients now eat in doctors' offices; they eat above all in the street, where of course they drop litter as unselfconsciously as horses defecate. This is not evil, though it is antisocial, but you can easily see how people who attach such importance to their own desires, and lack any other criteria to help them decide to behave, come to do evil.

FP: Your observation about humans' thrill for danger and how this interrelates with humans' pattern of self destruction and the voluntary choosing of misery is very profound. Could you share your thoughts with us about this?

Dalrymple: It is clear to me that people often want incompatible things. They want danger and excitement on the one hand, and safety and security on the other, and often simultaneously. Contradictory desires mean that life can never be wholly satisfying or without frustration.

I think it was Dostoyevsky who said that, even if the government were 100 per cent benevolent and arranged everything for our own good, as judged by rational criteria, we should still want to exercise our freedom by going against its dispensations.

One reason for the epidemic of self-destructiveness that has struck British, if not the whole of Western, society, is the avoidance of boredom. For people who have no transcendent purpose to their lives and cannot invent one through contributing to a cultural tradition (for example), in other words who have no religious belief and no intellectual interests to stimulate them, self-destruction and the creation of crises in their life is one way of warding off meaninglessness. I have noticed, for example, that women who frequent bad men - that is to say men who are obviously unreliable, drunken, drug-addicted, criminal, or violent, or all of them together, have often had experience of decent men who treat them well, with respect, and so forth: they are the ones with whom their relationships lasted the shortest time, because they were bored by decency. Without religion or culture (and here I mean high, or high-ish, culture) evil is very attractive. It is not boring.

FP: You mention that your dad was a communist. Tell us about his world view and how this affected your family and your own intellectual journey.

Dalrymple: My father was a communist though he was also a businessman. Our house was full of communist literature from the 1930s and 40s, and I remember such authors as Plekhanov and Maurice Hindus and Edgar Snow. It was always clear that my father's concern for humanity was not always matched by his concern for men, to put it mildly, for whom (as individuals) he often expressed contempt. He found it difficult to enter an equal relationship with anyone, and preferred to play Stalin to their Molotov. We had The Short Course in the house, incidentally, and one of my favorite books (which I used to leaf through as a child) was a vast picture book of the Soviet Union in 1947.

I think the great disjunction between my father's expressed ideas (and ideals) and his everyday conduct affected me, and made me suspicious of people with grand schemes of universal improvement.

FP: You mention how Lenin did not want to hear Beethoven because it made a person want to pat children on the heads, a behavior that is not synonymous with running a death cult. I have always been interested in what music represents and how it poses a great danger to totalitarianism. Today, in facing Islamism, we know that this deadly enemy also despises music (the Taliban) or most kinds of music (Khomeini). What do you think it is about music that so threatens totalistic ideologies?

Dalrymple: Music escapes ideological characterization. Just as there are some social scientists who believe that what cannot be measured does not truly exist, and some psychologists used to believe that consciousness does not exist because it cannot be observed by instruments, so ideologists find anything that escapes their conceptual framework threatening - because ideologists want a simple principle, or a few simple principles, by which all things may be judged. When I was a student, I lived with a hard-line dialectical materialist who said that Schubert was a typical petit bourgeois pessimist, whose music would die out once objective causes for pessimism ceased to exist. But I suspect that even he was not entirely happy with this formulation.

FP: You mention how 19th century French aristocrat, the Marquis de Custine, made several profound observations on how border guards in Russia wasted his time pushing their weight around in stupid and pointless ways, and that this is connected to the powerlessness that humans live under authoritarianism. Tell us a bit more of how this dynamic works in Russia.

Dalrymple: With regard to Russia, I am not an expert, but I have an interest in the country. I believe that it is necessary to study 19th century Russian history to understand the modern world. I suspect that the characteristic of Russian authoritarianism precedes the Soviet era (if you read Custine, you will be astonished by how much of what he observed prefigured the Soviet era, which of course multiplied the tendencies a thousand times).

I suppose that people who feel little control over their own lives or destinies can obtain a slight sense of agency by interfering in the lives of others, in tiny ways. I have noticed that many of the men who are violently dictatorial at home often count for little once they pass their own threshold. They are the Stalins of their own home.

Incidentally, Custine called Nicholas I an 'eagle and insect.' I think this is a brilliant characterization of dictators which aspire world power but who also need to enter into the tiniest and most intimate details of their citizens' existence.

FP: You make the shrewd observation of how political correctness engenders evil because of “the violence that it does to people”s souls by forcing them to say or imply what they do not believe, but must not question.” Can you talk about this a bit?

Dalrymple: Political correctness is communist propaganda writ small. In my study of communist societies, I came to the conclusion that the purpose of communist propaganda was not to persuade or convince, nor to inform, but to humiliate; and therefore, the less it corresponded to reality the better. When people are forced to remain silent when they are being told the most obvious lies, or even worse when they are forced to repeat the lies themselves, they lose once and for all their sense of probity. To assent to obvious lies is to co-operate with evil, and in some small way to become evil oneself. One's standing to resist anything is thus eroded, and even destroyed. A society of emasculated liars is easy to control. I think if you examine political correctness, it has the same effect and is intended to.

FP: You discuss how Custine noted the "wide streets" of St. Petersburg and that these spaces were built this way intentionally to negate the possibility of spontaneity among the citizens and of crowds appearing to be large. It was a way to thwart the possibility of revolution. Can you expand on this a bit?

Dalrymple: Custine thought that the architecture - or rather town planning - of St Petersburg made the gathering of any crowd very conspicuous, and therefore a target. He thought that people could not gather spontaneously there as they could in, say, cities with narrower streets and vistas. He also thought that the grandeur was an attempt to impress upon the citizen how small and insignificant he was, and how powerful and important the state was. Whether he was right or not with regard to Petersburg (other explanations of its grandeur are possible), it was definitely a lesson learnt by the builder of modern Pyongyang, for example, who had the fole de grandeur all right, but not the taste of the builders of Petersburg.

FP: You have a fascinating essay in your collection "Why Havana Had to Die". Can you summarize the main thesis in a few sentences?

Dalrymple: Havana is one of the most beautiful cities in the world, and it has perhaps the most harmonious ensemble of architecture, from the 16th to (most unusually) the middle of the 20th century. Moreover, the area over which this harmony extends is very large (i.e. it is not that enjoyed by a tiny population or elite). Hence, the city contradicts entirely the orthodox communist historiography of Cuba as an undeveloped society with a tiny rich class and everyone else deeply impoverished. Thus it was safer from Castro's point of view to let it fall into ruins than to maintain it (quite apart from an inability to do so).

It must be admitted that ruins have a charm of their own (for visitors).

FP: Islamists and leftists have many things in common. One of them is that they are miserable, hate life and see cheer and joy as a dangerous enemy. You make the comment that "the acceptance of the inherent limitations of existence that is essential to happiness." Can you illuminate this a bit about life in general and also connect it to the toxic nature of Islamism and leftism?

Dalrymple: I take it as given that man, having contradictory desires, is always subject to frustration, even when happy. For example, we want both adventure and safety, and when we have the one we long for the other. All forms of human happiness contain within themselves the seeds of their own decomposition.

Modern man particularly - or so it seems to me - is particularly bad at recognizing that much of his unhappiness or discontent stems from this inevitable source. Rather, he blames the structure of society and thinks that a perfection that will resolve all contradictions and eliminate all frustrations can be achieved, if only we abolished private property or followed the example of the 7th century followers of Mohammed. The attempt to force people to do so gives meaning to their existence, and of course a lot of sadistic pleasure into the bargain.

FP: You note that Alfred Kinsey had pierced his own foreskin and had put metal wires up his urethra. I had heard echoes of this throughout my life but didn't investigate it – as the very idea of this reality terrifies me. But now I can't help from asking: why did he do this? Who in their right mind would do this? What was the objective?

Dalrymple: Alfred Kinsey was a very strange man. He was repressed sexually until quite a late age, and then expressed his sexuality in more and more bizarre forms as he grew older. His was a classic case of the appetite increasing with the feeding. Once you are on the treadmill of exploring sensation as the key to contentment, you have to experience more and more extreme things. I think this explains the logic of artistic production and how 'transgressive' becomes a term of praise.

FP: You have a fascinating essay in this collection: "Who Killed Childhood?" In it you profoundly illuminate the "egotistical inability to feel, compensated for by an outward show." You connect this to the death of childhood. Could you talk about this?

Dalrymple: Childhood in large parts of modern Britain, at any rate, has been replaced by premature adulthood, or rather adolescence. Children grow up very fast but not very far. That is why it is possible for 14 year olds now to establish friendships with 26 year olds - because they know by the age of 14 all they are ever going to know.

It is important in this environment to appear knowing, or street wise, otherwise you will be taken for a weakling and exploited accordingly. Thus, feelings for others does not develop. Moreover, the model of discipline in the homes has changed, with the complete breakdown of the family (in my hospital, were it not for the Indian immigrants, the illegitimacy rate of children born there would be 100 per cent). Children grow up now in circumstances in which discipline is merely a matter of imposing the will of one person on another, it is raw power devoid of principal. Lenin's question - Who Whom or who does what to whom - is the whole basis of human relations.

FP: You discuss the horrifying suffering that women endure under the vicious and sadistic structures of Islam's gender apartheid. You touch on the eerie silence of Western leftist feminists on this issue, noting "Where two pieties " feminism and multi-culturalism " come into conflict, the only way of preserving both is an indecent silence."

To be sure, the Left has long posed as a great champion of women"s rights, gay rights, minority rights, democratic rights etc. Yet today, it has reached out in solidarity with the most fascistic women-hating, gay-hating, minority-hating and democracy hating force on the face of the earth " Islamism.

What gives? It"s really nothing new though is it? (i.e. the Left"s political pilgrimages to communist gulags etc.)

Dalrymple: I think the problem here is one of a desired self-image. Tolerance is the greatest moral virtue and broadmindedness the greatest intellectual one. Moreover, no decent person can be other than a feminist. People therefore want to be both multiculturalist and feminist. But multiculturalism and feminism obviously clash; therefore, you avoid the necessity to give up one or the other merely by disregarding the phenomena. How you feel about yourself is more important to you than the state of the world.

FP: How do you see the future in the context of the terror war in general and the Iraq war in particular? Are you optimistic or pessimistic? Give us some hope please.

Dalrymple: I am not in fact very optimistic in the short term. At best we shall make an accommodation with the possibility of extremist action, in other words we will learn to live with it. I think the conditions that produce terrorism are not going to disappear, and I don't believe in final victory, only attrition and the fact that all things pass in the end.

In a sense, I am optimistic in that I do not believe terrorism of the type we saw in London will ever achieve its goal. Unfortunately, it can cause a huge amount of damage in the meantime.

FP: Mr. Dalrymple, I must say that it is a true pleasure and honor to speak with you. You are a fascinating individual with infinite wisdom. Thank you for gracing us with your presence.

Dalrymple: Thank you for having asked me. It has been a great pleasure and an honor.
